COUNCIL GROUP O.K.'S DAYLIGHT SAVING TODAY

United Approval of Plan Indicated.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

The judiciary committee of the city council will unanimously recommend today that the council officially adopt eastern standard time for Chicago, a poll of the members indicated yesterday. The poll also indicated that an amendment proposing that the measure be submitted in referendum would be defeated.

Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], who introduced the eastern time ordinance, announced that he would offer an amendment making the law effective Sunday, March 1, 1936. This amendment appears certain of unanimous adoption.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], foe of the plan to conserve daylight for Chicago and who apparently would cast the lone committee vote against the ordinance, will not be present for the committee meeting at 1:30 p. m. He has submitted his referendum amendment in writing.

Uphold Public's Wishes.

The committee members said yesterday that they have based their decision to support the time change on the favorable public sentiment expressed at two hearings and the results of polls taken in their wards. Each member said polls taken by business associations, civic groups, precinct captains, and ward organizations showed a majority for permanent daylight saving time with the exception of two wards where there is equal division of sentiment.

The majority of the aldermen were of the opinion that the referendum amendment is an unnecessary gesture, inasmuch as the council cannot demand that there be a referendum and the public has already voted twice at hearings on the principle of daylight saving, approving it both times.

Ald. James J. Cusack Jr. [5th] expressed the opinion of the committee. "After taking up the question of daylight time in our wards we are supporting the measure because we believe that the people want it," he said.

Referendum Up to Voters.

"We were elected to use our best judgment in representing our people, and I see no need in involving the expense of a referendum to take a question to the public which the public has not asked for. If there is to be a referendum it will be accomplished by petition, which would be necessary despite what even the council would suggest. If the people want a referendum they'll say so, and they'll take the steps to get one."

Aldermen Michael F. Mulcahy [8th], William T. Murphy [17th], and Frank Keenan [49th] were agreed that a referendum gesture by the council is unnecessary. Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [26th] and Ald. Z. H. Kadow [33d] said they favored the eastern time measure, but were undecided about the referendum. Ald. H. L. Brody [39th] and Ald. Edward J. Upton [30th] concurred in this position.

Paves Way for Change.

Ald. Cronson said he is introducing the amendment fixing the effective date of the time ordinance as of March 1 instead of immediately after passage, as now provided, in order that the city may move smoothly into the time change about the period of change to summer daylight time each spring.

"One of the purposes of the ordinance is to eliminate the confusion caused by present time changes twice a year," Ald Cronson said. "Since we have just reverted to central time I do not want to urge a change back immediately, since that would not be in the spirit of the measure. Since we will be changing to eastern time in the spring, under the existing daylight saving law, it will be simple to move that date up a bit, and then make the change, once for all, and eliminate confusion.

"I have talked with railroad and business people who favor this, since it will give them ample time to rearrange schedules, which, incidentally, will then remain permanently as they are, and to notify correspondents and business houses in other cities.

Final Action Within 10 Days.

The committee report, if adopted today as planned, will be submitted to the council at its meeting Wednesday. Ald. Cronson's ordinance, as amended, would then be published

2,000 KILLED AS FLOODS SWEEP THROUGH HAITI

Raging Rivers Wash Villages Into Sea.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Official sources estimated tonight at least 2,000 persons are dead or missing as a result of the hurricane that swept over the southern peninsula last week-end. Thousands of natives are homeless and hungry.

Heavy rains accompanied the hurricane, forcing all streams far out of their banks. The peninsula area has been isolated since Monday. The Jeremie region was the hardest hit, according to official statements.

Bodies Washed Out to Sea.

The bodies of most of the missing were feared to have been washed out to sea, as streams in the deep river valleys roared to record heights under the impetus of torrential downpours.

Villages and thatch huts of natives along these streams were believed to have been swept away, with the floods completing the destruction begun by the raging hurricane blasts.

Only fragmentary reports of the destruction wrought by the hurricane and floods in the two cities of Jeremie and Jacmel were available because of crippled communications.

96 Bodies Recovered.

Bodies of 96 victims already have been recovered at Jacmel. The hydroelectric plant in that city was destroyed, reports said, with the population forced to begin the work of rehabilitation without light or water.

First reports said a bridge was destroyed over the Grande Anse river near Jeremie, while the Voldrogue and Roseauc rivers rose over crops along their banks.

First estimates yesterday placed the number of dead at possibly 1,000, but officials said tonight they were forced to alter their figures as later reports came in from the stricken sections.

One small airplane is the only means of maintaining communication between this city and the hurricane swept area.

Great Suffering Feared.

The pilot of the airplane reported widespread suffering was likely in the storm area unless aid is rushed.

The government, to provide relief funds, has cut the government pay roll 10 per cent for a period of one month. The move affects the salaries of every government employé.

The difficulties in the way of an adequate survey of the storm and flood damage was said by officials to be enormous because of the isolated position of the stricken area.

Often Threatened by Storms.

Haiti lies directly across the windward passage from the eastern coast of Cuba. In recent years hurricanes have often threatened various sections of the island, but no great amount of damage has been done, the disturbances usually swerving before striking.

Much of the force of this hurricane, however, hit the peninsula that juts out into the Caribbean sea from the southwest of Haiti.

The arm of land extends approximately 150 miles from the mainland. Jeremie is near the tip of the peninsula, on the north side, while Jacmel is on the southern edge, near the mainland.

Storm Rips Honduras.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 27.—(AP)—First reports of the hurricane toll in Honduras reached this city today, bringing news of the death of three native women in the American mining settlement of San Juancito.

Reports from the settlement said a huge landslide, resulting from unprecedented rains, buried alive three women and it was feared that some native workers may have suffered a like fate.

Reports from La Ceiba said all patients in a hospital of the Standard Fruit company had been removed to safe places as flood waters began to enter the hospital.

The River Ulua inundated the towns of Chamelecon, Choloma, and Progreso. The river rose 50 feet in Chamelecon. Eight hundred families were homeless in that town, having fled to high hills.

Loot Clothier's Home of $2,800 in Gems, $94 Cash

Burglars entered the home of Benjamin Lasker, 545 Roscoe street, while members of the family were absent last evening and stole $94 and jewelry valued at $2,800. The thieves entered by smashing the glass of a rear door.

Sweitzer Goes to Trial Today for Shortage

Robert M. Sweitzer, who for twenty-five years was a political power and twice was Democratic nominee for mayor of Chicago, is scheduled to go on trial this morning on the indictment charging him with withholding $414,129 of public funds.

His attorney, Benedict J. Short, veteran of hundreds of trials and a boyhood friend of Sweitzer's, said yesterday no further delays will be sought.

Sweitzer is accused of retaining funds intrusted to him during the twenty-four years he was county clerk—mostly money paid him for the redemption of property previously sold for taxes. He was elected county treasurer last November and in December turned the office of county clerk over to Michael J. Flynn, his successor, who discovered the shortage.

Ousted by County Board.

Sweitzer's failure to comply with a demand by the county board that he make restitution within three days resulted in the board's voting to remove him from the office of treasurer and in his place the board elected Joseph L. Gill. Sweitzer filed a quo waranto suit to recover the office from Gill, but the suit was decided against him. An appeal is pending.

While an audit, ordered by Flynn, was being made, Sweitzer declared numerous times that as soon as he learned definitly how much he owed he would pay. He insisted he had the money ready, but when the deadline set by the county board drew near Sweitzer began to hedge.

Found "Short" for 17 Years.

After his default and as the ouster was impending Sweitzer's losses in many ventures became known and it was revealed that he had been "short" for more than seventeen years.

Sweitzer, after his indictment, was given a copy of the audit, and upon his further insistence last week he was also supplied by the state with a bill of particulars which his attorneys, however, said was insufficient.

Judge John C. Lewe, who is to preside at the current trial, ruled that the contested bill was sufficient, and that ended the last of the preliminaries which have delayed the trial.

Expect Delays on Jury.

There will be 200 regular veniremen on hand. From them the jury may be drawn. Because of Sweitzer's proved popularity as evidenced by his being elected seven times to county office, and his wide acquaintance, attorneys believe it may be several days before the jury is completed.

Assistant State's Attorneys Leslie E. Salter and Marshall V. Kearney will prosecute. Attorney I. Harvey Levinson will assist Attorney Short.

GEESE HOP INTO AIR AS THEY FLOAT TO BRINK OF NIAGARA

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Shotguns were fired, rockets were sent up, and flood lights were winked in an effort to prevent more than 5,000 befuddled wild geese from being swept over Niagara Falls tonight, but onlookers feared the birds would be dashed to death before dawn.

With a sound like a thousand automobile horns, the geese, frightened and confused, whirled into the air as they were swept near the brink of the falls and flew a short distance upstream to land on the water and repeat the process.

It was believed the birds, wearied by their long struggle, would soon find it impossible to rise and would be carried over the falls to destruction.

WATCHMAN GONE, OFFICE WRECKED; POLICE PUZZLED

Police of the Lawndale district and the detective bureau were confronted with a mystery early today when the report of an explosion at the plant of the Interstate Metal Products company, 4433 Ogden avenue, took them there to investigate. They found no trace of an explosion, but the office of the concern was a bloody wreck, and the watchman, Edward Desecki, 25 years old, 2144 Canton street, was missing. Desecki had pulled the watchman's signal box on entering the plant, but not afterwards.

Overturned chairs, smashed desks, and wrecked glass partitions, all spattered with blood, led the police under Sergt. Walter Bailey to the belief that Desecki had engaged in a battle with two or more intruders who had intended to rob the place.

Mrs. Minnie Maurer, 4418 Ogden avenue, told of hearing several small explosions which might have been shots, but neither bullets nor empty shells were found. She also said that she saw a man flee from the plant directly into the path of a passing automobile which knocked him to the street. Police believe this man was Desecki. A trail of blood on the sidewalk led them a block south where it ended. But Desecki could not be found, either at home or at any hospital in the vicinity.

KILL U. S. DEPUTY MARSHAL IN OHIO CITY'S BADLANDS

Steubenville, O., Oct. 28 [Monday].—(AP)—L. S. Prevat, 48, United States deputy marshal for the southern Ohio district, was shot to death today in the "badlands" district of Steubenville.

Police said the marshal had just left an establishment in the underworld section when several shots were heard. Two bullet wounds were found in Prevat's body.

Peacock Store Gem Burglars Shoot Guard

Charles Blell, a private watchman, was shot and critically wounded yesterday when he tried to halt three men who were robbing a display window of the Peacock jewelry store at Monroe and State streets.

The crash when the robbers broke the store's plate glass window attracted the several guests of the Palmer house who came out at the Monroe street entrance of the hotel. They were ordered back immediately by a man with a shotgun.

Several See Shot Fired.

As they retreated they saw this man fire the shotgun once at Blell when he ran into Monroe street from State street. At St. Luke's hospital surgeons said the pellets riddled Blell's right shoulder and that some of them lodged near his heart.

While the robber with the shotgun stood guard one of his companions scooped silverware valued at $1,500 and a quantity of gold and jewelry from the Peacock store window.

Vanish in Michigan Avenue.

After the shooting the two looters got into an automobile driven by the third confederate and speeded east to Michigan avenue, where they turned south.

Sergt. James Coleman said the steel picket used to shatter the window was similar to those of the fence around the Bridewell.

Blell is 58 years old and lives at 1131 North Mayfield avenue.

HOT IRON BANDITS BIND 7 IN HOME IN HUNT FOR $5,000

Two armed men last night entered the home of Charles J. Germain at 5923 Parnell avenue, bound seven persons with copper wire, threatened to torture them with a hot iron and left, after a thorough search of the house, with $85 and two fur coats.

The bound victims were Germain, his wife, Sylvia; his daughter, Hannah, 20 years old; his nephew, Homer Germain, 25 years old; Mrs. Frances Ristau, sister of Mrs. Germain; Henry Aldehoff, 6443 Eggleston avenue, and Miss Vera Zarr, 18 years old, of La Porte, Ind., who was visiting Miss Germain.

When Miss Germain answered the door bell the robbers asked for Homer and were admitted. Drawing pistols they asked Mrs. Germain "where she kept the $5,000 Homer had been talking about." Despite threats to burn her feet with an iron she denied there was any large sum in the house, but told where there was $70 in a purse. The robbers took the $70, and $15 more from Germain and the guests.

Wife Slugged in Hotel Bed on Mystery Trip

Mrs. Rose London, attractive young red haired housewife of San Diego, Cal., was near death last night in the County hospital while police sought a clew to the identity of the man who beat her with a gas pipe as she slept, robbed her of $38, and left her unconscious in a room of the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue, early yesterday.

Mrs. London is the wife of Jack London, manager of the delicatessen department of a San Diego downtown market. She was en route by bus to New York, but considerable mystery developed last night over the circumstances of her intended visit. Mrs. London's condition would not permit her to be questioned by the police.

Mystery in Brother's Death.

London declared last night in San Diego that his wife had been notified by a sister in New York that their brother, Abraham J. Ross, well to do druggist, was seriously injured in an automobile accident but would recover. Mrs. London doubted this information, her husband said, and left to learn the actual details for herself. When informed that Ross, instead of being injured by an auto, had actually been shot to death on Sept. 22 by his business partner in a quarrel over finances, London became hysterical and left at once for Chicago by plane.

Equally as puzzling to the police as her intended visit to New York were the circumstances surrounding the brutal assault on her in the hotel. Mrs. London registered there about 1 a. m., after her arrival on a bus from the west coast. When she did not answer a 7 o'clock call, a bell boy entered her room and found her unconscious on the bed, her night clothing stained and torn, and a two foot length of iron pipe lying nearby.

Attacked As She Sleeps.

At the county hospital physicians found Mrs. London had a skull fracture and other injuries. Her condition was considered critical. During one moment of semi-consciousness she muttered to policemen who were waiting to question her:

"After undressing I lay down to sleep with the lights on in the room. The next thing I remember is waking up here in the hospital. I don't know what happened."

It was evident, Capt. George O'Connor of the Central station said, that Mrs. London had been beaten while she slept. It also appeared, he said, that the marauder may have raped her. Physicians at the hospital said they were unable to determine if she had been attacked.

A Dearth of Clews.

A makeshift ladder leaning against the wall of an areaway on which the window of Mrs. London's room opened might have afforded the means by which her assailant entered, said Capt. O'Connor, but both the window sill and ladder showed no evidence of have been used recently. The police captain said it was possible that the slugger had used a pass key to open the room door.

There were no finger prints on the length of pipe with which the prowler beat her, investigators said. At the bottom of the areaway where it had been tossed lay Mrs. London's rifled pocketbook.

FLARES LIGHT UP FIELD; ITALIAN GUNS RAKE FOE

Warriors Slain as They Ford River.

WITH THE ITALIAN NORTHERN ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Oct. 27.—[Exchange Telegraph.]—Heavy fighting occurred during the night along the Setit river with the Ethiopian losses estimated at 100 dead and many wounded.

[The Setit river is in northwestern Ethiopia near the frontier of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.]

The Ethiopians apparently made a determined effort to invade Eritrea from the extreme northwest corner of Ethiopia and the adjacent Sudan.

Under cover of darkness a strong force of warriors tried to ford the river, but the new system of blockhouses devised to protect this section of the Eritrean frontier proved their worth.

Sheltered in the blockhouses and using Very lights, the Italians were able to frustrate the attack with rifle and machine gun volleys. They drove off the Ethiopians with heavy losses. Later, Italian outposts down the river reported many bodies had floated past.

Italians Take Village.

ITALIAN NORTHERN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 27.—[Reuter's.]—An important move in preparation for a general offensive was carried out today by the Black Shirt division commanded by Gen. Diamanti. This unit marched to the left from the right wing. Native troops under Gen. Pirzo-Biroli occupied the village of Adi Mesas.

Italian Army Advances.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 26 [Delayed in Transmission.]—(AP)—Italy's Eritrean army driving southward toward the Ethiopian stronghold of Makale was reported in official dispatches today to have won its way to water and an important new foothold in its advance into Ethiopia.

Troops under the command of Gen. Diamanti led a movement from Samiata to Adinefas in the Feres Mai valley on the northern front, calculated to give Gen. Ruggero Santini's main force protection from a flank attack—a favorite device of the Ethiopians.

The movement consisted of a nine mile penetration by the right half of the central column. The advance was described as a strategic move rather than one for real combat. Its success paved the way for a forward movement all along the northern line.

Central Column Pushes On.

At the same time the central column under Gen. Pirzio Biroli advanced twelve miles to occupy Feres Mai, the first advance of importance since the troops halted along a line between Aksum and Adigrat. Feres Mai is located in the midst of a mountain chain.

The movement was also said to have brought the army to an important water supply. The advance consisted of a turning movement around Mount Gual Azal, rising more than 8,000 feet above sea level, and bands of armed Ethiopians were reported retiring before the Italian forces.

[Mount Gual Azai is about 20 miles slightly southeast of Adowa, one of the towns earlier occupied by the Italians.]

A good portion of the advance over the rough terrain was carried on almost in the clouds. The advance started from Samiata, which is over 10,000 feet high. When it was halted the soldiers were still at an altitude of 7,500 feet.

Because of the high altitude and rarefied air the movement was made with the greatest of difficulties. The territory is mostly barren mountain and steep gorges.

Follow Caravan Trail.

A caravan trail exists in this territory, and troops of the central column advanced along this.

When they reach a position permitting coördination with the left column the latter force will advance from positions presently maintained at Edaga Hamus.

The advance consisted mostly of an operation to straighten out the line between Aksum and Adigrat. Feres Mai is located in the midst of a mountain chain.

The movement was also said to have brought the army to an important water supply. The advance consisted of a turning movement around Mount Gual Azal, rising more than 8,000 feet above sea level, and bands of armed Ethiopians were reported retiring before the Italian forces.

The Italians swept forward through territory prepared for occupation by constant submissions of local Ethiopian chieftains.

There are important concentrations of Ethiopians south of the Takazze river facing the right column of the invaders, but Italian officials said they did not believe the Ethiopians would be able to make a flank attack because of the difficulty they would have in crossing the river.

Three Columns Move North.

MOGADISCIO, Somaliland, Oct. 26.—[Delayed.]—(AP)—The southern Italian army of Gen. Rudolfo Graziani, driving toward Harrar, has been split into three main columns.

The army began in two columns, one marching up the Webbe Shibeli valley, which points toward Addis Ababa. The other, farther to the east, started at Ualual.

In the last few days the second column has been divided, with one division of the middle column threatening Gorahai, which Graziani has announced he expects to take soon.

Forts Are Captured.

During the recent fighting a number of forts, some cannon, many machine guns and a thousand rifles were captured.

Rain and boggy ground, it was reported, have impeded the advance only slightly. Some of the heaviest fighting took place during the downpour. As the troops advanced they reached higher ground, where the weather was cooler and healthier.

50,000 Gorge Raw Meat.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Fifty thousand fierce warriors gorged themselves with raw meat before Emperor Haile Selassie today, but the little monarch ate none. Instead he dallied with a plateful of vegetables and sipped a glass of tea to show the fighters he was with them.

The monster feast was served in relays to five armies of 10,000 warriors each, 312 cows having been slaughtered for the banquet.

Afterward the emperor addressed the primitive soldiers, calling upon them again to "show true scriptural hospitality, courtesy and kindness to all foreigners in the land."

[A Reuter's dispatch from Addis Ababa said Ethiopian commanders on all fronts had been warned to expect a general Italian offensive tomorrow, the anniversary of the Fascism march on Rome.]

Await Italian Attack.

Ras Seyoum, the Ethiopian commander in the north, informed the emperor troop movements along the Adowa-Aksum-Adigrat line indicated a general offensive was imminent. A message also was received from the commander at Gorahai, in the south, saying he expected an Italian attack momentarily.

[From Harrar Reuter's reported fears were current that the attack on Gorahai already had begun with destruction of the wireless station, since the station had not been heard from for 24 hours. Normally it communicates with Harrar twice daily.

Ethiopia and the United States meantime, were brought a step closer today with establishment of the first district wireless communication between Addis Ababa and Washington, D. C.

With multiple aerials strung in the tall eucalyptus trees about the American legation, four husky navy operators succeeded in contacting all important American land and naval stations.

U. S. Signals Weak.

The Washington signals, however, were somewhat weak, necessitating the strengthening of the apparatus here.

This emergency wireless was established as a precaution against Italian bombardment of the government radio station. The emergency station is manned by John L. Crauthen, Auburn, Ala.; John W. Anslow, Arlington Heights, Mass.; Cecil F. Cavanah, Rocky Ford, Colo., and Walter E. Tanner of Bluff City, Kas.

Since they were versed neither in the ancient language nor in scriptural literature available, the marines appealed to relatives and friends to send them some first class detective stories and romances and some serious books for study.

Addis Ababa is dead as a cemetery at night, and the marines' only diversions are reading in the evening and writing news in the daytime.

ITALIAN ARMIES DRIVE ON AMID PEACE JUGGLING

Find Time Is Working for Mussolini's Cause.

ROME, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini's armies trudged deeper into Africa tonight, even as Europe's statesmen juggled "amicable" settlements of his war on Ethiopia.

Premier Laval of France, the peacemaker, still was reported seeking an arrangement to give Italy land and economic rights in Ethiopia and safety for new frontiers.

But Il Duce went ahead to take the land and appropriate the rights, looking after his own protection.

March on Makale.

When the 14th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome is celebrated tomorrow, Italian troops are expected to be marching on Makale, the next important objective of the northern invasion.

Their second big advance began yesterday. Dispatches said native Eritrean troops had occupied two more towns in a determined southward drive.

At home, Il Duce warned in ringing tones his country would respond with "heroisms" to sanctions, which he termed the "most odious of injustices."

See Time Working for Italy.

Well-informed, but unofficial quarters said "time, the great physician," was working for Italy in four ways. They are:

1. When there is a "settlement," Italy expects to have a firm grasp on what she wants, and it then will be only a question of accepting what she has accomplished.

2. Sanctions, these sources asserted, look each day more like unwanted children of bickering parents who are likely to leave them on Great Britain's doorstep.

3. Ethiopia allegedly is disintegrating. "Hundreds" of chiefs and "thousands" of warriors, Italians claim, have joined the Fascists in both the north and south.

4. The world, these Italian observers contended, already is less hostile to Mussolini's "expedition," and is shocked at the idea that Britain might have gone to war with Italy. It also must contrast Italy's "liberation" of Ethiopian slaves with the league of nations' "failure" to induce Emperor Haile Selassie to free them, they said.

Door Open for Settlement.

Il Duce, it was stated in informed quarters, is keeping the door open for a settlement which he thinks should be acceptable to the league.

These persons insisted Ethiopia has not fulfilled league requirements and therefore is not entitled to Geneva's backing. Eventually, they argued, this view will be accepted and Italy will be given credit for having remained in the league with most of its members against her.

Mussolini today sighted the billions of lire in gold he needs for his war. Financial experts said his huge 61,270,000,000 lire 5 per cent conversion loan was half subscribed and was certain to yield him the 10,000,000,000 lire [about $800,000,000] in fresh money which Fascist leaders have estimated as the eventual total cost of the conflict. [The lire is worth about 8 cents.]

Il Duce now has 4,000,000,000 lire in gold in the Bank of Italy. In addition, he has about 5,000,000,000 lire security in credits abroad which could be obtained by requisitioning the holdings of Italians.

Independent financial authorities calculated bank deposits and credits of Italians abroad aggregated 1,000,000,000 lire, and stocks and bonds, 4,000,000,000.

Gold, these authorities said, probably will continue to flow out of Italy for some time because the government feels securities abroad should be held until prices are better.

Italian Airmen Strafe Makale; Dodge Bullets of Defenders

BY MORTIMER DURAND.
(Special correspondent of London Daily Telegraph and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.)
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 27.—As a passenger in an Italian fighting plane I was present today during brisk machine gun actions between three Caproni bombers of The Desperate—death or glory—squadron, led by Count Galeazzo Ciano, Premier Mussolini's son-in-law, and Ethiopian anti-aircraft gunners.

The formation, on one of its daily reconnaissance flights, raced across the front line at Amba Ougher on Wrara pass, spearhead of the Italian advance in northern Ethiopia. Having crossed the mountain range the bombers dipped and flew at a speed of 110 miles an hour toward Makale, near where a concentration of Ethiopian troops has been reported.

Circle Over Rooftops.

On reaching the town, which is 60 miles southeast of Adowa, the formation broke up and the planes circled low over the roofs. Most of the white houses were thatched. Only a few have corrugated iron roofs.

Lying under an aft machine gun position in the tail of one of the planes I could clearly see Ethiopians squatting at their machine guns, while others were rapidly pushing their weapons into position. As we circled, the Ethiopian gunners opened bursts of fire. The second pilot of my plane flung himself upon his machine gun and replied.

Occasionally I caught glimpses of the other machines as they swooped down and fired on the gunners below.

After this brief bit of action the Italian bombers resumed formation and continued reconnoitering over Amba Adai.

The village of Adi Aidaro appeared to be desolate. The inhabitants had fled into their houses, presumably imagining that the thatched roofs could afford some protection from the bullets of the machine guns.

We then turned and flew back over Makale, where the Ethiopians again opened fire. Ciano's adjutant, Capt. Casero, afterward told me he calculated that fifty machine guns had been firing at the squadron.

Over Makale our formation dispersed and the planes again circled low about the town, returning the Ethiopians' fire. I saw one machine gun crew break up and run for cover. The gun apparently had been put out of action.

Resuming the formation after this second action, we proceeded in the direction of Tembien, where Ras Seyoum, governor of Tigre province and Ethiopian commander in this area, is believed to be waiting with a large army to resist the Italian advance.

Fly Over Deep Canyon.

Near Abbi Addi, we flew over the deep canyon of the Takazze river toward Cela Ceccanu. The formation again dispersed and the planes flew low over the twisting, precipitous gorges and mountains which are thinly sprinkled with scrub. The rugged landscape was terribly desolate.

We saw only a few fields in the patchwork of green and brown under cultivation. There were many barren tracts. Some mountain sides were cultivated in terraces.

The Italian observers were again cheated of a glimpse of the Ethiopian army which was cleverly hidden. Failing to locate the Ethiopians, Ciano flew over Aksum and Adowa and crossed the river Mareb on the trip back to his base.

The flight covered 500 miles. None of the bombers was damaged by gun fire.

FRANCE ORDERS BERRE NAVAL AIR BASE KEPT UP TO FULL STRENGTH

PARIS, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Air ministry officials reported tonight that the Berre naval air base—France's "eye on the Mediterranean"—will be kept at full strength.

The crack base for the key air forces of southern France and North Africa is one of the world's most powerful. Marseilles-bound travelers from Paris pass the gigantic bottle-necked bay of Berre on the regular rail route, but they see nothing of the three air bases cleverly concealed along the bay's many narrow fingers. Off Istres is the military air base. Off Marignane are the hangars of Air France and affiliated commercial lines to Africa and the far east. The third and greatest base is near Berre—home of the watchdogs of the sea only 30 minutes flight from the Italian border.

Fishermen have been moved and tourists barred. Hundreds of fast, modern seaplanes take to the air daily, roaring in formation or speeding eastward along the coast to the naval base at Toulon. More than 1,500 men are stationed at the lake base.

ITALIANS TO HUNT GOLD IN ETHIOPIA; WILL OPEN MINES

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The dream of gold is one of the powerful attractions which is drawing Italy to Ethiopia.

Standing at the bottom of a gold mine pit 300 feet below the surface of the earth near the Ethiopian border, Fedele Tazzer, director of mines of the Eritrean government, declared today Italy has great hopes in the gold possibilities of the African empire. Experts are being sent from Rome to conduct a survey of prisoners and liberated slaves who will be employed in gold mines.

The mines director said he believed there was abundant gold in Ethiopia, including the territory already occupied by Italy, and that it was "only waiting to be developed." He said he would make an intensive prospecting tour of the occupied region soon.

"Ethiopia had a gold production last year of only 330 pounds," Tazzer said. "Undoubtedly it would be possible to increase this many times. All the natives do there now is search for it along the streams. Often they find large sized nuggets."

IL DUCE WARNED BRITAIN STANDS ON LEAGUE PLANS

Rejects Rome's Offers as Not Enough.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The British foreign office, which for two days has studied Premier Mussolini's peace feelers, tonight let Rome know that this government still considers the league of nations' settlement scheme, drawn up by the league committee of five previous to the outbreak of war as the only basis for negotiating the terms of a settlement.

The British, who have definitly rejected Il Duce's offers as inadequate, have, however, conveyed the idea to him through French channels that he might submit counter proposals to the plan of the committee of five [Great Brtain, France, Poland Spain, and Turkey], and that this body might then consider them.

It was understood tonight that this was as far as the British expected to go at this moment in delaying the application of sanctions, although foreign office spokesmen themselves admit that the application of economic sanctions cannot possibly be effective with so many states renegging.

Seek End of Fascism.

In British quarters is was stressed tonight that Anglo-French coöperation to deter Mussolini is now much more effective than it was a week ago. They say here in fact that if they can get the French to coöperate sufficiently there is no doubt Mussolini will cave in on his African campaign.

It is an open secret in London now that maneuvering is going on in various continental centers envisaging a return of constitutional government in Italy in case the Fascist régime should not survive a hard blow to its prestige.

It was reported in certain Italian circles in London that former statesmen of democratic Italian governments are being sounded out on their willingness to participate in the formation of a new government, should Premier Mussolini's régime be shaken so as to make his position as dictator untenable.

It is said Il Duce might himself seek the coöperation of these other leaders as a means of appeasing the opposition elements in Italy.

Belittles Navy "Scare."

LONDON, Oct. 28 [Monday] (AP)—The widely known British naval critic, Lord Strabolgi, writing in the Daily Herald, criticized Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin today for raising what he said was a false "obsolete navy" scare.

"The three British capital ships of post-war design referred to by the prime minister [Nelson, Rodney, and Hood] could engage the whole Italian fleet and blow it out of the water with little risk to themselves, and every naval officer knows it," Lord Strabolgi said.

He quoted Baldwin's opening speech in the election campaign in which the prime minister said "only three of our capital ships today are of post-war design," then went on to say "Mr. Baldwin omitted to explain these three British capital ships are the only ones in the world of post-war design."

Names Two U. S. Ships.

"The only battleships in the world comparable to the Nelson and Rodney," Lord Strabolgi asserted, "are the West Virginia and Colorado of the United States navy, which were built to war time design and completed in 1923 with armament of eight 16 inch guns each and a displacement of 32,000 tons."

He added that American admirals were "perfectly right" in complaining "congress failed to vote necessary funds for Uncle Sam's navy to be built up to a parity with our own."

ATTACKERS FRACTURE IOWAN'S SKULL.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Louis Holmes, 40, suffered a fractured skull today when three assailants attacked him in an alley near his home. His condition is serious.

LEAGUE IS GIVEN FRENCH PROMISE TO BOYCOTT ITALY

U. S. Reply on Sanctions Pleases Geneva.

GENEVA, Oct. 27.—(AP)—France notified the league of nations today she has accepted economic sanctions against Italy. Thus she joined Great Britain in a drive to isolate Benito Mussolini because he has made war on Ethiopia.

Both France and Britain now have announced their readiness to enforce the most powerful sanction—an economic boycott of Italy—by agreeing to buy nothing from the Fascist state and by stopping the exportation to Italy of certain key products, especially those needed in the manufacture of armaments, munitions and implements of war.

Asks Four Days' Time.

Premier Pierre Laval telegraphed the French acceptance of economic sanctions. He informed league officials these would be applied on the date to be fixed by the league, but asked four days' time to take the necessary steps.

The league's "general staf" of 52 nations meets Thursday to set the date for application of economic sanctions.

The United States' reply to the league invitation for an expression on its action against Italy also reached Geneva. Hugh Wilson, the American envoy, delivered it to the league secretariat.

In the form of a communication from Secretary of State Hull to Augusto de Vasconsellos, chairman of the league's committee of coördination, the note created a distinct sensation.

Special significance was attached to the closing sentence: "It [the United States] views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war."

35 Nations Accept.

Guatemala also accepted all five league sanctions today, and Siam accepted the arms embargo. Thirty-five countries now have announced acceptance of the arms embargo recommendation, which also includes the lifting of any such bars to Ethiopia.

Fourteen nations have agreed to enforce financial sanctions intended to cut off Italian cash and credits from abroad. Seven have accepted the double-barreled boycott, agreeing to buy nothing from Italy and to refrain from selling her certain essential products.

Four countries have subscribed to the mutual assistance project, designed to aid countries which might be hit economically by joining in the enforcement of sanctions.

Will Study Nutrition.

All members of the league have been requested to inform Geneva tomorrow as to the latest date on which they believe they can apply economic sanctions.

At the same time renewed attention was being given to a study of the means of removing the causes of war which many regard as fundamentally economic.

The international labor organization decided to form a special committee with United States membership to explore the great problem of nutrition, the idea being that a means must be found to furnish sufficient nourishment to the world's masses if causes of profound disorders are to be eliminated.

The inquiry was closely connected with the problem raised recently by Sir Samuel Hoare, the British foreign secretary, who said a means must be devised to obtain more equitable distribution of raw materials.

Inquiry in authoritative German and Japanese circles elicited the opinion Germany and Japan probably will not reply to the league's communication concerning sanctions for several days.

ITALY'S FIRST MEDALS FOR BRAVERY IN WAR AWARDED BY DE BONO

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Emilio de Bono, Italian commander of colonial forces, awarded today the first medals for bravery in the Eritrean campaign.

A silver medal was presented to Infantry Lieutenant Mario Morgantini, who was killed in action, and a bronze medal to a top sergeant who carried on when Morgantini was shot down.

A bronze medal was also awarded to a member of the carbinieri—a mounted police official—who led a band of native troops on a dangerous and successful pursuit of "a larger enemy detachment."

Fear of Ethiopian Air Raid Fades; Asmara Is Lighted

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Italian authorities gave orders today that this city, which has been shrouded in darkness every night since the beginning the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, may enjoy its ordinary illumination again. No Ethiopian airplane has made an appearance any nearer than Assab, several hundred miles away from here.

POPE CALLS FOR PEACE PRAYERS IN RADIO BLESSING

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Pope Pius today urged prayers for peace in a radio blessing closing the Lima, Peru, Eucharistic congress.

"God wills that the Christian spirit of true peace be spread over Europe," he said, "and over Africa, where the peace is disturbed and in peril of further misfortunes."

Eucharistic Congress Closes.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Celebration of mass today by the papal delegate began the final ceremonies of the Eucharistic congress. The ceremonies were interrupted to receive the blessing of Pope Pius, broadcast from the Vatican.

More than 100,000 persons took part last night in one of the largest religious demonstrations Peru has ever seen. They paraded to Eucharistic field for the services of "men concentration," which continued until the conclusion of mass at 3 a. m. today.

Urges Special Passports for Italian War Deserters

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Sylvia Pankhurst, noted British feminist, today appealed to the league of nations to grant special passports for deserters from the Italian army and for other anti-Fascists who have fled from Italy. She said hundreds of deserters in Switzerland, Austria, and France do not have the necessary papers for international travel.

ITALIANS TO CREATE LEPER COLONIES FOR ETHIOPIANS IN NORTH

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Italian authorities today proceeded with plans for the establishment of colonies in the occupied Tigre region, in Ethiopia, to shelter hundreds of lepers.

Prof. Aloo Castellani, high sanitary commissioner of Eritrea, said the lepers are particularly numerous around the holy city of Aksum, possibly because they went there to be cured or in the hope of living off pilgrims.

"The lepers are of two classes," said Prof. Castellani, "those with ulcers whose ailment is contagious and who must be placed in colonies, and the lesser cases who will be given treatment and permitted to remain at home."

Castellani, who wore the uniform of a general of the sanitary corps, once studied at Tulane university, New Orleans.

Marshal Badoglo visited army headquarters in his study of the campaign, which he will personally report on to Premier Mussolini.

BRITISH AIR LINE ORDERS 15 PLANES; TO FLY ATLANTIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Orders for fifteen mammoth flying boats shortly will be placed by the government subsized Imperial Airways at a cost of nearly $6,500,000, it was learned tonight. This is hailed in commercial aviation circles as another step toward regular trans-Atlantic air service, but the company refrained from commenting.

When the order is completed Imperial Airways will have twenty-nine giant sky ships, each powered with four engines, having a range of 1,500 miles and cruising speed of nearly 160 miles per hour.

In addition to carrying the mails the new liners will provide luxurious day and night accommodation for long distance passangers and, according to present plans, will be ready for service early in 1937.

PACIFIC AIR CLIPPER REACHES MIAMI, FLA., FOR HER FINAL TESTS

Miami, Fla., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Pan American Airways' giant China Clipper, destined for trans-Pacific service, arrived to undergo final tests here today—the eve of the eighth birthday of Uncle Sam's international air transport system.

Piloting the 25 ton flying boat on its seven hour, 1,200 mile hop from Baltimore was Capt. Edwin C. Musick, who flew the first regularly scheduled plane from Key West to Havana, Cuba, Oct. 28, 1927. The landing here was at 3:01 p. m. [E. S. E.], the takeoff from Baltimore unofficially timed at 7:17 a. m.

America's spreading wings for foreign commerce this week will move South American trade marts two days nearer the United States. Fast airliners will trim the 8,500 airway miles from Buenos Aires to New York or Chicago, via Miami, to six days, instead of the present eight.

Returning to the capital after a trip on the government yacht Sequoia with President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace issued a statement commending the nation's farmers for their favorable vote.

Cites Farmers' Triple Duty.

"The referendum means," Wallace said, "that corn-hog farmers of the country will be doing their best to increase hog production next year in such a way as will not bring about excessive overproduction in subsequent years.

"They realize their triple duty: To the consumer, to the cause of soil conservation, and to the maintenance of a fair income for themselves."

"It is only natural that we should be pleased with the apparent approval of adjustment given by corn and hog farmers," said Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, as he watched the returns come in at Washington.

Await Final Results.

"If the final results bear out present indications another voluntary contract will be offered for both corn and hogs," he added.

In a formal statement Davis emphasized earlier assurances that the AAA would seek a 25 to 30 per cent increase in hog production next year, saying the "need for increasing the present pork supply of the nation . . . will be kept in mind in plans for the next adjustment contract."

Asserting that early returns indicated the total vote might exceed the 579,716 ballots cast last year, Davis said "in that event we would, in my opinion, have an expression which would effectively represent the views of the men who produce most of the country's corn and hogs."

Political Issue Sidetracked.

He also declared the nation's farmers did not make a political issue of the question, asserting they had "voted economics, not politics." He voiced the opinion that the AAA was "not an issue as such."

Some observers at Washington found significance in this paragraph in Davis' statement:

"In both the 1934 and 1935 programs the producers developed and followed directions for use of land taken out of corn which greatly stimulated planting of legumes and other soil building crops. The new contract will be more specific on that point. In common with other new contracts offered for 1936, it will be required that an area at least equal to the number of acres withdrawn from production of crops covered by the contract must be added to the normal area on the farm devoted to soil conserving and erosion preventing uses."

That statement was directly in line with President Roosevelt's comment last week, when he outlined a permanent AAA and said more attention should be paid to soil conservation.

Explaining previously expressed fears that a new program might be defeated in the referendum, Davis said that the AAA officials had been afraid that a heavy vote would not be cast. Had many producers in the corn belt failed to vote, he said, accepting the theory that a new contract would be offered anyhow, he felt there would have been danger of an adverse ballot.

While AAA officials discounted political significance of the balloting, some informed quarters held that the results of the referendum might tend to remove the AAA as a 1936 Presidential campaign issue.

Last Year's Foes Converted.

Looking over the state tabulations, Davis expressed delight that preliminary returns indicated that a majority of noncontract signers voting this year favored a new program.

He recalled that last October a majority of nonsigners voted against production control. Likewise, it was pointed out that a heavy vote of approval was indicated in the Kansas returns, whereas that state voted against a program last year.

Final official results were expected at Washington Tuesday night or Wednesday.

PLAN 4 YEAR PROGRAM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The New Deal probably will promulgate a new four-year corn-hog control program, Chester Davis, AAA administrator, announced tonight after receiving preliminary returns on yesterday's nation wide corn hog referendum.

All persons who raised corn or hogs on their farms this year were eligible to vote in the referendum. Whether or not they had signed an AAA contract last year made no difference in the right to vote. Production of corn or hogs in 1935 was the only prerequisite.

Approximately 4,500,000 farms in the country raise either corn or hogs, or both, the AAA estimates, and theoretically all these farmers could vote, each farmer being allowed one vote regardless of how many farms he operated. Actually, however, about 2,500,000 of these farmers raise corn or hogs strictly for their own use and are not interested in the corn hog reduction system, the AAA declares.

Returns from Every State.

Returns are expected from every state in the country. Corn-hog benefit checks were sent out to every state last year by the AAA. The largest returns, however, are expected from the big corn producing states, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, and South Dakota.

Votes are received through corn-hog allotment associations, the organizations, usually one to each county, which are formed by the farmers participating in the corn-hog program. There are 2,222 of these associations scattered over the 3,000 counties in the country.

The ballots presented the question "Do you favor a corn-hog adjustment program to follow the 1935 program, which expires Nov. 30, 1935?" Farmers were to vote "yes" or "no" to this question. There also was space to indicate whether the voter had or had not signed a contract last year.

There were 1,155,294 corn-hog contracts signed last year. Another 850,000 farmers are believed to have raised small amounts of corn or hogs for markets.

FLOODS KILL 2,000 IN HAITI

Arrow on map points to Haiti where 2,000 persons were reported dead or missing last night as the result of floods in the wake of a hurricane in the Caribbean sea. Most of the the destruction was wrought in southern peninsula. The region about Jeremie was the hardest hit. Bodies of 96 victims were recovered at Jacmel. In Honduras three women were buried alive in a landslide caused by heavy rains. Flood water inudated towns which also were damaged by the hurricane.

AUSTRIANS MOVE TO MAKE FASCIST PRINCE A REGENT

LINZ, Austria, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A high authority in the Fascist Heimwehr [Home Guard] and patriotic fatherland front said tonight that a definite movement has been started to make Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, now vice chancellor, the regent of Austria.

"The possibility that soon thereafter he might be proclaimed king must be reckoned with," this source asserted a few hours after the vice chancellor had reviewed 20,000 armed members of the Heimwehr in a parade similar to that in Vienna yesterday.

The parade was regarded widely as a demonstration of loyalty to Von Starhemberg in view of the recent elimination from the cabinet of Emil Fey, minister of the interior, at the vice chancellor's insistence.

The prince, who has often said he is in favor of ultimate establishment of the monarchy, in an address demanded that his Heimwehr troops keep on good terms with other private armies which will be associated with it in a new militia. He warned that the most strict discipline would be required "from new men of the new Austria, and history will record that you were pioneers in the creation of a new state."

PAROLED CONVICT ROBS CANDY SHOP ONCE TOO OFTEN

John De Belka, 26 years old, 2842 East 92d street, was paroled two weeks ago from Lincoln, Neb., reformatory after serving three years for robbery. On Friday he walked into a candy store at 6303 Cottage Grove avenue and robbed the manager, Miss Lorraine Kirchner, 219 West 72d street, of $12.

Yesterday De Belka again entered the candy store, robbed Miss Kirchner of $16, and fled in a taxi in which his brother-in-law, Robert Dawson, 1720 Vine street, was waiting. Miss Kirchner called for help, and Donald Cunliffe, 25 years old, 6201 Woodlawn avenue, another cab driver, gave chase in his own taxi.

He forced the other cab to the curb at 62d street and Drexel avenue, where De Belka jumped out and fled. Dawson was held for the police and told Sergt. John Krikava that De Belka could be found near Washington park, at 57th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Krikava and his squad went there and arrested De Belka. While being taken to the squad car, De Belka broke free, but surrendered when the policemen shot him in the left leg. Dawson, although believed to be innocent, was held for investigation.

ROOSEVELT PINS CAMPAIGN HOPE ON AAA, SOUTH

New Deal Will Continue Corn-Hog Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Indicating that he will depend for reelection on those states into which his farm program has poured the most money, plus the normally Democratic south, President Roosevelt has pushed the agricultural adjustment administration to the fore as a campaign issue.

This New Deal strategy became more evident today when Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, announced that the corn-hog program, most lucrative of them all, would be continued next year.

Checks Will Continue.

President Roosevelt himself put the AAA into the limelight by announcing this week the tentative plans for making it over from an "emergency" to a "permanent" agency. The AAA checks, he told the farmers, in effect, will continue to drop into the mail box as long as he is in office.

A few days before Davis directly challenged the Republican opposition in a speech entitled, "What Would You Do for Agriculture?"

Mr. Roosevelt, who needs only 266 votes in the electoral college in 1936, actually can muster 300 if he can hold the south true to the Democratic party and if he can carry those states where AAA cash payments have been the largest.

Sees Hope for Reëlection.

Thus he might hope for reëlection even though he loses his home state, New York, where Postmaster General James A. Farley will do his best to drum up another 47 electoral votes.

States where the AAA payments and the Roosevelt hopes are highest are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Washington, and Wisconsin. Together they have 139 votes in the electoral college. Combined with 173 votes from Southern states where normal Democratic majorities are being reënforced by AAA cotton checks, these 139 votes would give Mr. Roosevelt a comfortable majority.

GOVERNOR OF TEXAS UNABLE TO SLEEP AS FELON GOES TO CHAIR

Austin, Tex., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Gov. James V. Allred, recalling that in a nightmare he once visioned himself being carried to the electric chair by prison guards, said today "The decision to 'let a man go'—it's the most terrifying thing about being governor."

On execution night, he confided, he never sleeps a wink until the switch has been pulled, usually after midnight.

"Then I console myself that the matter has gone beyond my power," he said. "But it frightens me. I try to consider myself in that duty not as an individual but as governor, merely a part of the institution of government."

Today he is studying a case which last week caused him to awaken in alarm. He feared his secretary had forgotten to notify prison authorities of a 30 day reprieve. Alarmed, he called the prison, was assured the man had not been executed, and then went back to sleep.

POLICE RESPECT SUICIDE'S CURSE ON LOVE NOTES

Hands Off, Says Student's Letter; To Go to Grave.

Englewood police kept intact yesterday a bundle of love letters found in the room of Vernon Francis Lamont, 22 years old, a chemist and student, after he drank a fatal dose of poison late Saturday at the home of his parents, 6950 Eggleston avenue.

The letters were written in German by "Lem" Wolf, who was identified as Miss Helene Wolf of the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial Y. W. C. A. at 1001 North Dearborn street. Miss Wolf is known to friends as "Lem" and as "Tind."

"Any one who opens it will be damned," wrote young Lamont of the bundle of letters in a suicide note. Police said they had made no attempt yet to have the letters translated and had not yet decided whether to call Miss Wolf as a material witness at the inquest, which will be held today at 316 West 63d street.

Miss Wolf was not at her room in the Y. W. C. A. residence yesterday where, according to officials, she has lived for more than a year. They said she is a nurse for the Infant Welfare association.

Lamont was a student at the University college, the downtown institution of the University of Chicago, and worked as a chemist in the laboratories of Armour & Co. His body was found in bed by his mother, Mrs. Edith Lamont.

His note asked that the letters be buried with him, that no one see his body after death, and contained a request to his brother Robert to "tell Lem I won't be able to see her any more after classes."

Good automobiles take people places
Good advertising takes products places

Despite astonishing refinements each year, the basic concepts of both remain the same

It was a pioneer in the automobile field who first defined motor cars as "Transportation". In so doing, he established a policy which revolutionized the motor industry throughout the world. For up to that time, the adolescent automotive industry had described its wares as "Pleasure Cars". Its scope was limited.

In those days, some 30 years ago, advertisers held the same short-sighted views of advertising. It was considered as no more than "General Publicity" and "Keeping the name before the public". It, too, was limited. Like the motor car, it was identified by the display noise it made, rather than by the distance it would carry an advertiser.

Advertising First Defined

Just as one man revolutionized the concept of the motor car by being the first to define it as "Transportation", Lord & Thomas were the first to lift advertising out of its early narrow groove by defining it as salesmanship-in-print. "Give the consumer, in an interesting way, the Reason-Why it is in his interest to buy your wares." In 30 years, no better definition has challenged it. In 30 years, no comparable list of clients have profited so proportionately by the hard application of this basic principle, as practiced by Lord & Thomas. We speak from experience gained from clients placing through us more than $500,000,000 in advertising in the past 63 years—$180,000,000 of it in the last five years of the depression.

New Models on Old Principles

While automotive manufacture has never departed from the basic principle of transportation which brought good cars within the reach of most, each year brings new refinements. The modern streamlined marvels which pick their sleek way through today's traffic would choke at the sight of a high-hipped old pioneer model chugging along. Yet the same combustion concept runs them both, unchanged.

Advertising Shows New Accessories

In the same way, Lord & Thomas has undertaken—day by day, year by year—to improve and refine its original concept of advertising as salesmanship-in-print. In new art treatment, in putting research to ever more exacting tasks, in copy testing, and in radio showmanship, Lord & Thomas exhibits have continued to draw the crowds. Yet the basic concept remains the same. Nor will it change, despite new models, colorful sales appeals, and the subtle consumer attractions which distinguish each year's campaigns.

Is your Advertising Appeal Outmoded?

Check your advertising for its value as salesmanship-in-print. Is it taking your product places? Perhaps its running costs are high—it may be knocking from the wrong kind of Reason-Why fuel. Perhaps it needs one or two 1936 sales accelerators. Some of our greatest sales trips are being made these days with products in which others failed to find the winning Transportation Idea.

NEW DEAL URGED TO HALT MENACE OF EXPERIMENTS

Liberty League Attacks "Half Baked Theories."

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The administration's experimentations were denounced as "dangerous" and as based on "half-baked theories" by the American Liberty league tonight in a pamphlet which analyzed ten phases of the government's activities and called for an end of these efforts.

Subjects dealt with were rural resettlement, Alaskan colonization, subsistence homesteads, the National Youth administration, public schools, civil service, NRA jobs, unemployment, the AAA, and monetary policies.

As for the latter the league said, "The theory that prices can be controled by manipulation of the value of gold has been repudiated by monetary authorities of eminent standing throughout the world."

Failures Are Admitted.

"Even high administration officials," it added, "have admitted that the experiment with this theory has proved it to be fallacious. This experimentation has been a major factor in the continuance of uncertainties which prevent a revival of world trade."

In its appraisal of the results of the experimentation in general and in making "suggestions for improvement," the pamphlet said:

"The experimentations of various kinds pursued by the administration have shown results vastly different from those promised. Fantastic theories have failed to stand the test of trial. Manipulation of economic factors has produced complications leading to a new assortment of evils. Projects coated with the sanctity of social reform have failed to bestow benefits except of a paternalistic character which weaken the fiber of the people. Through many of the experiments runs a purpose to change the institutions which have grown up under the constitution.

Mounting Costs Cited.

"The failure of experiments might be tolerated for a short period in an acute emergency or for a longer time if involving no substantial drain upon the treasury. Not only have the administration's half-baked theories proved misguided, but the cost of experimentation has been tremendous. Annual expenditures of the federal government have been double those of the period before the depression.

"The continuance of an unbalanced budget threatens difficulties more alarming than anything that heretofore has occurred. There is increasing recognition of the fact, as demonstrated in the case of the NRA, that recovery is proceeding in spite of, rather than because of, experimentation.

The present situation demands an end of experimentation and not merely a breathing spell. Such a course will facilitate a return to sound fiscal policies and to principles consistent with the constitution, as well as assure a marked improvement in business conditions."

Homestead Plan Assailed.

The league illustrated the workings of the governmental experiment with substance homesteads by a discussion of what has happened at Beedsville, W. Va., which project, it stated, "remains as an example of what happens when misguided zealots obtain access to the public treasury." It charged that houses costing nearly $8,000 are being sold to homesteaders for an average of $4,900, with payments extending over thirty years.

SUSPECT TORRIO AS INVOLVED IN GANG KILLING

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The figure of Johnny Torrio, the Sheepshead Bay Italian who cherished a $220,000 hate for Dutch Schultz, rose out of the underworld today to be tagged as the "fixer" behind the death of his harried enemy last week with three of his henchmen.

The hoodlum, who fled Chicago with a fortune after machine gun slugs shot his jaw away, has been living in "retirement" in Queens county. But that was merely a pose. Police were convinced today that he imported the gunmen who killed Schultz. He did so, they were sure, from double motives of hatred and greed.

He hated Schultz because Dutch got him into a bonding company which lost $220,000 of his cash and none of Schultz's. He was greedy because he was a partner of Ciro Terranova, Augie Pisano, and Charles [Lucky] Luciano in the "Big Six" syndicate seeking undisputed domination of New York's multiple rackets.

And it was greed, the office of Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey is convinced, that will explain the mysterious disappearance of "Bo" Weinberg, once Schultz's chief assistant. Bo isn't dead, Dewey is known to feel, although he has refused to say so.

Postpone Return of Siam's Schoolboy King, Ananda

BANGKOK, Siam, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The return of 10 year old King Ananda from Switzerland has been postponed, it was announced officially today, following an agreement between the council of regency and the council of state. Ananda's return—he has been in a Swiss school—originally was expected next month. It would be "inconvenient," the announcement stated, for him to come home now, and he probably will not make the trip until next year.

THREE AUTOISTS STRIKE HELPLESS CRIPPLE AND RUN

Victim of Wanton Driver Dies in Hospital.

A cripple, 60 years old, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by three automobiles as he attempted to hobble on his crutches across Warren avenue at Western avenue. None of the three drivers stopped after the accident.

Witnesses told the police that the driver of the first car paid no attention to a trafic signal, and that the crippled man, having stepped off the curb in the knowledge that he had the right of way, was making a futile effort to get back to the curb when he was felled.

Both Crutches, Both Legs Broken.

So great was the force with which he was hit that both his crutches were broken and one was tossed nearly a hundred feet. The first car increased speed and disappeared. Then, as the victim's broken body lay prone on the wet pavement, it was run over by the other two, which also hurried on.

The cripple, who was not identified, died in the County hospital of his injuries, which included a skull fracture, internal injuries, and compound fractures of both legs.

The police of the Warren avenue station, stirred by the wholesale heartlessness of the motorists, started a wide search for all three, despite utter lack of clews.

Couple Victims of Train.

Mrs. Pauline White, 66 years old, 3113 South Maple avenue, Brookfield, was killed last evening and her husband, William, 74 years old, a retired school teacher, was critically injured when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a southbound Chicago and North Western train at Graceland avenue in Des Plaines.

White had turned off the Northwest highway, which parallels the railroad tracks. Glen Thompson, a flagman, was on duty at the crossing. He said that although he waved his reg flag frantically as the train approached the driver, apparently because of the light rain, failed to see him.

Drives Into Side of Freight.

Eric Anderson, 28 years old, of Orland Park, was killed when he drove his automobile into the side of a moving freight train at 96th street and Harlem avenue in Worth township yesterday. Three men riding in Anderson's car escaped with cuts and bruises. The machine crashed against a tank car, severing the air hose on the 65 car train which was being moved to the Bensenville yards of the Indiana Harbor Belt railway.

At 4 p. m. yesterday 787 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In that period 613 were killed and 14,160 were injured in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits.

Hit-Run Driver Kills Cyclist.

In Joliet, Howard Brown, 20 years old, 132 Argyle street, Joliet, was fatally injured yesterday when the mortorcycle he was riding was struck by an unidentified automobile. Brown died of a broken neck while en route to St. Joseph's hospital.

Miss Grace Ergang, 19 years old, 5213 West Quincy street, and her escort, Vernon Knoll, 19 years old, 1909 South Halsted street, were seriously injured in an automobile collision at Belmont and Thatcher avenues, River Grove, during the day. The second car, driven by Arthur Lamont, 29 years old, 2606 Newcastle avenue, turned over, but Lamont and his three passengers escaped injury.

Identify Injured Pedestrian.

A man critically injured by an automobile at 47th street and Talman avenue Saturday was identified yesterday as Frank Sauer, 46 years old, 4623 South Talman avenue. Edward Tralewski, 19 years old, 5005 South Wood street, told police Sauer walked into the side of his car. He was held pending the outcome of the pedestrian's injuries.

All three lived at Centerville, Cal.

Two Die in Crash.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Two persons were burned to death at Manhattan Beach today in the crash of their light monoplane. They were Ralph Wagner, pilot, and Jack Kelger, passenger. Witnesses said the plane stalled in midair and then plunged to the ground.

Washington, N. J., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Hamburger steak, flanked by potatoes, was too much today for four of nine prisoners on a hunger strike. Three wedding anniversaries in one family, which fall on today, were celebrated yesterday at the home of Nicholai Johannsen, 72 years old, and his wife, Magdalene, 70, of 8939 South Irving avenue. The event marked the 50th year of their marriage, the 20th anniversary of their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Beckmann, 7630 Vernon avenue, and the 11th wedding date of their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Johannsen, 8553 South Hermitage avenue.

TOWNSEND ARMY GOES HOME WITH PENSION VISIONS

9,000 Cheer Final Cry for Mass Spending.

Cheered by 9,000 followers, Dr. Francis E. Townsend closed the first national convention of Townsendites here yesterday with an address predicting success for the old age pension plan bearing his name. At the close of his speech Dr. Townsend led his disciples in a mass pledge before they walked out of the International amphitheater at Union stockyards.

"The Townsend plan must succeed!" they chanted after their leader. "I therefore pledge my allegiance to its principles, its founders, its leaders, and to all loyal coworkers, and rededicate myself to maintain the democratic spirit and form of government in America."

Many Hopefuls Shake His Hand.

Many in the crowd lingered to shake the hand of the man they believe is leading all persons over 60 years old to government pensions of $200 a month, as he promised in his final address. "We propose that all deserving citizens who reach that age be given an adequate and dependable buying power and assigned the task of creating and stabilizing the market for goods," he told them.

"A universal transaction tax of 2 per cent, levied upon the business of the country," he said, "will, in a short time, produce abundance of revenue for the retirement of 8,000,000 old folks on $200 a month. This, in a few years, will produce a surplus that, if applied, would wipe out all national indebtedness and put our country on a pay-as-you-go basis," Dr. Townsend said.

Spending Solves Problem.

This "standing army" of 8,000,000 spenders will solve the vital economic problem of overproduction, according to Dr. Townsend. "There will be no large useless class of nonspenders," he said. "This plan of wealth distribution will at once bring about a new and vigorous prosperity in which all who wish to serve may find opportunity to do so, and for this opportunity and the new and generous prosperity that would follow, all should be willing and be compelled to pay."

Cites Destructive Taxation.

He said if the nation ceased taxing itself for the cost of "maintaining 20 to 30 millions in idleness that is destructive to the growth of decent citizenship" the wheels of industry might again be started and kept in motion. "Buying power," Dr. Townsend continued, "to be effective in stimulating general wealth must be gotten into the hands of the common folks whose wants and desires are as varied as humanity itself."

The final session included an address by R. E. Clements, national secretary of the Townsend clubs, and by Byrl A. Whitney, who read a paper prepared by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

VISITORS FLEE HELENA AFTER 2 SHARP QUAKES

Helena, Mont., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Two sharp earth shocks rocked Helena shortly after noon today, shaking down previously loosened chimneys, rattling dishes, and unnerving scores of visitors.

The United States weather bureau reported each movement continued for five or six seconds. No additional damage to the earthquake plagued city resulted.

The frequency of shocks increased between 6 p. m. Saturday until midday today, with twenty-four distinct movements recorded in that period. For seventeen days, since Oct. 12, Helena has experienced tremors.

Many out of state visitors who came to the capital city to view the wreckage caused by the severe quake of a week ago departed quickly for home after the earth contorted itself today.

NAZIS BAN USE OF MEAT, BUTTER BY ALL BUT WORKERS

Rhineland Faces Acute Food Shortage.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—The proclamation of the first meatless and butterless days in the rich Rhineland agricultural district of the Palatinate and the Saar was passed over silently in most German newspapers this morning, though the order was issued yesterday. The restrictions admittedly were to make it possible to save food for the hard working classes.

Two meatless and butterless days were prescribed for officials and three such days for Nazi party leaders by Joseph Buerckel, district leader for the combined provinces. The notice appeared in the official publication, National Socialist Rhine Front.

It is assumed newspapers fear that wide publicity given to the meatless and butterless days in the Palatinate and the Saar would create uneasiness in other parts of Germany.

To Show "Solidarity."

Buerckel declared in a statement that the meatless and butterless days were introduced "temporarily to illustrate the solidarity between the Nazis and the workers."

Therefore, all members of the party who are officials and their families were ordered to dispense with meat and butter on Wednesdays and Fridays. The Nazi district leaders and chiefs of the Storm Troopers, the Schutz Staffel [picked Hitler guards], Hitler Youth, women's organizations, and organizations of young girls are instructed to go without meat and butter on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Kiss Sends Jew to Jail.

While the official Voelkischer Beobachter today admitted that Nazis forbid members of the party to buy in Jewish shops in order to stamp them out as quickly as possible, German courts were passing sentences which show that they are not waiting for the promulgation of anti-Jewish laws to apply anti-Jewish principles.

A Hildesheim court sentenced a Jewish merchant to a month in prison for kissing a German salesgirl in a parked car. The prosecutor asked a sentence of three months in prison, but the judge ruled that, since the dealer was a world war front fighter and since the girl "failed to offer resistance to his advances, a month was sufficient."

The two were denounced by a girl employed in the merchant's shop who followed the car on a bicycle to spy on her employer. The kiss was branded by the court as an "insult of the Jewish people for the German people."

Bar Friendship with Jews.

There was the case of the 35 year old woman who sued the Stuermer, violently anti-Jewish periodical in Frankfurt-an-der-Oder, because in one of its numerous display posters it denounced her for "still speaking in the friendly second person [du] with a Jewish woman named Regina."

The court ruled the plaintiff had no right to complain because:

"She was still a friend of Regina and occasionally went to walk with her, and in Nazi Germany friendship between Germans and Jews is undesirable. Public denunciation of persons on friendly terms with Jews cannot be avoided, the same as it is impossible to prevent any action of a criminal from reflecting on his relatives."

The German National Railroad company ruled that showcases displaying the Stuermer and other anti-Jewish publications may be affixed to all property of the railroad upon the request of the Nazi party.

Goebbels Lauds Nazis for Taking 'Filth' from Books

WEIMAR, Germany, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, today opened the reich's book week with high praise for the Nazi's "riddance of filth left in books of the liberal period." He said that "Germany, defamed and being called barbaric, is giving other people an example" of its intention to put the National Socialist spirit in everything printed.

OFFICER'S WIFE NEW YORK'S 9TH SLAYING VICTIM

Policeman's Spouse Shot During Party.

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—A policeman's wife was shot to death at a housewarming party in the Howard Beach section of Queens early today, raising the total of lives lost in the city's latest outbreak of lawlessness to nine.

The victim of the latest shooting of the bloody series precipitated by the finding of a slain gang chieftain's body in a blazing automobile in Brooklyn last Wednesday was Mrs. Margaret Flynn, 28, wife of Patrolman Alvaro Flynn of Brooklyn. She was killed reputedly in a struggle for a revolver between her husband and a fellow policeman, John Donahue, in the bedroom of the latter's bungalow.

Policemen Are Questioned.

Detectives tonight were still trying to clear up the mystery surrounding the shooting. Both Donahue and Flynn were questioned. Several others at the party, including both men and women, also were questioned but none, it was said, was able to throw any light on the matter.

Donahue said the last thing he remembered prior to the shooting was that he had gone into the kitchen "to mix some drinks."

"Don't Be Silly," Wife Says.

Patrolman Flynn told his superior officers, it was said, that he had entered the bedroom of the Donahue bungalow to find his host flourishing "something shiny" toward Mrs. Flynn and the latter expostulating with him.

"Don't be silly," Flynn said he heard his wife say to Patrolman Donahue just as he walked into the room.

Killed During Struggle.

Flynn said he "grabbed for the gun" and that a struggle ensued. In the course of the tussle the weapon was discharged. Mrs. Flynn collapsed to the floor.

Both policemen are attached to the same precinct station in Brooklyn and had been friends for years. The Flynns have three small children and the Donahues have two.

Hunt for Authority to Enforce Curfew Law

Mishawaka, Ind., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The curfew soon may ring again here if Mishawaka police can find an ordinance requiring children under 15 years of age to be off the streets by midnight. South Bend police have begun enforcement of an ordinance of this sort, dated April 25, 1898.

and deferred, and would be up for final action at the next council session, probably a week from Wednesday.

The ordinance prescribes eastern standard time as the official time for the conduct of city business, but it is assumed that all clocks will be set to the official time, as now is done under daylight time in the summer. There would be no daylight saving time in addition to eastern time.

Ald. Cronson yesterday received from S. S. Lelewer, president of D. Lelewer & Son, a loop shop, a petition signed by 136 persons, urging the adoption of the eastern standard time measure.

"This petition is signed by persons who dropped into our store, and who prefer daylight to darkness," said Mr. Lelewer. "If Chicago has 200 less hours of darkness, it not only saves the public money, but it guards their health, and it gives criminals less hours in which to operate. I wish you every success in your worthy effort."

CITY AND SAILORS WILL CELEBRATE NAVY DAY TODAY

Special Events at Schools and Lakes Station.

A half dozen naval service land planes will maneuver over the loop at noon today as part of the Great Lakes Naval Training station's program for observance of Navy day. While a full day's program of special Navy day events is being held at the training station on the north shore, school children and civic and patriotic groups will hold special ceremonies as part of the national observance of the day.

Navy day, which is observed annually on the anniversary of the birth of former President Theodore Roosevelt, Oct. 27, this year is being celebrated today because the anniversary fell on Sunday. Mayor Kelly, in a proclamation issued last week, asked Chicagoans to observe the day.

Ceremonies in Schools.

During the day 50 members of the Naval Reserve corps, under the direction of Lieutenant Commander Arthur R. Peiper, will visit all the high schools and address the students on the importance of a strong navy in national defense. In the grammar schools teachers will read a prepared essay on the day. Special drills and exercises will be held at the schools.

Speakers at various patriotic meetings will urge that the navy be brought up to treaty strength as soon as possible. Rear Admiral John Downes, commandant of the Ninth Naval district, informed members of the Naval post of the American Legion during the week that at the present rate of warship contruction it will take the United States seven years to bring the navy up to treaty strength.

Station Events Open to Public.

Commander Downes will be in charge of the Navy day program at the training station. From 8 o'clock this morning until 5 o'clock this afternoon the station will be thrown open to the public for inspection and to view the events. The planes which will fly over the loop at noon will return to the station and join other planes in more extensive air maneuvers at 2 p. m.

A dress parade between 2:30 and 3:30 p. m. will attract the attention of visitors.

Besides exhibitions of seamanship and flag signals a heavy artillery drill will be held between 10 and 11 a. m. when the five 3-inch field pieces and rifles will be fired. Swimming and other athletic contests will take place following the dress parade. Approximately 700 sailors will participate in the drills.

The Naval Reserve armory at the foot of Randolph street and the U. S. S. Wilmette, training ship anchored there, will be open to the public during the day. At 8 o'clock in the evening visitors are invited to watch the reserve officers drill.

'TOBACCO ROAD' TO PLAY RETURN IN COURT TODAY

Hearing will be held today by Federal Judge William H. Holly on a petition to set aside the temporary restraining order issued Thursday by the court barring Mayor Kelly and other city officials from interfering with the showing of "Tobacco Road." The temporary order was issued after Mayor Kelly closed the play last week by revoking the license of the Selwyn theater.

Mayor Kelly's petition to set aside the order is supported by the affidavits of seven citizens who viewed performances of the play and concurred with the mayor in his opinion that it is "obscene and lascivious."

The promoters of the show, Sam Grisman and Jack Kirkland, were still searching for a theater last night in which to resume performances.

DIVER IDENTIFIES LUSITANIA HULK BY HUGE RIVETS

Descends 300 Feet to War Wreck.

BY GILBERT M'ALLISTER.

[Copyright by the United Features Syndicate and Chicago Tribune. All Rights Reserved.]

ABOARD SALVAGE SHIP ORPHIR, Oct. 20.—Descending to a slime covered hull 300 feet beneath the Orphir today, Diver Jim Jarratt virtually proved the wreck to be the sunken Lusitania off the coast at Kinsale Head, Ireland.

The hull's rivets, which measure two inches across the head, are larger than those used on any other vessel known to have foundered in these waters.

Jarratt made the dive in his "iron man" suit and remained below for nearly an hour, coming to the surface only because of darkening skies of an oncoming storm made further exploration impossible.

The whole of the Orphir's crew waited tensely and expectantly for the outcome of his long awaited first descent. Jarratt barked terse reports of his progress over the telephone connecting him with his assistant, E. W. Pope, on the Orphir's deck.

Phones Report.

"I'm on her!" he telephoned. "I can see her rivets. They're a good two inches across the top. It's too dark to make out any more of her, but I'm either on her side or her bottom. Her plates are covered with a gray grit and a black slime, but it's not very thick. I can see rivets quite plainly, a long line of them."

Matthew Fitzpatrick, salvage expert, declared "That doesn't leave much room for doubt. No other ship sunk in these waters had rivets that size."

Jarrett was working at depths where no human in a diving suit ever worked before. His suit was under a pressure of 450 tons to a square inch.

Worked in 14 Foot Radius.

The wind rose and the waves dashed angrily over the tops of the buoys. Jarrett's rope allowed him a working space of only 14 feet radius.

He finally reported that he was unable to see beyond this small space, and that the area he had traversed had consisted solely of slime covered plates. Winches rattled, and at last the grotesque explorer from the depths came aboard.

As he climbed out of his suit there was a rush to congratulate the first man to be on the Luistania since the German submarine did its fatal work twenty years ago.

THIRD WARSHIP WITH NAME OF CUSHING IS NEARING COMPLETION

Bremerton, Wash., Oct. 27.—(AP)—A new type destroyer neared completion here today, 71st anniversary of the heroic exploit in which her namesake, Lieut. William Barker Cushing, joined the United States navy's immortals.

It was the night of Oct. 27, 1864, that Lieut. Cushing destroyed the confederate ram Albemarle and won fame.

The destroyer, Cushing's third namesake warship, will be christened here Dec. 31 by his daughter, Miss Katherine Cushing of Fredonia, N. Y.

It will be a double launching, the biggest ever performed here, with a sister ship, honoring another civil war hero being floated in the building dock at the same time. The sister destroyer will be christened for Commodore George Hamilton Perkins and sponsored by the commodore's daughter, Mrs. Charles P. Greenough, Santa Barbara, Cal. Both destroyers will be powerful torpedo carriers.

MOTHER KEEPS SPARK OF LIFE IN ZOO ORANG BABY

Hold Hope for Survival; Offers of Aid Pour In.

The condition of the 5 day old baby orang-utan at the Lincoln park zoo remained unchanged yesterday. Nancy, the baby's mother, continued to keep a spark of life in her offspring by injecting cow's milk from her own mouth into that of the infant.

"There's a chance the baby may survive," said Director Floyd S. Young. Attendants continued to place a new supply of fresh warm cow's milk in the cage every two hours.

Get Flood of Suggestions.

Director Young and an assistant kept the vigil all day yesterday, relieving each other on answering telephone queries concerning the baby's condition. Messenger boys arrived on bicycles with queries and suggestions, and long distance operators interrupted the flood of local calls to switch in long distance questions and messages. All were suggestions on how to induce Nancy to feed her baby with a bottle or how to get the baby away from her so that attendants could care for it.

A mother in Park Ridge called and said she had just fixed up an extra bottle in addition to the feeding for her own baby.

Mother Offers Personal Help.

"I will bring my baby and the two bottles down, put one bottle in the cage and then give the bottle to my baby in front of the cage," she said. She was the sixth mother who had called with this sort of offer. Director Young said the orang-utan has little tendency to mimic and would not follow the suggestion.

A veterinarian volunteered to go in the cage alone and take the infant from Nancy, who weighs 160 pounds and is a frightful jungle fighter.

"He's either very brave or cuckoo," said Director Young.

YOUTH ACCUSED OF SLAYING.

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Murder charges were filed by States Attorney John Coale today against James Rane, 19, of Kincaid, following the fatal stabbing of Fay Coy, 19, early this morning. Coy was stabbed after Rane accused him of having beaten his father, Saturday night.

TWO TON CHEESE TO HELP SPREAD CHRISTMAS CHEER

It's to Be Good Fellow Basket Donation.

Hundreds of needy families in Chicago, cared for each year with Christmas baskets provided by THE TRIBUNE Goodfellows, will be given a special treat this year. Each basket will, in addition to the usual assortment of foods and toys, contain a large slice of fine American cheese cut from a 2 ton cheese which will be delivered to THE TRIBUNE three days before Christmas by Wisconsin Republicans.

Yesterday the huge cheese was placed in storage in Green Bay to age until December. Dairy men of Wisconsin say the cheese is the largest edible one ever made. The maker, Steve Suldzinski, noted Danish cheese maker, will name the dairy product "David," as a companion piece to the 1 ton cheese, Goliath, which he exhibited at the Wisconsin state fair.

Arthur B. Fontaine, Republican national committeeman of Green Bay, in announcing the gift, said that two considerations were in mind when the gift was proposed. A fine food delicacy will be supplied to poor families and the dairy men will be aiding in the Goodfellow movement. The gift, he said, is in recognition of the fine work being done on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm as an aid to dairy and farm interests.

2,000 BATTLING CALIFORNIA FIRE IN ITS SIXTH DAY

Fear Shift in Wind May Increase Loss.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Fire was made to fight fire today as 2,000 weary, grimy men in the mountains north of Los Angeles held control of devastating flames that have denuded nearly 100 square miles of forest and brush.

Damage from six days of fire and wind in southern California was estimated unofficially at more than $10,000,000.

Apparently the big blaze in the Malibu hills forest has been whipped, but the county forestry department conceded a sudden shift in the wind "might spoil everything."

By setting carefully regulated backfires the forest army has created strategic, burned out zones which they believe will finally hem in the wild flames without great further damage.

Movie Colony Threatened.

The most dangerous of the various fires, that which twice threatened the Malibu beach movie colony, and the Malibu lake resort, was checked yesterday afternoon.

Four men have been arrested for questioning as to responsibility for the various fires throughout the county that came in on a high wind last Monday night.

Although wind damage to crops and loss of numerous residences in flames has been considerable, the potential danger is that of floods.

Winter Floods Feared.

A vast area, some of it in the hills near Glendale and Pasadena, but most of it in the Malibu sector, has been stripped of vegetation that normally holds back the heavy winter rains. With it gone there is fear that down canyons and gulleys may come flood waters during the winter months to repeat the Montrose-La Crescenta disaster of New Year's day, 1934, when two score lives were lost.

To meet this threat, plans are already under way to sow seeds of quick growing plants in the burned areas. Small dams also will be thrown up at various points to serve as temporary checks.

GIRL TORN FROM HER ESCORT AND RAPED BY PAIR

A girl, 20 years old, was kidnaped last night by two young men at Tripp and Grand avenues, was held prisoner by the pair for more than an hour, and was raped by both before she was released in the vicinity of 4700 Roscoe street.

The girl was sitting in an automobile with Fred Granuchi, 22 years old, 2735 Sayre avenue, when the kidnapers arrived. They took $4 from Granuchi, forced him to the sidewalk, and drove away with his car, holding the girl between them. Shortly after freeing her they abandoned the automobile at 4408 Parker avenue.

The girl, who was in a hysterical condition, was taken to the Danish-American hospital for treatment.

Two Flee Police 60 Miles an Hour; Skid; Are Caught

Two men arrested after a 60 mile an hour police chase when their automobile skidded into a ditch near 169th street and Western avenue were held by Hazel Crest police yesterday. They are David Mawhood, 50 years old, 326 West 69th street, and Kenneth Smith, 28, 7808 Champlain avenue. The car in which they were riding was reported stolen Saturday from H. H. D. Battles, 6643 Normal boulevard. Police said Smith's wife is in the County hospital awaiting childbirth.

Expect New Continuance in O'Hara Perjury Case Today

Perjury charges against Ralph O'Hara, aid of the late Thomas E. Maloy, slain motion picture operators' union head, were scheduled for hearing before Federal Judge John P. Barnes today. However, it was expected that a postponement would be obtained, as prosecutors assigned to the case are engaged in another trial. O'Hara is charged with perjury in connection with the testimony he gave the grand jury investigating Maloy's income tax.

BURGLARS STEAL BAKERY SAFE.

Burglars who stole a safe containing $138 from the bakery of Albert Hiller at 6928 South Halsted street were sought by police yesterday.

CONSIDERS SALE OF HOOKER BIBLE, 353 YEARS OLD

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Valued by its present owner at $250,000 to $500,000, the famous Bible of the Rev. Thomas Hooker, founder of Hartford, soon may be for sale.

For eight generations the 353 year old volume has been handed down from father to son. Now it is owned by Edward Eugene Hooker Jr., 72, of Mount Pocono, Pa., who with his 76 year old sister Mary is the last of his line.

"As neither of us has married and as we are the last descendants of our line, I feel the time has arrived to decide now how I shall dispose of the Bible," Hooker explained during a visit here.

The Bible is intact except for the title page of the Old Testament, all of Genesis and part of Exodus. These portions were found missing after the Bible was loaned for an exhibit many years ago.

Saskatchewan Man Made Canadian Farm Minister

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 27.—(AP)—The appointment of Premier James G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan as minister of agriculture in the dominion government was announced today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

VENIZELOS PLOTS NEW GREEK COUP, KONDYLIS CLAIMS

Premier Urges Return of King George II.

ATHENS, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Gen. George Kondylis, royalist Greek premier, and Panayoti Tsaldaris, the man he succeeded, addressed royalist demonstrations today while the government promised a fair plebiscite Nov. 3 on the return of King George II.

The regent-premier, in a speech today from the balcony of the communications ministry here, charged former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos and Gen. Nicholas Plastiras "even now are collaborating for an upheaval of the state."

[Both Venizelos and Plastiras are in exile.]

Throngs jammed downtown streets and squares, waving flags and carrying huge posters portraying King George, the late King Constantine, and Kondylis. Bands played old royalist tunes.

Tsaldaris spoke at Patras, from the balcony of the home of the late Demetrius Gounaris, minister under King Constantine, who was shot by liberals in 1922.

Patras always has been a royalist stronghold and adjoins Tsaldaris' home district. En route to Patras the former premier was given loyal welcomes in many towns.

As a result of recent publication abroad of reports that warships had been dispatched to Crete to crush a revolt, Minister of the Interior Schinas announced today he had "ordered the police to arrest and banish any one guilty of the dissemination of false news." Revolt reports were flatly denied at the time.

CHICAGO GREEKS OPPOSE PLAN FOR RECALL OF KING

About 1,000 Chicagoans of Greek descent gathered yesterday in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel and adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed return of King George II. to the throne of Greece.

The views of those attending were expressed in a telegram which was forwarded to the former monarch, now an exile in London. The message requested him not to return to Greece nor to accept the results of a plebiscite to be held on Nov. 3. The protesting Chicagoans held that the voting was to be held under conditions that would enable the Greek military clique to intimidate the citizens of the country.

BRING DAUGHTER BACK AS WITNESS AGAINST FATHER

Mrs. Lena Bona, 29 years old, who was found in New Orleans, La., several days ago, was brought back to Chicago last night by Sergt. Matt Cunningham and is being held to make sure that she will appear as a witness in a burglary case.

The burglary, committed three years ago, was in the home of Anthony Gazzara, 461 Hein place. Anthony Romano, father of Mrs. Bona, was a boarder at Gazzara's when $5,000 was taken from a trunk. The police said that Mrs. Bona, then living at 1341 Mohawk street, informed them her father was the thief.

Romano was apprehended several weeks ago and is awaiting trial.

Gems don't snap

Gem Blades are tough, but perfect temper control keeps them from becoming snappy. We make 'em so sharp that the densest beard is controlled by a daily once-over. And that keeps your temper from becoming snappy. Sensitive faces are apt to be riled by faster-dulling, uncertain blades. Gem's 50% thicker surgical steel is textured to withstand the 4840 separate stroppings we give it without weakening the wearing power of edges so flawlessly sharp that the tenderest skins and the heaviest stubble never conflict. The number of shaves you get from each blade reduces the cost of Gems below the price of any substitute.

YOU CAN'T BEAT COAL FOR AUTOMATIC HEAT

SAY- MR. SLEEPY HEAD, JUST BECAUSE WE HAVE A REGULATOR - YOU'RE NOT GOING TO SLEEP THROUGH BREAKFAST TOO, ARE YOU?
WHADDA YA THINK DADDY? I STARTED THE HEAT UP WITH MY LITTLE FINGER!
GEE THAT EXTRA HOUR OF SLEEP SURE DOES THE TRICK FOR ME.

With An $18.50 Heat Regulator I Get Extra Sleep, Steady Heat, and Save Money!

"What's all this talk about automatic heat and extra sleep in the morning? Why that's no news to me. In fact you get better results using coal or coke and a heat regulator than with any other kind of fuel.

"And what's more I don't have to pay for an expensive burner, or big gas bills either, in order to get regulated heat in my house. All I had to do was to pay $18.50 for a regulator which changes the draft automatically in the morning, or responds instantly to a touch of the finger. I get extra sleep, steady heat and save money."

Automatic Coal Heat Preferred

That's what you hear on all sides in Chicago. Automatic regulation has always worked out well in this city with coal or coke. Which being the case, there doesn't seem to be much point in claiming automatic regulation for other fuels—particularly since other fuel methods cost so much more than coal or coke.

Most important of all, coal or coke gives you steady heat—no sudden "Stop and Go" as with gas for instance. If, in addition to the regulator, an automatic stoker is used, you get unsurpassed comfort, convenience and economy from coal or coke. It's so much better for the health to have the supply of steam, hot water, vapor, or hot air constant—so much better to have the reserve of heat that coal and coke give you.

GAS LEFT HOUSE CHILLY DURING OFF AND ON PERIODS

Basement Too Uncomfortable For Children To Play

That reserve of heat is very important. It's something that Mr. Schwartz couldn't get with gas even though it cost him about twice as much as coke.

MR. SCHWARTZ'S LETTER

Chicago Coal Merchants Association
Gentlemen: I have a two story frame residence, 6 rooms equipped with storm sash during the winter season.
On the strength of a $135.00 estimate I installed gas.
Record of comparative costs of gas and coke follows:

GAS BILL

October 11, 1933 to June 12, 1934	$200.69
LESS gas normally used during same period	36.72
NET GAS BILL	$163.97

COKE FUEL BILL

October 1934 to June 1935	$ 93.66
LESS surplus fuel on hand estimated by previous experience	6.00
NET COKE FUEL BILL	$ 87.66

With COKE my home is CONSTANTLY WARM.
With GAS, it was chilly during the OFF and ON periods.
Also the basement was too cool and uncomfortable for the children to play or for work in the evening.
This was never true when COKE or COAL was used.
COKE or COAL provided a "reserve" of heat in the fire pot, keeping the boiler hot and ready for immediate use. Hot water for bathing, shaving or washing was ALWAYS available when COKE was used.
This was not true when GAS was used for heat.
This was my experience and I am sold on COKE AS A FUEL.

BOMBS HIT TWO BRANCHES OF BIG WISCONSIN BANK

Both in Milwaukee; Police Aroused.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Dynamite blasts tonight, half an hour apart, exploded under the windows of two branches of the First Wisconsin National bank.

The first blast at 6:30 tore a hole four by five feet in the rear of the Citizens branch of the First Wisconsin at 3602 North Villard avenue. It shattered all windows and tore down fixtures but made no impression on the two foot thick concrete walls of the vault.

The second explosion was at the East Side branch located at the busy triangular intersection of North Farwell, Oakland and East North avenues. At that building the dynamite had been placed in a tin can and left in the rear. The blast did not injure the building, but wrecked a dozen automobiles in the parking lot next door.

Special police detachments late tonight were placed about several downtown banks, including the First Wisconsin National and the neighboring Marshall-Ilsley bank.

Near Strike-Bound Theater.

The Citizens branch is adjacent to the Ritz theater, closed for two days by a strike of the projectionists. The police were not inclined, however, to attribute the dynamiting to the labor trouble in that theater.

The blasts at the two bank branches make the third dynamiting in Milwaukee within twenty-four hours. At almost the same time last night a blast tore a hole through the wall of the village hall of the residential suburb of Shorewood. Shorewood officials investigating today said they found the dynamite used had been stolen from PWA supplies at Estabrook park.

From that place, it was said, 150 pounds of explosives, 450 caps and 200 feet of fuse were stolen.

While the police were being hurried to the bank explosions reports were received of two armed holdups of drug stores in the thickly settled residential district in the neighborhood of the east side branch.

Charles H. Krohn, manager of the Citizens branch, said he knew of no reason for the attack. He investigated the building carefully and said, except for the damage to the windows and fixtures and the rear wall, no harm had been done.

Sees Fleeing Bombers.

Patrolman Charles Neurendorf, who travels beat near the Citizens branch, reported he had passed the building just before the explosion and heard a starting motor whir. He said he saw two men drive hastily from an alley. They did not stop at the Villard arterial highway. They turned south on 35th street toward downtown Milwaukee. As they were passing out of sight he heard the blast.

The explosion at both bank branches seemed to be similar to the one last night in Shorewood. The dynamite was placed against a wall in each case. The interiors of the Citizens branch and the village hall were littered with debris.

The East Side branch is at least eight miles from the Citizens' branch, a 15 minute ride in a car through the city trafic. Enough time had elapsed between the two explosions tonight so it is possible both were the work of the same persons.

Walter H. Kasten, president of the First Wisconsin National bank; George T. Campbell, vice president, and Joseph Uihlein, brewer and bank director, and other officials have been on the stand and the testimony about the bank's operation has been widely published and commented on. No one tonight would comment on the possibility that the explosions might have been the result of enmity aroused through the Liberty bank transactions, although that suspicion seemed no more far fetched than any other.

FAIR STORE GIFT PUTS FUND OVER HALF WAY MARK

Pledge $15,000; Plan Reports Today.

A $15,000 pledge from the Fair store and its executives and employés to the Community Fund yesterday brought the total to $1,601,876.31 and sent the campaign into its fourth week just across the halfway mark toward its $3,200,000 goal.

The Fair subscription was announced by George W. Young, president of the Association of Commerce and chairman of the dry goods and department store group in fund solicitation. D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair, is a vice president of the fund and a campaign worker.

With this pledge, the dry goods group was credited with $75,366 in pledges, 82 per cent of its quota. The leader in this division is the ready-to-wear group, which has collected $10,689.50, which is 1 per cent more than its quota. The packing group is second with $211,473 collected, or 94 per cent of its quota.

The second report session of the trades and industries division will be held today in the Palmer house. The meeting is to be one of the largest and most significant in the drive, according to Clarence B. Randall, chairman. He issued a special bulletin asking workers to make a cleanup of all prospects in their assignments.

James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, which shares in the fund, will be the principal speaker.

The North Side Women's club announced yesterday that its semi-weekly beano parties would be conducted for several weeks with proceeds going to the fund.

AWARD OF CONGRESS IS BOYS' NEW PROOF OF DAD'S HEROISM

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 27.—(AP)—To David A. Trousdale Jr., 14, and his brother, Billy, 7, their dad always has been a hero. Today they had additional proof of it.

"Our dad," they said during kid bragging bees, "killed two train robbers and saved $66,000 in money."

Years ago Trusdale Sr., a railway express messenger, tapped a train robber on the head with a mallet and killed him. With the dead outlaw's rifle he shot the other bandit dead.

The express company rewarded Trousdale with $1,000 and the Southern Pacific gave him $500. Passengers on the train gave him a diamond studded watch charm.

The government was more technical. It claimed its standing $1,000 reward for the capture of mail robbers did not apply because Trousdale failed to bring them in alive. Congress authorized payment of the award last August, and Trousdale has just received the check.

AIRLINES' TIME TO WASHINGTON CUT 98 MINUTES

American Airlines today will inaugurate new schedules between Chicago and Washington, D. C., reducing previous time by 1 hour and 38 minutes and bringing the total elapsed time between the two cities to 4 hours and 11 minutes. The trip will include stops at Indianapolis and at Cincinnati. West bound ships from Washington to Chicago will make the trip, against prevailing winds, in 5 hours 6 minutes.

The schedule changes were announced by C. R. Smith, president of the airline, who explained that the speedier service can be offered because Douglas DC-2 airliners are being put into service to replace the slower Condor transports which previously were the standard equipment on this route.

FIND SAME GUN KILLED ALDERMAN AND HIS KINSMAN

Trace Gary 'Ride' Bullets; Seize 40 Suspects.

The pistol used last Thursday in the ride murder of Dan Perrotta, youngest member of the Gary city council, was the same weapon used in killing Paul Miccolis, wealthy Gary food products dealer, on March 29, 1934, Police Chief L. F. Studness of Gary said yesterday. Perrotta married Miccolis' daughter, Titina, last July.

Police Hold 40 Suspects.

Chief Studness made this announcement after bullets taken from Perrotta's body had been subjected to ballistic tests. The weapon from which the bullets were fired has not been found.

The chief yesterday directed raids in which 40 suspects were arrested. He said each of the prisoners would be forced to account for his whereabouts on the day the alderman was slain.

"I am more than ever convinced that Perrotta was killed as the result of a Black Hand extortion plot," the chief said.

Body Flung Into Ditch.

Perrotta, who was 23 years old, was found dead in a ditch along a deserted street in Griffith, Ind., six miles southwest of Gary. He had been shot twice in the head, once in the left side and once in the left arm.

Miccolis, the owner of the Italian Food Products company, was slain as he drove a truck past 850 Grant street, Gary. The killers drove alongside in an automobile and fired on him.

Old Harrison Street Police Station Bows to Wreckers

The six story building which housed the Harrison street police station at 625 South Clark street from 1912 to 1928 is being torn down by wreckers. During the time the building was leased by the city it housed also the South Clark street court and, for one year, the detective bureau. The district station took the name Harrison street from its location prior to 1912, at Harrison and La Salle streets.

ROOSEVELT ACCUSED OF BREAKING PLEDGE ON MEXICAN ISSUE

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was charged with failing to keep a promise to make a "public statement" setting forth the attitude of the United States toward alleged religious persecution by the Mexican government today in a letter sent him by the supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus, made public here.

The letter, signed by Martin H. Carmody, supreme knight, and William J. McGinley, supreme secretary, also accused Mr. Roosevelt of directing that a resolution by Senator Borah authorizing an investigation of conditions in Mexico be held in the foreign relations committee.

President Roosevelt met a committee from the supreme board on July 8 when the views of the Knights of Columbus with respect to the Mexican situation were presented to him.

IDLENESS IRKS WOMAN TRAINER TORN BY TIGER

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Two more muscles have been removed from the frail body of Mabel Stark, her left wrist is Z-shaped; there are three different poisons in her left arm and shoulder; the number of surgeon's stitches in various parts of her body now number 500.

But the spirit of the slim, 115 pound tiger trainer hasn't a scar on it.

Her steely, blue eyes [even the one that was torn out and miraculously replaced several years ago] glittered contemptuously as she spoke of her latest mishap, at Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 21, when a 500 pound tiger jumped upon her, bit through her arm and shoulder, crushed her elbow, and ripped the muscles of her back and stomach.

"It's the second time I actually have had to leave the arena," she said. "But that's not because of the wounds — the poison did it. I'm ashamed of myself now for not being out there working."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE.

The major duty of the Republican party is to offer to the people of the United States a platform, a program of government policy and action which shall be solidly founded upon the enduring principles of the American commonwealth and which shall deal courageously and soundly with the problems confronting the people, a platform which shall be in truth a solemn pledge, not to be repudiated and betrayed as the Democratic pledges have been, but loyally fulfilled.

But obviously we do not elect a platform. We elect a candidate, and that candidate must be one whose character and qualifications offer to the people as substantial an assurance of the faithful and competent performance of the platform as human judgment can give.

There is no lack of such men among the citizens of this republic. There are many men by character and ability competent to discharge the duties of President, difficult and important as those duties are. Happily for the American people, the presidency does not require a superman. The constitution was so framed as not to require a superman as the chief magistrate of the nation. In our whole history we have had only two great Presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Thomas Jefferson and James Madison were great statesmen. They were not great Presidents. Andrew Jackson and Ulysses S. Grant were great generals, great patriots, great leaders of men. History does not write them down as great Presidents. Among the others, we have had for the most part competent men, good citizens; sometimes, as in the case of Grover Cleveland, men of outstanding courage in a public crisis. They have filled their great office adequately, some with political success and some without it.

In short, our history shows that we ought not to count upon and need not look for a superman. There is none in sight. There is indeed no outstanding personality as there was, for example, in 1916 when the party nominated Mr. Justice Charles Evans Hughes. We would do well, therefore, to look into the dictionary and find the word "available." Our effort must be to choose that man of sound character, sound doctrin, and demonstrated ability who will be acceptable to the greatest number of people. We must avoid the mistakes of 1912 and 1920, when rings of men gathered around different candidates, striving for their nomination and for their own personal gain, and fought selfishly for a prize, whereas they should have worked unselfishly for the common welfare.

The size of this country is stupendous. From Maine to California, from Washington to Florida. Its people are employed in varied industries. They come from various sources. They have varied local idiosyncrasies. We want a man who is understandable to all of them.

We will consider quite rightly that a state with ten million or fifteen million population is of more influence in electing an American candidate than a state of two or three hundred thousand population. We will not forget that a man who has demonstrated his capacity to win the approval of his fellow citizens is the one most likely to win that approval in the future.

We cannot afford to choose a man who has allowed to gather around him other men who merit the ill repute they bear. We do not want a man who must start under the handicap of being associated with those unpopularities grouped in the phrase "the old deal." We will not have a man tarred with the vast corruptions and evil purposes of the New Deal. We do not want a man describable in any form of the language of gamblers.

We want a man who in his life and character reflects those simple, homely virtues that represent the American people. We want a man who can go forth throughout this country and express our sound doctrins in a manner which the multitudes can understand.

The machinery for the selection of the Republican candidate is the Republican national convention. Let the party see to it that this machinery is not entangled and directed by personal ambitions for office and the rivalries and competitions of faction. Let the party see to it that it shall run freely to register the best judgment and patriotic impulse of Republicanism. Let us dedicate ourselves in the coming month to the selection of the most faithful and competent men as delegates to the convention.

This should not be a very difficult thing to do. There are no sitting delegates. There are no salaries to be sought; only the honor of serving the party and the nation. There is no obstacle to any citizen's acceptance of this appointment, since the length of time of the convention is but a few days and will not keep any delegate long away from his private occupation, as many other public offices do. On the other hand, the call to the citizen for this service has never been more imperative.

The life of the republic may be at stake.

THE WASHINGTON BILLS AT SPRINGFIELD.

As the members of the Illinois legislature meet to consider the governor's many proposals with reference to social security they should reflect upon the circumstances which call forth their meeting. There has been no popular demand for the proposed laws. There has been no public discussion of them. Illinois people are satisfied that there are enough laws on the statute books to last until a new legislature meets in regular session. The pressure for the new legislation comes from Washington.

The Roosevelt administration, which ordered the Illinois legislature to pass a 3 per cent sales tax, when there was widespread opposition to it in this state, now calls upon the assembly to enact certain so-called social legislation. And the tactics are similar, at least in respect to one of the subjects. Just as the Roosevelt administration required that Illinois should increase the annoying sales tax to 3 per cent, while requiring nothing of the southern states, so the administration now insists upon the passage of an unemployment insurance law, upon pain of putting into effect a federal tax in Illinois from which some other states are to be exempted.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

A Warsaw dispatch informs us that the Polish government operated railroads are going broke carrying deadheads. On the basis of a conviction that a railroad train always has room for a few extra passengers, the Polish state some years ago offered to its war heroes as a sort of bonus the privilege of riding at cut rates. Serious financial difficulties followed, but the operating commission apparently thought it inconceivable that revenues could be affected through the carriage of "a few" deadheads and passenger fares were doubled to meet "advancing operating costs." A little later the specter of an unbalanced budget again appeared, to be met in like manner by trebling the rates, without very satisfactory results.

A recent survey has disclosed the fact that only 16 per cent of the passengers on Polish railways pay full fares, the others benefiting from discounts ranging from 25 to 95 per cent. It was also found that the peasant class could no longer afford railway travel and was moving distances of one hundred miles in century old horse-drawn carts.

The proposal of the operating board is to withdraw the pass system and risk the antagonism of Polish officialdom. Apparently no one has thought of the American method of attempting to force the peasants back into the railway coaches through the regulation of their horse carts.

Perhaps those who have considered public ownership as the only cure for railway ills will find a lesson in the modern Polish situation, although there have been parallel experiences in the United States. We have previously related the historical fact that when Pennsylvania's state owned railroad was finally sold to private interests the contractors found that every state and municipal official from the governor to the mayor of Philadelphia's doorman held an annual pass. Politicians will never learn that it does cost money to carry passengers even if they seemingly occupy space that would otherwise be moved empty on trains that are scheduled to run regardless of patronage.

DEATH ON THE HIGHWAY.

The remarks of the Rev. Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, at the funeral services of Sidney Smith should have been read and reread by every Chicago citizen, and particularly by those who find, or think they find, it necessary continually to stretch speed limits while driving their cars in and about the city. It was delivered extemporaneously and came direct from the heart of the minister. He spared no responsible party in his appeal that something be done to halt the murder and madness occurring daily on our streets.

"Government, also, will have to take responsibility for it," remarked the Rev. Mr. Anderson. Enforce regulations? Yes, but experience has shown that that will have little effect. Construct elevated highways adapted to motor trafic and the greatest single effort will have been made. Driver's license laws? Yes, to deprive the careless, the inconsiderate, and the reckless of the right to endanger others through the operation of their automobiles.

WHY NOT COACH SPECTATORS, TOO?

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Commenting on the almost complete absence of results from the earnest and well meant efforts of coaches and other experts to explain, through magazine articles, how spectators should watch football games in order to appreciate what goes on, the Detroit News suggests an experiment that might really make some headway. The News proposes that during the intermission between the second and third quarters of a game—

". . . the band remain on the benches; that a couple of reserve football teams of the home squad, which have been itching to go, take the field, and that, while a loudspeaker tells the spectators what to watch for, they illustrate a number of typical plays in slow motion.

"Without giving away any of the plays that the No. 1 team expects to use, this demonstration could be made entertaining and instructive in the highest degree. It would help the bewildered spectators to understand the rest of the game, and, far better than any written explanation, to understand and enjoy all future games which otherwise might be only a source of boredom."

Now that isn't a half bad idea, if you ask us. Most unschooled football spectators would willingly forgo the pleasure of watching the orthographic maneuvers of military bands and the antics of cheer leaders once or twice a season in order to take a lesson or two in the fundamentals of football.

Combining actual demonstration with instructive explanation should prove very effective as a means of teaching the uninitiated the basic points of the game. And a better understanding of the fine points of football might tend to increase attendance, especially at early season practice games when neither keen competition nor colorful pageantry serve to attract customers. It is rather boresome to watch a team score touchdowns at will on a hopelessly outclassed pushover opponent, but there would be some enjoyment in seeing how such a team coördinated its efforts to make the touchdowns if the average spectator knew how to appraise teamwork.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY is a most alluring pastime. The other afternoon over in Michigan the sun hung low over the lake and I took a shot almost straight into Old Sol. I exulted over that picture and resolved to send it to some swank salon exhibition titled "Moonlight Over Lake Michigan." I figured it would be one of the best pictorial things of the year. Then I got a still life, two potatoes (I had to borrow 'em from the grocery man and take 'em right back after still-lifing 'em), an onion, a carrot and a hard boiled egg roosting on a leaf of celery. All of our haughtiest amateurs do that sort of thing, and I intended to call this "Study," because, if you can't think up any other name, you always call the picture a study. Then I took a picture of some lovely clouds, but I forgot to put on the color filter, so I stood to get a bald-headed sky, as we amateur photographers call it, but still I felt it would be a good picture. Then I got a piece of real genre (usually called John Ray). A woman was hanging out the week's washing on a line in the back yard. A woman hanging out the week's washing in the back yard is old John Ray himself. Two washerwomen ladies talking over the back fence is John Ray, too, but the woman hanging out the week's washing on a line in the back yard is the John Rayest of all. Every picture I took I knew would make the walls of an exhibition. But I use a film pack and there's a doggoned black slide you have to pull out before the film is exposed. Certainly—I had forgotten to pull out the dark slide. But, anyhow, they would have been great pictures. Oh, well, better luck next time.

For a Lad, Grown Melancholy, to Comfort Him When He Shall Find This Verse.

Wear it on your heart for shield
On a lover's morrow:
Sorrow never broke my heart,
My heart broke sorrow.

Never weep for one whose love
Lay against your breast.
You gave her passion,
She gave you rest.

Never give her pity who Gave you her mouth.
Grapes that give the darkest wine
Thrive on a drouth.

Never grieve for one whose tears
Mingled with your own.
You gave her bread, and she Answered with a stone.

Never hate her for that she Loved only love.
Her hand was velvet
In an iron glove.

Take it to your heart now
When dark dreams cease:
She gave you passion,
You gave her peace.

HUMANS ARE FUNNY. The newspapers tell of a cobbler in Havana who hanged himself because he'd sold for fifteen cents a share in a lottery ticket that had cost him twenty-two cents. And the ticket won and the man who bought the share for fifteen cents cashed in for fourteen hundred dollars. But the cobbler had lost only seven cents in actual cash by his lottery ticket investment and sale. Seven cents isn't really worth hanging one's self for. But it was thinking of the fourteen hundred dollars that he might have had if he had kept his ticket that made the cobbler take his own life. Which explains to us worthy poor the secret of the suicide of rich men. They have a thousand times what we have and yet they kill themselves. But it isn't what they've got that makes 'em turn to the seventeenth story window. It's reflecting on what they might have got. It's looking backward that does the mischief with us humans. Yet for hundreds of years the Bible has told us of Lot's wife, who looked backward and was turned into a pillar of salt. In these days humans look backward and are not turned into a pillar of salt, so they do the next thing—they kill themselves. Humans, as I said to begin with, are funny, very funny!

DO YOU REMEMBER away back when, as Harvey Help Help so quaintly says (and let him try and collect that 64 cents), when you could pick up a newspaper cheerfully on Monday? Ah, those were the good old Horse and Buggy days. Nowadays when we pick up a paper on Monday morning we don't know what names of our very best friends are going to appear in the long list of automobile accidents over the week-end. That is, if we haven't been automobiling ourselves. Or been run over by a hit and run driver. In which case we will not pick up the paper on Monday morning. And perhaps on any morning after that. And still the legislature of Illinois is doubtful on the subject of passing a drivers' license law. Not that it will do much to prevent the terrible list of casualties. But it will help some.

AND ONE THING I know (and I'm writng this on Saturday). I will be able to read this Blue Monday paper myself. I simply hate to have a nurse at the hospital read me the papers; they always mumble their words and they don't want to read anything but the sports section. I know that I will be able to read the newspapers myself because I am not going to drive my car during the week's end. And the grocery store is at the corner of the block and I don't have to cross the street. So no-hit-and-run demon will get me. Ha, ha! I will read the papers myself this morning!

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

POISONS THAT ATTACK NERVES.

POISONS produced by certain disease organisms that may grow within the body are exceedingly "choosy" as to the type of tissue that they attack. In other words, toxins have affinities. This is particularly true of the disease producing viruses—those small, ultramicroscopic bodies that are so puzzling.

Fifty years ago Louis Pasteur observed that the virus of hydrophobia affected the nervous system. Later it was shown that the poison of poliomyelitis [infantile paralysis] was interested in but one type of tissue, namely, nerve tissue. While the afflicted individual may have a temperature and feel ill, yet when the effects of the disease become manifest nerve cells only will be damaged. Furthermore, unless the polio virus can find a special type of nerve tissue it is not interested. It will attack the nervous system of man, monkeys, and apes. Lower animals escape its ravages.

Our knowledge of nerve selecting poisons is increasing rapidly. The type that caused the St. Louis encephalitis epidemic of 1933 has been isolated and we have long known the dread effects on the nervous system of tetanus [lockjaw] toxin and that of the bacillus botulinus.

We may ask to what extent the polio virus injures the nervous system. It has been shown that in the majority of cases the chief symptoms are due to the destruction of certain cells in the spinal cord. Changes in the brain are observed as well. When the virus is virulent or vicious, as we say, nerve cells are destroyed. They undergo disintegration and the débris is consumed by the white cells of the blood. In mild cases, when there is no destruction of the nerve cells, improvement or recovery of function can be expected. Nerve cells that have been completely disintegrated cannot be restored by drugs, rest, mechanical treatment, or by any other known means.

How do these viruses reach nerve tissue? We know that the poison of rabies cannot travel to the brain or to the spinal cord if the nerves supplying the affected part are cut, any more than a telegraph message can pass along a broken wire. This would seem to prove beyond question that the virus passes along nerve pathways.

One place in the body where tiny nerve terminals are close to the surface is the nasal mucous membrane. Occasionally the skin may be broken and nerve endings exposed. Experiments have proved that introducing polio virus into the nasal passages of monkeys is more frequently followed by infection than not. We can well understand how this occurs, as the olfactory nerve [the nerve of smell] branches into thousands of filaments which lie close to the surface of certain areas of the nasal passages.

It is quite probable that we should not consider many of these nerve poison diseases as rare or uncommon. Some authorities believe that polio affects a very large proportion of our population in light form, and that it is only the occasional case which develops paralysis and hence is diagnosed. Investigation has shown that from 50 to 80 per cent of the adult population carry in the blood neutralizing bodies to the polio virus. This may mean that a previous infection has served as a vaccine and hence has provided protection.

As research proceeds we will learn more about diseases of virus origin, and it is quite likely that in consequence greater emphasis will be laid upon good nasal hygiene. We do not cleanse the nasal passages as we now wash the mouth and the teeth. We depend upon natural drainage, because we fear that spraying the nose may spread infection. Sometimes mildly astringent solutions that contain a small amount of alum will help to contract the mucous membrane, toughen it, and prevent the entrance of these vicious poisons.

SWEARING OFF.

S. T. O. writes: Can anything be done to help a man give up drinking? This person is 69 years old and he has been drinking for twenty years. At times he has succeeded in stopping the habit for anywhere from a month to a year, but he becomes very irritable as soon as he gives alcohol up. If a "cure" is suggested he always says he does not need it as he can fight it out himself.

REPLY.

Alcoholism is the outward expression of a particular type of mentality. For the chronic alcoholic there are certain lines of treatment that occasionally prove effective. Only rarely is a victim able to "fight it out himself." Home treatment can be given under the direction of a medical adviser, but hospital treatment is preferred. Diet and exercise, with nerve rest, change of thought and surroundings, carefully administered drugs, and hydrotherapy are helpful. A higher percentage of permanent cures occurs when some form of psychotherapy is added.

SEE ABOUT IT.

A. C. writes: I have a small lump under the arm near the shoulder. This hurts when I touch it.

REPLY.

Growths under the arm may arise from simple and easily remedied causes. On the other hand, they may be the result of the spread of malignant tumors from the breast. You should consult a competent physician without delay.

LIABILITY FOR NOTE.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am one of the signers of a note [wife is other] to my wife's mother, but believe that every effort will be made to collect all from me. This note was made to cover money advanced for living expenses. 1. Would that be included as a liability if I went into voluntary bankruptcy? 2. Would it be best to wait until they took action to collect before going into bankruptcy? 3. If they get judgment against me and I apply for bankruptcy, would they still be able to go back to the other party on the joint note? 4. What happens to money earned between time of filing or applying, and completing court proceedings? 5. On a joint note is it necessary for both signers to apply for bankruptcy to discharge the debt? 6. How long does it take to go through bankruptcy? 7. About how much would it cost? 8. Are the notes canceled by the court? 9. What is there to prevent them being disposed of to a third party who might try to collect?

E. D. F.

1. Yes.
2. You are in a better position to estimate your possible embarrassment, etc., than we are.
3. We do not understand the question.
4. The money which you earn after adjudication would be yours. The adjudication comes early in the proceedings.
5. Yes, for a complete discharge. The bankruptcy of each party will discharge only the liability of such party.
6. The completion of the proceedings would depend on whether a trustee is appointed and on other facts not before us.
7. Depends largely on the attorney whom you employ.
8. In the ordinary case, notes representing obligations of the bankrupt would not be in the possession of the court.
9. The third party should be on his guard.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SECOND HAND PURCHASE.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In July I bought a gas range from a second hand store and paid the price asked. 1. When the stove was delivered two of the burners were broken. They attempted to fix same, but the stove being old fashioned they could not get parts for it and I can't get along with only two burners working. 2. Please let me know what I can do about it. Do I have to keep the stove with only two burners? B. G.

1. The maxim "let the buyer beware" ordinarily applies with special force to purchasers of second hand goods. We would say that you have no remedy. If you mean that you failed to discover the break at the time of your purchase. If the break occurred during delivery then your rights would depend on who was to blame.

2. In general, where the owner of goods delivers them to a person who is to perform labor upon them if such person fails to return them, the burden rests on him to prove that he is not to blame for their loss or destruction. In More vs. Fisher, 245 Ill. App. 567, for example, the court held that it was not enough for a cleaner to prove that the truck in which the garments were being delivered was stolen, since leaving the truck unguarded was negligence chargeable to the cleaner and the owner recovered value of the garments.

LIABILITY FOR LEASE.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Does a lease on apartment building become void upon the death of the father of the household, who signed the lease? If not voided [2] would employed daughter be liable and would her salary be subject to garnishment for termination of lease and for other debts of father? 3. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The recent earthquake at Quetta, India, has brought up a question of vital interest to British knights. Who is to pay for replacement of the insignia of various orders which were destroyed in that disaster? The answer has not been determined yet. Normally, when the insignia of an order is lost the holder applies to the central chancery of the orders of knighthood for permission to purchase a replacement. During the world war a number of insignia were lost in action, and these were replaced with money from the public purse.

The values of the insignia of the orders of knighthood vary considerably. The most expensive is that of the Knights' Grand Cross of the Star of India, which is worth about $4,000. The collars of the three great orders—the Garter, the Thistle, and St. Patrick—are of solid gold, and the insignia are worth about $3,000 each. Until Victorian times the collars of the Knights' Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath were of solid gold, but for reasons of economy silver gilt was then substituted.

Many insignia of minor orders disappear from time to time, but few, if any, of those of the three great orders have ever been lost.

When a knight of any order except two dies his insignia are returned to the central chancery of the orders of knighthood. The exceptions are the Royal Victorian order, the insignia of which are returned to Buckingham palace, and the Order of St. Michael and St. George, whose insignia go to the colonial office.

The central chancery has a large office lined with scarlet bound volumes of regulations and references. It keeps card indexes of the names of all holders of orders and details of the date of their investiture. Boards which are posted daily show at a glance the number of living holders of orders and the number of vacancies.

The mantles of the various orders are kept by the chancery and in a large strong room are stored stocks of the various insignia.

The many intricate problems relating to the orders of knighthood are answered by the chancery. Shortly it will make estimates of the numbers of insignia likely to be required in 1937. With some of the orders estimation is easy, for the number of insignia to be required cannot exceed the number of vacancies. However, after a number of "additional" honors are bestowed, as was done for King George's silver jubilee, calculations are difficult. There is always trouble, also, in computing requirements for the Order of the British Empire, because the insignia are different for men and women.

When insignia are required for an investiture they are sent to the palace by messenger, and only when a large number of insignia are required is a messenger authorized to take a taxi.

INTIMIDATION AND SUPPRESSION.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—This morning's TRIBUNE carries a letter from Roger Baldwin of the Civil Liberties union in which the statement is made that the American Civil Liberties union "does not discriminate in defending the rights of any persons or organizations, whatever their philosophies or programs."

I am wondering how to reconcile this statement with the fact that the Civil Liberties union has never taken any action, so far as the public has become aware, with regard to a most flagrant denial of freedom of speech and opinion to the employés of the Indian bureau, as a result of the notorious gag order promulgated by Secretary Ickes on April 30, 1934.

This order, I am informed, was called to the attention of the Baldwin organization by more than one group of people interested in Indian welfare. In any case, it was made publicly known through the article appearing in THE TRIBUNE for May 15, 1934, a day or two after the circular had been distributed to each individual of the thousands employed in the Indian service of the federal government.

That threatening order, which advises all employés of the Indian service that any expression of opinion against the policies of the bureau "will be under penalty of dismissal from the service," is still in force. It is a peculiarly vicious rule in that it applies not only to white employés, whose interest in Indian welfare is altruistic, but to the Indians themselves, of whom possibly 2,000 are regular employés, while many other thousands have been employed under the various IECW and other easy money projects which have been carried on during the past two years. The new policies proposed by the new administration—of which only a few, fortunately, were railroaded through congress—vitally affect these Indian employés, not only in the matter of their employment but equally so in their personal and family relations, their property rights, their tribal and treaty standing. By this order they were peremptorily forbidden to express any opinion on the proposed changes, however drastic they might be. In the name of guardianship and protection for the Indian has been enacted a far reaching and deadly program of intimidation and suppression.

It is not, perhaps, so difficult to understand why this infringement of the personal liberty of the Indian and of the government employé was passed over in silence. In his testimony before a subcommittee of the house Indian affairs committee on Thursday, March 28, 1935, the commissioner of Indian affairs testified to his own devotion to the Civil Liberties union. The solicitor of the interior department, Nathan Margold, was, he stated, formerly the chairman of a committee of the Baldwin organization. The commissioner himself could not recall whether he was a member, but said "I am wholly in sympathy with that organization, whether or not I am a member." And again: "I certainly had very close relations with them but I do not know whether I was on their letterhead." Questioned as to the position of the secretary, the commissioner replied:

"I believe that you will find that Mr. Ickes and Mrs. Ickes would say the same thing that I am saying, that they believe in the work of the American Civil Liberties union. . . . I would be surprised if they had not contributed money."

In other words, the guiding spirits behind the gag order are all members or at least supporters of an organization ostensibly designed to uphold freedom of speech. There is an inconsistency here which Mr. Baldwin should be called upon to explain. FLORA WARREN SEYMOUR.

"TOBACCO ROAD."

Chicago, Oct. 25.—So "Tobacco Road" won out! Temporarily, let us hope! So, in this queer world of ours, evil triumphs over good, but just for a while.

If "Tobacco Road" is such an accurate portrayal of our backwoods brethren's degeneracy and debauchery, and as such is intended to arouse our sympathy and indignation, I say let it be shown to the selected few who are able and willing to attempt betterment of the situation. In my opinion there can be no justification, no object in springing such an exhibit upon an unsuspecting public.

Without sanctioning or abetting the burlesques and the nudes, one is compelled to admit that the human body is a work of art, and as the art of a Master, truly beautiful.

The obscenity, filth and blasphemy of "Tobacco Road" surpasses the wildest imaginings. One need not be puritan-minded to shudder at the oft repeated, senseless oaths which tumble so easily from the lips of the leading character. I left the theater before the completion of the orgy upon the stage, genuinely nauseated and thoroughly disgusted.

E. E. T.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—One wonders why Mayor Kelly concentrated on "Tobacco Road," which affects but a small part of the public, and that the more intelligent class, and allows the movie theaters to use devices that are making gamblers of thousands.

HOPEFUL.

Niles Center, Ill., Oct. 25.—What surprised me most of all in the issue of closing "Tobacco Road" which, by the way, I thought a corking good play and beautifully acted, was the fact that Mayor Kelly and Henry Hull shook hands and broadcast side by side, with no reference to the play being closed. Why didn't the mayor bust Mr. Henry Hull in the snoot? MATTIE FAULKNER.

MONEY FOR ARMORIES.

Plainfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—In the list of Illinois cities which will receive money for the building of National Guard armories was the $232,000 apportionment for Rockford.

On the same page was the account of a speech of Mr. R. L. Moore, executive secretary of the Illinois State Teachers' association, delivered at Rockford, stating that Rockford schools and schools of other Illinois cities cannot expect help from the special session of the legislature.

Illinois is to receive over $5,000,000 for armories. Is Mussolini thinking of capturing Illinois when he finishes Ethiopia? What could $5,000,000 do for our schools and our poor this winter?

REV. H. R. NEUMAN.

THE BREAD TAX.

Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 22.—We have before us your editorial entitled "The Bread Tax." As one of the downtrodden tax collectors for the processing tax on wheat, we thank you for so intelligently discussing this question. The bakers have been so very hesitant in passing on this tax to the consumer that many of them are financially embarrassed. The time has come when they must raise the price of the bread or else they will become bankrupt.

EDWARD H. SWANDER,
Vice President, Swander Bakery Company.

OR A FINGER UNCROSSER.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Hereafter, whenever a President takes the oath of office a lie detector ought to be used. Had this method been in vogue before, we might have avoided our present predicament.

NO. You can't stop hair from falling out with Charles Nessler's PRO-KER Treatment. Nor with anything else, for that matter. Nature intends that hair should fall out; and should be constantly replaced with a growth of new, live, lustrous hair.

The trouble is following unscientific advice, we go at the proposition backwards. We fail to help nature replace fallen hair. In fact, we often hinder natural replacement.

PRO-KER, Charles Nessler's latest achievement, helps the scalp perform its natural function—to replace falling hair with new, live, healthy hair. Excess oiliness, dandruff, itching scalp are secondary symptoms relieved by the healthful application of the PRO-KER Treatment.

TROLLEYS FIGHT RIVALS; DEVELOP FAST, EASY CARS

Surface Lines Here Ready to Buy 100 Units.

Faced with the competition of new methods of local transportation, the street car industry has come to realize, according to transit engineers, that modern cars, embodying revolutionary improvements in speed, comfort and appearance, offer the most practical means of holding present trafic and of regaining lost riders.

After several years' research, street cars have been redesigned from track to trolley within the past two years and many cities have new vehicles in operation or under construction.

In New York City, the Brooklyn and Queens Transit system soon will have 100 new cars rolling. The Capital Transit company of Washington has 20 new units on its lines as part of a broad modernization program. Baltimore, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland and Cleveland systems have announced the prospective acquisition of new equipment.

The Situation in Chicago.

Chicago Surface lines has had two experimental cars in operation on the Clark street division for more than a year and is now ready to buy 100 new units if the court under whose supervision it operates will approve the purchase.

Obsolescence in street cars was comparatively slow for many years but recent improvements have thrown into relief the inadequacies of most of the equipment now in use. It is estimated that of all street cars in the country about half have been in use 20 years or more and more than 30 per cent are from 15 to 20 years old, leaving less than 20 per cent of relatively recent construction.

The near elimination of noise in operation of the new cars has been one of the most notable improvements in this field. Through light weight construction and better motors and machinery, speed has been increased and the quick braking necessary with fast acceleration and rapid movement has been developed. Wide pneumatically operated doors reduce loading time.

New Vehicles Fast and Easy.

Appearance and riding comfort have been stressed in designing the new car. Starting is less jerky; lighting and ventilation have been modernized; entrance areas and isle are more roomy, and seats more comfortable. Sponsors of the new cars declare they are as fast as any vehicle on the streets and are able to maintain their place in trafic as loading and unloading permit.

In New York the addition of new transit equipment has not been confined to street cars and buses, but there also is the beginning of a movement to modernize elevated and subway cars. Outside New York, however, there has been relatively little replacement of elevated or subway cars in the last few years. The rapid transit company in Chicago made its last large purchases of new equipment in 1924 and 1926 when about 300 elevated cars were added.

New York L and Subway Car.

The most recent experiment in elevated and subway cars represents a complete departure from the conventional type. In July, 1934, the New York Rapid Transit company placed in operation two multi-sectioned units for use on both elevated and subway lines. The experiment has been followed up with orders for 25 new units to be delivered early next year.

Like most of the new streamlined railroad trains, the new cars comprise an articulated unit. The two now in operation consist of five cars each, mounted on six trucks.

The cars were designed with the objectives of light weight, passenger comfort, high speed and rapid acceleration and stopping. The cars weigh less than half those of conventional construction and are said to make possible an increase in scheduled speed of 40 per cent.

Orders for 500 Placed.

Other new elevated and subway cars now under construction, while of conventional appearance, have numerous improvements. All are designed with quick loading a chief purpose. The New York Independent Subway system, city operated, has ordered 500 new cars similar to the 800 now in operation on its lines.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Frost Plays Tricks.

Oct. 27, 1935.

FREAKISH work of frost in the woods was revealed today when men were checking over the season's results in experiments with trees at the Tribune Experimental farm near Wheaton. Trees in the lowland are almost completely denuded, while many on the upland still are blazing with colorful leaves tinted with a mixture of gold, brown, and green.

Leaves are staying on later than usual this fall where the trees are growing on ridges, according to John Wallner, the farm's head gardener. A trip over the farm today revealed that on high land many leaves still are on oaks, honey locust, maples, catalpas, ginkgo, horse chestnut, and weeping willows, and the needles of tamarack trees.

Mr. Wallner says that an abundance of rain during the year has had much to do with trees on uplands retaining their leaves unusually late this fall. He points out that while catalpas still have some of their leaves on upland trees, they were among the first to lose their leaves in the lowlands this fall.

He found that heavy rainfall during the growing season this year had much to do with the fine showing elms made on the higher ground at the farm. This was particularly noticeable where trees, included in the farm's "feeding" tests, were treated with fertilizer. Mr. Wallner says that the liberal supply of water in the soil dissolved the plant food in the fertilizer, setting it free so that it was readily available.

Trees that were fed artificially produced an excellent dark green foliage this summer. Two hundred pounds each of commercial fertilizer and bone meal were worked into the soil with bars and forks around each one of the big elms. The old trees are about 50 feet tall and 24 inches in diameter. They grew twice as much this summer as they have in recent years, according to Mr. Wallner. Fertilizer also was used around catalpas, sycamores, hard maples, honey locusts, oaks, hickories, and ginkgos. It was applied a year ago and the trees all responded satisfactorily.

Mr. Wallner is particularly pleased with the way rain, coupled with plant feeding, brought a valuable old elm through the summer safely after the roots had been severely cut back in the construction of a building at the farm.

Growing trees from seed is being tried at the Wheaton farm. Recently a bushel of horse chestnuts were planted. The nuts were grown on the farm. Holes were dug a foot deep and then partially filled with soil so that the nuts could be covered with rich soil to a depth of three or four inches.

Mr. Wallner has another plan of starting horse chestnuts under cold frames. They are planted in a mixture of rich soil and sand, half and half, a foot deep. The nuts are covered with about eight inches of this sand and soil and then mulched with leaves. In two years they produce plants about 12 inches tall.

Under this plan they are transplanted to their permanent location in the spring of the third year. They are set in holes a foot square. The roots are covered with a rich soil, watered, mulched with leaves or peat moss—then "you can forget about them," says the farm's head gardener.

The Wheaton farm flock of 433 sheep was sorted last week and more than 100 wether lambs were selected for feeding. They will be finished for the market this fall. One hundred and one ewe lambs were picked out and will be kept for breeding purposes. There are about 200 ewes, ranging from one to four years old, in the breeding flock that will be mated this fall to four Southdown rams.

Men at the Wheaton farm will finish this week the plowing of 55 acres of timothy, clover, and alfalfa fields which are to be used in growing corn and oats next year. All of the corn grown on the farm this year was cut and shocked or made into silage.

TRIAL OF LANGER, 3 AIDS IS SLATED FOR TOMORROW

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Former Gov. William Langer and three political associates are scheduled to go on trial in federal court here Tuesday on charges of conspiracy to solicit funds from federal relief workers.

The other defendants are State Senator Oscar Erickson, chairman of the Republican state central committee; Frank Vogel, former state highway commissioner, and R. A. Kinzer, former secretary of the state relief organization.

They are accused of soliciting funds from relief workers to support the Leader, a Nonpartisan league newspaper. The government contended the employés "contributed" under threats that their jobs would be endangered if they did not do so. All except Erickson were convicted at their first trial more than a year ago. The state Circuit Court of Appeals ordered a new trial. Erickson was ill and his case was continued.

U. S. GIVES SHARE OF BOXER FUND TO CHINESE SCHOOLS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 27.—The American share of the Boxer indemnity will be used in part to help the Chinese government's newly launched program to educate the country's illiterate masses, it was decided today.

The China Foundation for the promotion of education and culture, which administers the indemnity fund, decided to appropriate 300,000 Shanghai dollars [about $101,850] toward the government's mass education movement.

Nelson T. Johnson, United States minister, attended the meeting of the foundation trustees who ordered the appropriation.

Myra Little Betrothed to Louisville Man

Briggs Gettys and Mother at Announcement Tea.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A T tea parties yesterday afternoon in two of the city's suburbs the engagements to be married of two attractive Chicago Junior league members were announced. In Oak Park Mr. and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur gave a small tea at their home to announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Jean, to Gustavus Babson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Babson, also of Oak Park, and in Evanston Mr. and Mrs. Charles George Little entertained at their residence to tell their friends that their daughter, Myra, is engaged to Briggs Gettys of Louisville.

Those who attended the Littles' party had a chance to meet Mr. Gettys and his mother, Mrs. Francis McHeldin Gettys, who had come from their Kentucky home to spend the week-end in Evanston. Miss Little is a graduate of Bryn Mawr, the class of 1934, and in December will receive her master's degree from the University of Chicago. She took her junior year at the Sorbonne in Paris, and made a formal debut in the early autumn of 1931. Her fiancé is a Yale man, the class of 1927, and was a member of the Elizabethan society when he was in New Haven. No date for the wedding has been set.

Miss MacArthur Presented Informally.

Miss MacArthur never was presented formally to society, although a reception she and her mother gave last spring for Mrs. Charles MacArthur [Helen Hayes] at the Woman's Athletic club served as a sort of informal debut for the pretty and petite Miss MacArthur. Her romance with young Mr. Babson started some years ago, for both have lived in Oak Park since they were children and both their families have summer places at the Wausaukee club in Wisconsin. The Babsons also have a farm near St. Charles, which is one of the most beautiful country places near Chicago.

Miss MacArthur attended Miss Wright's school at Bryn Mawr after being graduated from the Girls' Latin school, and her fiancé prepared for Dartmouth at Deerfield academy. He was graduated in 1933 from Dartmouth. He and Miss MacArthur plan to be married during the Christmas holidays.

Chicagoans to Attend Van Nice-Swift Wedding.

There will be several Chicagoans going to Boston for the marriage Nov. 22 of Miss Ruth Swift and Errett Van Nice, for although only relatives and a few close friends will attend the ceremony and reception, Miss Swift has many Chicago relatives and Mr. Van Nice is a Chicagoan. The wedding will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the Leslie Lindsay Memorial chapel, adjoining Emanuel church, with a reception following at 17 Commonwealth avenue, the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hastings Swift.

The Misses Lucile and Eleanor Swift will attend their sister. After a wedding trip Mr. Van Nice and his bride will make their home on the north side of Chicago.

The Walter Brewsters, who are enjoying this season of the year at their Lake Forest home more than ever because they were in town all summer, entertained a group of friends from the city at luncheon yesterday as a sort of farewell to the country, for they will be moving back to town in another week.

A number of city dwellers motored west yesterday to attend a luncheon given at their home in Geneva by the Edmund Rafterys for Mme. Romola Nijinska, who has been in Chi-

Film Actor Invents New Way of Saying 'I Love You' to Girl

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Here's how the bright young actors in Hollywood do their wooing: Erik Rhodes wrote a love song. He dedicated it to his heart interest—Katherine De Mille. Then he went to a friend who conducts a radio program and received permission to introduce his composition over the air. This he did, under the assumed name of Demetrio Trobemsky.

But shortly before the broadcast Rhodes phoned Miss De Mille, told her to listen to the broadcast, and that Demetrio really was himself.

The recent earthquake tumbled down the false fronts that made the movie set for the Virginia mountain village for "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" on location at Big Bear, Cal.

George Raft takes thirty minutes' road work every morning at 6:30 and takes his stooge, "Killer" Mack Grey, along with him to the Paramount Cubs baseball park where he collects the exercise. Grey doesn't run, he just watches Raft and then rubs him down afterward.

THE use of the Latin word peccavi, meaning "I have sinned," in this space the other day reminded a friend of the famous pun made by Sir Charles James Napier when, after his victory at Miani in 1843, the Indian province of Sind passed from the control of the emirs to that of Great Britain. His first notification of his victory to his government consisted of the laconic message, "Peccavi."

INCIDENTALLY, Napier seems to have had a flair for colorful expression. Writing of the annexation of Sind, he described it as "a very advantageous, useful and humane piece of rascality." Mussolini, please note.

PROBABLY we never shall hear the last of that Middleburg chocolate cake, and hereafter we leave all the recipes to Miss Meade's department, where they belong. The requests for the recipe are still coming in, and considerably more than a hundred have been mailed out. Then this letter arrived yesterday:

"... How I wish that Negro mammy had kept that recipe where it belonged—in her 'haid.' If the way to a man's heart is through his stomach I'm afraid I'm in for a lengthy and dangerous, if not fatal, detour."

The writer adds a postscript, too:

"P. S.: I wish that Negro mammy were here to help me keep the top layer from sliding off the bottom. The icing is so runny a spoon would be useless. It will take a straw to navigate."

REMEMBER Danger, the famous bull terrier that had a tailor-made leopard coat, a motor car of his own, and a big bank account in his own name? He still has the leopard coat, but he's poor again, like the rest of us. His owner, a Chicago restaurateur, who recently opened up in a handsome old Rush street mansion, had to use Danger's money to get started again. Thus a few evenings ago when a young woman, upon entering the restaurant, saw the dog and commented that she wouldn't eat in a restaurant in which a dog was permitted to enter, Danger's owner said quietly:

"I don't believe Danger would care to have you in this restaurant if you feel that way. You see he owns 60 per cent of the place."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Those two indefatigable one time Chicago newspaper boys, Charlie MacArthur and Ben Hecht who gave us "Front Page" and "The Scoundrel," have been at it again! Now, "Barbary Coast," a lusty melodrama of San Francisco in the days of '49, emerges from their studio.

The seething history of that period is always good for a story and this new yarn of gamblers and vigilantes and women who were no ladies and the gold fever epidemic that swept the country is an exciting one well told.

It's principal characters are Louis Chamalis, gambler king of the sprawling, fog drenched, muddy, red lighted town till the vigilantes dethroned him; "The Swan," who is the lure to his crooked gaming tables; "Knuckles," the tall, handsome, sinister, black shirted Man Friday who does his dirty work [and it is dirty!]; Col. Marcus Aurelius Cobb, who tries to run an honest newspaper and dies in the attempt; James Carmichael, a poet from Gramercy Park who makes his pile and loses it [for a time]—and his heart to "The Swan," and "Old Atrocity," a wily, tobacco spitting, conscienceless old cuss who gets matted in everybody's hair.

The narrative unreels colorfully and with punch. It is peppered with racy dialog and the characterizations are vivid.

Personally, I was most impressed by Frank Craven's interpretation of Col. Cobb, Edward Robinson's keen portrayal of the evil Chamalis, and Brian Donlevy's cruelly impassive drawing of "Knuckles." Joel McCrea is endearing as the soulful, nice-minded boy from the east. Harry Carey is splendid as leader of the vigilantes.

Miss Hopkins? Well—she's clever but unconvincing. But the fault, as I see it, is in the writing and not in her interpretation. The authors simply haven't made her ring true. However, she's lovely to look at and she can act.

Staging, costumes, backgrounds, and photography are highly effective. Action is swift and engrossing.

If you like vigorous, suspenseful melodramas founded on fact—why, I should say that "Barbary Coast" is just your ticket.

La Argentina, Don Cossacks Fill Theater

BY HAZEL MOORE.

The Chicago Civic Opera house burst amazingly into bloom over the week-end with a pair of concerts which in each case practically filled the huge auditorium. That of La Argentina, Spanish dancer, on Saturday night was given under the auspices of the Women's auxiliary of the Chicago Medical society, and that of the Don Cossack male chorus yesterday afternoon also was a benefit. In each case the public was the beneficiary, for La Argentina and the Don Cossacks each represent the top of their chosen field.

What a woman of the theater La Argentina is! 'No one knew on Saturday evening when she thumbed her nose so impishly at the audience in "La Fregona," the boisterous little dance which she was forced to repeat at the end of the first half of her program, that she was on the point of collapse. Fortunately, there was plenty of medical attention in the house, and she continued the second half with apparently her usual vitality and high spirit.

Argentina is more than a dancer of Spanish dances; she is a Goyescas come to life, she is rhythm, and music and drama. Each of her costumes is a studied type for the dance; her rhythm is pervading, and the sound of her vibrant castanets, now dulcet and now thunderous, is the most dramatic of music. Besides this, Argentina has the ability to transport one to the very country of her dance. So on Saturday evening her audience went with her to Argentina for her new suite of popular dances, and to Andalusia for the second of her new suites. The third took one to Madrid for the "Chula" and for La Corrida [impressions of a bullfight]. Other dances on her program were chosen from old favorites.

The Don Cossack Russian male chorus is now undoubtedly the most brilliant singing organization touring. The volume of sound produced by thirty throats yesterday was magnificent and the delicate pianissimo of almost soprano sweetness entrancing to hear. Each individual would seem to be a soloist as one voice soared out from the rest, producing a splendid baritone, a clarion tenor, or an astounding organ-point bass. One solo bass of the organization is said to be able to sing a D below middle C. The result is indescribable.

Of all their songs yesterday which took one to the very soil of old Russia the arrangement of the familiar Song of the Indian Host from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera "Sadko" was the most entrancing. An entirely different program was presented by the chorus last night.

At the same hour the Studebaker theater was the scene of another festival, a celebration of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Jenny Lind, given by the United Swedish singers of seven male choruses of 300 voices and Marie Sidenius Zendt as the Jenny Lind soloist.

Mme. Zendt, who is a specialist in the lore of her famous compatriot, was costumed charmingly in a ruffled gold gown of the period of Jenny Lind. Her first offering, the difficult Casta Diva, from Bellini's "Norma," was, of course, one of Lind's famous show pieces. Mme. Zendt maintained a lovely legato throughout, and the coloratura pyrotechnics were brilliantly done. She was ably assisted by Charles Lurvey at the piano.

The chorus obviously enjoyed its singing, which was generally done with accuracy and good tone. It, too, boasted a bass who sang a low E flat with astounding ease. The theater was filled.

The San Carlo Opera company repeated "Carmen," with Ina Bourskaya and Joseph Chekova, to a full house last night. "The Jewels of the Madonna" will be sung tonight for the first time in several years, by Bianca Saroya and Dimitri Onofrei.

Silhouette

From a Chicago shop: A dinner costume of black and white.

Puffed white ermine sleeves in this black velvet dinner and dance dress accent the unusual, deeply cut black silhouette. The neckline is high and untrimmed in front, the skirt flares around the ankles. The tiny black velvet cocktail hat is doubly flattering because of the face veil. Both hat and dress are available in a Chicago shop.

Bright Colors Mark Winter Sports Clothes

Reds, Greens and Yellows Appear in Hosiery.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Gay flowers in vivid colorings for the head, almost as bright as colors on the fingers, are ready for all sorts of winter sports and spectator sports wear. And there are some rather spectacular socks and hosiery.

You've weathered the shock of red and green and even yellow gloves. They do make grand accents for tweeds and street clothes of tweeds and monotone woolens. So, before you know it, these colored woolen stockings probably will be just as popular.

The lisle stockings are as soft and —amazingly—almost as thin appearing as your service silks. They are perfect companions for your swanky walking oxfords in dark green, dark red, or russet lether. A lot of the red and green shades can be matched with the same colored fabric gloves that everybody wears. A stunning oxford gray shade is available, one of the best oxfords we've seen in years.

You can find imported lisles with tricky new weaves, or patterns, ribs, lace, and a sort of double checked effect.

Sturdy woolen stockings aren't what they used to be. These new wools come in grand colors—red, green, blue, and brown—and smart women are wearing them for street, town and country. Wool stocking sales are reaching new highs, and it is no wonder when even a silk stocking enthusiast can like them.

Knee length wools to pull up over your silk stockings are ready for blustery football Saturdays and weekends in the country. And as something really to get excited about, ask to see the incredibly soft angora stockings in beige tan only. They are as soft and fleecy and warm as anything you can wear.

BORDER BREED

By William MacLeod Raine

SYNOPSIS.

Young Dan Clifford is driving a mule team carrying freight when he meets and befriends 17 year old Milly Sutherland. She and a young brother and sister are en route to Los Pinos, wild border town of the untamed west. Their father died on the way. In Los Pinos, Dan, through Polly Doble, gets Milly work washing, and Ah Sin, a Chinaman, to help her. Jasper Ford, gambler and killer, forces his attentions on Milly. Dan publicly humiliates him. Ford swears revenge. Trouble brews between the gambling element and Mexicans. The salt lakes, long public property, are claimed by one Zack Black, representing the gamblers. Black, Lou Stone, and a group of gamblers are besieged at the salt lakes by Mexicans. Dan and his friend, Sam Jones of the rangers, act as peacemakers and accomplish their rescue. Lou Stone breaks with Ford. Milly and Dan become engaged, but when Dan is appointed sheriff Milly refuses to marry him, fearing he'll become a killer. Jonathan Edwards Hart, a famous killer, who was sent to prison 16 years before because of Ford's testimony, arrives in Los Pinos. He holds up the Last Chance. Dan, unarmed, arrests Hart. While Hart is out on bail, Ford shoots him, claiming self-defense.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

THE NEW MARSHAL FUNCTIONS.

"Tell the sherif I'll be at the office of The Last Chance if he wants me," Ford announced. He added, to suggest the right point of view to those present: "Hart threatened my life today. No man in the community was safe while he terrorized it. Only last night he robbed our roulette game. I had to kill him in the public interest."

The killer turned and walked from the room, an erect and dignified embodiment of justice.

Through the back door Lou Stone, newly appointed deputy marshal, walked swiftly into the Tivoli. His broad shoulders pushed a way through the crowd. Reaching the fallen man, he knelt on one knee to make an examination.

"Who did this?" he asked quietly.

Half a dozen men started to tell him at the same time. He silenced them and named one he knew to give him the facts. While the man was talking he pulled Hart's gun from the holster, then broke and examined it to see how many if any shots had been fired. The cylinder was empty of shells.

Hart had been unable to live up to his promise to reform, but he had kept faith with himself in one particular. Though he had carried a gun in the hope of deterring other killers, he had made it impossible for him to take life with it.

An hour after the death of Jonathan Edwards Hart the money taken from the upstairs roulette room at The Last Chance was recovered by Polly Doble. She found it in a sack that had been dropped into a rain water barrel placed to catch the flow from the roof. Her guess was that Hart had leaned out of his window and flung the sack into the barrel. No doubt he intended to retrieve his loot later, when the hunt for the bandit had spent itself.

Mrs. Doble at once hunted up Dan Clifford and turned over to him the wet sack and its contents. She found him with one of his deputies, a gambler whom she knew by sight named Lou Stone. They were having a little argument.

Dan put his boot on the outflung hand.

The finding of the money apparently established the guilt of Hart. Dan locked it in a table drawer.

"What are you going to do about this killing?" she asked.

"We're going to arrest the murderer," Dan said.

"You'll be careful," she begged.

"We're always careful."

As soon as Mrs. Doble had gone the two men renewed their argument.

"Better change your mind and let me go along with you," Stone urged. "Especially if you aim to arrest Ford with his gang around him."

Dan shook his head. "No, Stone. Jasper Ford is not a fool and that he will see it is bad medicine to kill an officer come to arrest him for this Hart business. He knows no jury in Texas is likely to convict him for rubbing out a man with the record of Hart. I look for him to come along with me as peaceable as Mary's little lamb."

Stone shrugged his shoulders. "All right. Have it your own way. Maybe you are right. Anyhow, you're the boss in this office. Only, if you want to do all the work yourself I don't see any need of having a couple of deputies."

The two men walked down the street together. Out of the Tivoli came a heavy set, broken nosed man. He gave a whoop, dragged out a gun, and fired it at the sign of a Chinese restaurant. The man was Pete Johnson, very much in liquor.

"I'll take care of this," Dan told his deputy.

He moved forward swiftly, with a light catlike tread. Johnson turned, caught sight of him, and gave a yell of derision.

"Well, well, if it's not the tough marshal himself," the drunken man jeered.

"Put up that gun," ordered Dan curtly.

"He says for me to put up my gun," Johnson laughed contemptuously, his wavering weapon pointed more or less directly at the officer. "If I don't, he'll likely put me in the calaboose."

Dan's fist lashed out and caught the man on the chin. Johnson went back as if a battering ram had struck him. He hit the ground at full length. Before he could move Dan put his boot on the outflung wrist, rested one hundred and eighty pounds on it, and stooped to remove the weapon.

The marshal called to his deputy. "Mr. Stone, will you take this man to the jail and lock him up?"

Johnson sat up, groggily. "What did you hit me with?" he asked.

Half a dozen loungers had seen the knockout. In the ensuing half minute that number had increased to forty. Any kind of disturbance could draw a crowd in Los Pinos day or night. The newcomers asked questions. Those present from the first satisfied their curiosity.

"This hellamile marshal knocked out Pete Johnson and took his gun from him. Pete was loaded up with tarantula juice and had started to howl," String Beans explained.

Dan turned and walked away without any comment. He had discovered that a certain aloof indifference helped to maintain one's prestige. That his reputation was much greater than his merits as a fighting man he was very well aware, but he took a good deal of pains to do nothing to diminish it. No longer was he a nail-fellow-well-met companion to half a hundred casual acquaintances. At times it was difficult to hold to it, but he managed to maintain a manner of polite and slightly austere reticence.

The marshal found the man he wanted at the office of The Last Chance. With him were the proprietor of the place, Wilkins, Black, Derby, Cooper, and one or two other choice spirits. They were celebrating the victory of Jasper Ford.

Some one knocked on the door and Wilkins called to come in, not troubling to rise.

"Must be Pete Johnson," guessed Cooper.

Dan was already walking into the room. He nodded casually to those present. For Cooper he had a special word.

"Pete can't come, Tom."

That he was a focus of resentful eyes Dan knew. In this crowd nobody in Los Pinos was less welcome.

"Why can't he?" demanded Cooper sullenly, a glass in his hand.

"He got a little too noisy and I had to put him where he will cool off for a few hours," Dan said placidly.

"And Pete let you do it?" Cooper snarled.

"Why yes," Dan replied mildly. "You know I've been appointed marshal, Tom."

"Did you come here to tell us you have arrested Johnson?" Ford asked harshly.

The marshal was standing. The others were still sitting, with the exception of Cooper who had jumped to his feet at sight of Dan.

"No, Mr. Ford, I came here to arrest you."

The two principals looked at each other. Their hard eyes clashed, the gaze of neither yielding in the least.

"What for?"

"For killing Hart."

"He had threatened my life. He was reaching for a gun when I fired."

"If so, the court will no doubt free you."

"I killed him in self-defense. Do you think I'll let an upstart like you arrest me for it?"

One's Capacity to Enjoy Is Shown by Lips

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

Four of the five main desires of human beings which are denoted by facial features have been described. We now come to the last, the desire for physical pleasure, shown by the red parts of the lips.

GINGER ROGERS.

The difference in desire when the lips are very full and large and when they are thin and small is one of ease of expression rather than inherent strength. A person with large lips, speaking of the red parts only, is capable of a steady flow of tender feelings, while one with thin lips is handicapped through deficient means of communication.

The attraction between individuals who are opposite extremes in respect to the red parts of the lips is very strong. People with more normal equipment of this kind are not often disturbed by emotional reactions to the extent both these others are. Their interests and energies are naturally conserved for and directed toward the useful rather than the merely pleasurable in life. An overflow and a damming up of primitive feelings are both unfortunate tendencies and should be watched, especially in adolescence and in old age.

Ginger Rogers' profile shows an assembly of features in different stages of development. Her personality would charm through unexpected changes in temperament. Her saucily upturned nose leads you to an anticipation of quick antagonism and, instead, you may experience a sample of her liberal minded, uncritical attitude.

You notice her protruding chin and think of steady, stable perseverance and become aware of a mercurial shift of attention which follows your every mental move. You look at her short, self-forgetting upper lip and may believe people would take advantage of her, but then you discover the high-ridged bony part of the nose, and that denotes a demand for respect.

BY MARY MEADE.

The weekly arrival of the laundry case means clean duds just incidentally to young collegians. 'Tis a day fraught with bitter disappointment if all available nooks and crannies in said case are not carefully filled with snackables.

No matter how generous the meals served in dormitory or house, no matter how clever these serious minded young people are at filching an extra dessert or a napkinful of crackers for future consumption, the laundry case treat from home remains among the gastronomic highlights of life at the altars of higher education.

Cheese and homemade preserves are about the best bet any sympathetic mother can tuck in among the clean shirts and pajamas. Both are easy to pack and fit graciously into corners. An occasional box of crackers to go with these likewise is a good idea, and it boasts the additional advantage of being light enough to keep the postage bills down within reasonable limits. [Incidentally, we know one crispy, buttery tasting cracker that refuses to go limp even under such disheartening conditions as being left on a dormitory window sill overnight.]

Cookies that don't shatter to crums in the mailing, dried fruits or, perhaps, a sweet-tooth charmer, these, too, are assured enthusiastic reception. Maybe, if you send a confection that doesn't dry out in transit you'll be rewarded with an extra notebook-scribbled letter that week. Anyway, it's worth a try.

How about one of these in the next laundry case you mail?

Chocolate Dominoes.

1 cup nut meats
½ cup figs
½ cup dates
1 tablespoon orange juice
Grated rind 1 orange
1 square unsweetened chocolate

Run the nut meats [pecans, walnuts, or a mixture of the two], the figs, and dates through the food chopper. Mix with the orange juice and grated orange rind. Blend thoroughly and roll on a board, sprinkled with powdered or confectioner's sugar, to a thickness of about ½ inch. Cut in small rectangles, domino size, and spread thinly with the chocolate, which has been melted over hot water. Decorate with small pieces of blanched almonds.

Pecan Sticks.

1 cup chopped pecans
1 egg white
1 cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat the egg white until stiff and gradually whip in the brown sugar, salt, and vanilla. Fold in the pecans [other nut meats may be used], spread the mixture in a buttered, shallow pan and bake in a moderately slow oven. When done, cut in slender sticks, using a sharp, greased knife and remove from pan while warm.

Punishing a Child Fails Flatly Unless He Sees Connection

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

She was talking about her small son: "Often when he's been punished he'll do the same thing right over again. Sometimes we send him upstairs to his room after we've patiently explained his wrongdoing, and then we'll call him down later and ask, to impress it on his mind:

"'Now, Richard, why were you sent upstairs to your room to stay all by yourself?' and he won't have the faintest idea!"

Children are often in the dark as to what grownups mean. If you must punish, at least make the punishment bear some real relation to the crime. Isolation—segregation—don't fit all misbehavior.

But, in general, go slow on the punishment. And always remember that the object of your punishment is not to find an outlet for your anger or annoyance, but to teach your children. That thought should make you careful—or else make you see that there are usually better ways of teaching them to think and act as you wish them to.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hackett are arriving today with Mrs. William Gold Hibbard, who is bringing them from New York by motor for a fortnight's visit with her in Winnetka. This is the Hacketts' first visit here since they left Chicago several years ago to live in County Waterford, Irish Free State, and in the interim Mr. Hackett has published his widely acclaimed biographies of Henry VIII. and Francis I.

Forsythe Sherfesees Depart for East.

After a ten day visit with the Max Epsteins in Winnetka the Forsythe Sherfesees left late last week to motor east. They will visit in Pittsburgh and then in Philadelphia, where they will be the guests of Mrs. Sherfesee's sister, Mrs. Arthur Rush. By Christmas they will be in Mexico City and it will be well after the first of the year before they return to their home in France.

Mrs. Sherfesee's son, John B. Ryerson, who accompanied her and Mr. Sherfesee to Chicago, will remain here a little longer.

Mrs. Sherfesee is the former Mrs. Arthur Ryerson of Chicago and her home at 2700 Lake View avenue was the scene of many smart gatherings during the years she lived here. The house now belongs to the Wolcott Blairs, who arrived in the city last Thursday for one of their infrequent stays in Chicago.

The Blairs, who will be returning to their house on Long Island in a day or two, spent a crowded weekend in Lake Forest as the guests of the William H. Mitchells. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler gave a cocktail party for them before a dinner given by the Mitchells Saturday evening, and yesterday the T. Clifford Rodmans entertained at luncheon for them.

Stephen Y. Hords Welcome a Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter Friday at the Presbyterian hospital.

"The Fortified Personality" will be the subject of a course of twelve lectures on psychology to be given by Mrs. Byrd Arnold Smith at The Cradle on Monday mornings at 10:30 o'clock, starting today. Following the lectures, at luncheon Mrs. Smith will hold a round table discussion on the morning's subject. Tickets may be obtained through The Cradle.

Mrs. Loyal Davis is giving a tea this afternoon at her residence, 219 Lake Shore drive, for members of the committee in charge of a formal supper dance to be given at the Drake on Nov. 15 by alumni of Northwestern university in celebration of the 80th anniversary of the opening of classes at the university. Mrs. George A. Paddock is general chairman of the committee.

According to CULBERTSON

SUIT BID VALUATION.

Knowing whether to bid at all, or when to stop once you have started, resolves itself into a process of accurately estimating the number of tricks you and your partner can take. While the words "never" and "always" never should be used and always should be taboo among bridge players, modern scientific methods have taken most of the "guess" out of the situation under normal conditions.

The table of honor tricks is fixed by the defensive value of the honors. It is based on the fact that usually, when your opponents are playing a hand at a trump contract, no more than two tricks can be won against them in any suit, because declarer or dummy will be able to ruff the third round. But when you or your partner becomes declarer the danger of opponents' ruff is much less, as it usually is possible to draw their trumps before they can use them for ruffing.

Therefore, at your own bid, combinations of three or more honors and, sometimes, two card combinations, have much greater value than on defense. In estimating their possibilities for your own suit bids give them their full value. A K Q J can be expected to take no more than two tricks on defense, but it is worth four tricks at your own bid. J 10 9 8, which promises no tricks at all against the opponents' suit bid, can safely be counted as one winner at a suit bid of your own. A Q J, figured at 1½ tricks defensively, offers the certainty of two and the possibility of three to the declarers' partnership. On the same basis, all other honor combinations automatically increase in value when computed from the standpoint of a final bid by your own partnership.

In addition to the full value of the honors you also count your long suits, both the trump suit and any side suit of four cards or more, provided the side suit is headed by at least the jack. Count all long cards beyond three in a suit as one-half winner; in the trump suit, if your partner has supported it, all cards more than three are counted as one winner each.

In supporting your partner's suit, also count honors at their full value, and long suits. Trump honors now are worth more than their honor trick value, one full winner being counted for ace, king, or queen-jack, and queen being counted one-half winner. Ruffing possibilities also are counted by the supporting hand. With three cards in partner's suit, count one-half winner for any doubleton, one winner for any singleton, and two winners for any void in a side suit. With four cards of partner's suit, double the winners for doubleton and singleton side suit holdings, and count three winners for a void suit. With this sound method of counting, a partnership can arrive at an accurate estimate of the tricks it can win.

Raising with Weak Trumps.

When partner has shown a strong suit by a powerful rebid of that suit, it often is proper to raise his suit with as little trump support as J x or 10 x.

3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	[Final bid]

Opening lead, ♠ 5 by West.

After hearing a one no trump response to his opening bid, South's jump to three hearts practically commanded North to bid again, unless North had less than one honor trick. Many players would bid three no trump with North's hand, because usually it is not proper to raise a suit with less than Q x or x x x, even when partner has bid it twice. But when a player has made a jump rebid, he usually shows a strong suit. Under these circumstances North was correct in raising to four hearts. Had he bid three no trump, East and West would have run five club tricks immediately. At four hearts West opened the spade 5 and South made five odd. If East had held the trump king he would have made six, losing only one club.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My opponents reached three no trump by bidding one no trump, two no trump, three no trump. What should be my opening lead from ♠ K 9 5 2, ♥ Q 9 5, ♦ J 8 4 3, ♣ J 6?

Answer: The deuce of spades is slightly preferable to the three of diamonds. It is not wise to lead from a jack against no trump, if the suit contains only four cards or less.

With his apparently worthless hand, how can East discard to help his partner save a six heart contract?

Care of Hands Important in Beauty World

Women Becoming Aware of Needed Attention.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Interest in hand beauty grows apace. I am amused at the heat with which nail coloring continually is attacked by those who insist upon not liking high color nail enamel. Personally I like the tints on good looking, well kept hands. But in that clause lies the entire secret of their suitability.

It's fairly paralyzing to see ten little nail tips trying to shout down the grimy look of hands sometimes on view. As your adviser figures it out, the woman with the perfect hand for brilliant nail tint is one whose personal maid does all the handling of articles that might besmirch hand skin. Or, otherwise, one whose hands frequently are dipped in the waters that lathe and cleanse.

But why harp on that? Say You. The girls will go on painting and painting louder and brighter, regardless. Perhaps the suggestion of one connoisseur may be of interest. Women with large hands, says he, should not wear bright nail polish, for the same reason that large women should not wear wide stripes.

However, it was that current trial, the easily broken nail, that we set out to comment on. Here's one place you cannot trust to luck. You must soak the nails in something to make them resistant to suitcase opening, to window raising, to anything that bestirs in you an unladylike "Blimey! There goes another nail!"

Get a nourishing, penetrating nail cream, and plaster it well around cuticle, fingertips, and nails, and do it as regularly nightly as you wash the face. It's the only nail saving way known.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Not every creator of a gardenia perfume would encourage you to compare his perfume with the real flower itself. We were wide eyed the other day when a box came to this desk; in it were a real gardenia, white and velvety and almost heavy with fragrance, a tiny bottle of a new gardenia perfume and an artificial flower to wear when the real one went the way of all gardenias.

This gardenia perfume wins in the difficult test of comparison with the white aristocrat of flowers itself.

It escapes the cloying sweetness that is usually the pitfall for perfumers bent on climbing aboard the gardenia bandwagon. In it you'll find just the right notes of the sleepy sweetness the flower itself has with the undertone of tropical heaviness that makes the scent of gardenia one of the most fascinating perfumes.

The makers of this gardenia made one some time ago; we told them then that we didn't think it was good enough to be brought out since all their other floral odors were admirably lovely. This new one is beautiful.

This gardenia is most inexpensive, by the way. You'll find it in, of all places, a flower shop!

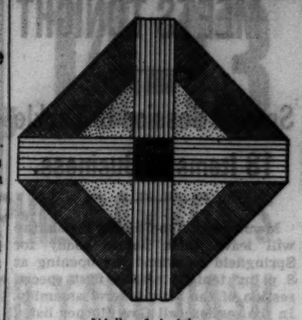
Old Quilt Block Employs Prints in Bright Colors



Walls of Jericho.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Walls of Jericho" is one of the oldest quilt patterns in existence, and one which always is made from printed materials. Brilliant colors, such as orange and yellow, form a favorite combination for this design. As may be seen in the illustration, the blocks are set together point to point instead of in the usual manner of square to square. The square formed by setting four walls together usually is of a brown print, with orange and yellow figures. The touch of lavender print material in the center creates quite a modern tone in an otherwise ancient quilt.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

"I feel FINE!"

The Doctors Know Best
And doctors have known this for years

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

I. Measure-out a cleansing dose of liquid laxative, regulating the amount to suit the age, condition and individual need.

II. Tomorrow, take less; let the regular muscular action of the bowels do part of the work—

III. Reduce the dose each time, until regularity has been completely restored.

MORE people could feel fine, be fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors and hospitals in relieving constipation.

Never take any laxative that is harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They give liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. It's the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried. You'll never go back to fixed doses of strong cathartics that act with such violence!

Ask your doctor. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. Or get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it doesn't give you absolute relief, if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes any sluggishness or biliousness due to constipation, simply bring it back and get your money back.

Try Syrup Pepsin! Take regulated doses until Nature has restored regularity.

SCHOOLS ASK AID AS LEGISLATURE MEETS TONIGHT

Special Session to Tackle 18 Items of Business.

Members of the Illinois legislature will leave their homes today for Springfield to attend the opening at 8 p. m. tonight of the first special session of the 59th general assembly. In the session call Gov. Horner listed eighteen specific subjects for the legislators to consider.

Chicago's board of education has two bills prepared for submission, one of which would aid in providing funds for teachers' salaries in December. This bill would amend the law governing the state school distributive fund to require monthly instead of quarterly payments to the schools.

Believes Proposal Convenient.

"This change would provide approximately $500,000 in payments for October and November, which otherwise would not be made until January," said James B. McCahey, school board president. "Collections of the taxes that go into the fund are made monthly, so there appears to be no reason why the payments cannot be made on the same basis."

Facing a deficit of $3,750,000, and with no funds available to pay teachers' salaries in December, Mr. McCahey and the board were hoping that the legislature would authorize the monthly payments and that the state would appropriate $2,384,256 as reimbursement to the Chicago schools for the state's share of maintaining classes and schools for delinquent, deaf, blind, and crippled children. The governor, however, did not include the debt settlement proposal in his call.

The school board's other bill is an amendment under which tax anticipation warants would be numbered when issued and would be redeemed in the same order. This provision, once in the school statute, was inadvertently left out when the law was amended several years ago.

Other Subjects to Be Up.

In adopting a new state trafic code in the last regular session, the provision that driving over 45 miles an hour should be considered prima facie evidence of reckless driving was omitted. The governor believes that this provision should be returned to the code and some effort may be made in that direction.

Other subjects in the call include unemployment insurance, amendments to the state's old age pension law and to the occupational diseases act, the insurance code, and a driver's license law. Many of these are controversial, and legislators are not sure that the session will end quickly.

CHURCH TRIAL OF DR. BUSWELL REOPENS TODAY

The Rev. Dr. J. Oliver Buswell, president of Wheaton college, will go on trial again this morning before a Presbyterian church court on charges that he refused to obey the mandate of the Presbyterian general assembly that he withdraw from membership on the outlawed independent Presbyterian board of foreign missions. His case was halted at an earlier trial in July because of procedure judged faulty under Presbyterian law. The trial will be held at Second Presbyterian church, 1936 South Michigan avenue. Dr. Buswell will be defended by the Rev. Dr. H. McAllister Griffiths of Philadelphia, a colleague of Prof. J. Gresham Machen of Westminster Theological seminary, Philadelphia, who is under sentence of suspension from the ministry, pending appeal to higher church courts, on similar charges to those filed against Dr. Buswell.

Important Coat News of the Season Is Reviewed in These Five Carson Coats

It's an exciting season in coats, this Fall of 1935, with Persian lamb running riot, and the military influence quickening the fashion pace. Coats seem to have taken on a more distinctive character, with armholes deeper, fabrics more patterned, and lines more swagger, more straightline or more flared, whichever style they choose to follow.

Carson's has sorted out the leading fashion facts of the season, all definitely established now by the success of the coats which feature them, and has summed them up in the five coats presented here—with emphasis on collars. All are from our Better Coats Section, created from the fine new fabrics, trimmed with furs of selected quality.

The Prices Featured Are $89.75 to $195

Ombre Persian, so smart this year, fashions a graceful cape-like collar on this coat for women. You may wear the collar draped, if you prefer. Oxford, green, or blue, in regular sizes. $125.

Swagger coat of llama cloth uses Persian lamb for smaller collars. Oxford or black with ombre Persian; brown with brown; green or red with ombre; black with ombre or black. $89.75.

Silver cross fox, with just a tinge of gold in it, fashions a most flattering collar of the rounding shawl type on this slender coat for misses. In brown or black. $195.

Persian lamb, favorite fur of the season, is used for the draped collar on this lovely coat—it's used in quantity, too, and in a very fine quality. The coat comes in half sizes, in black. $110.

La Militaire, a brisk young coat that shows the military influence. It has a stand-up collar and a plastron front of Persian lamb. In black. Sizes for misses. $125.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Fourteen plays and three and a half minutes from the end of yesterday's game at Wrigley field the Chicago Bears were a swaggering, smug aggregation out in front 14 to 3 and seemingly unstoppable on their march to another National Professional Football league championship. Fourteen plays and three and a half minutes later they left the field, beaten 17 to 14 by a Green Bay team that staged one of the most sensational finishes in the history of football.

Exits and parking lots around Wrigley field were jammed with spectators who had stayed to see Johnny Sisk knife through center and race 55 yards to the Bears' second touchdown and then had left satisfied. Green Bay players began to pick up blankets and headgears for the dash to the clubhouse.

Pass to Hutson Scores.

Then out of the dusk came a long pass, Arnie Herber to Don Hutson, an ddown the west side line went Hutson, Bears lurching futilely in his wake. First Sisk and then Joe Zeller hurled themselves at the twisting, side stepping All-American end. Bernie Masterson gave chase and a lunge, and finally Ed Kawal slapped the fleeing Hutson on the heels, just before he crossed the north goal, completing a 69 yard gain. Schwammel kicked the extra point and the score was, Bears, 14; Green Bay, 10. Green Bay had put itself back into the ball game in four plays after Sisk apparently had definitly put it out.

A kickoff over the goal line, a fumble by Masterson on the first play, and Green Bay again had the ball, this time on the Bears' 13 yard line. Four more plays and then Herber again passed to Hutson, this time a short flat toss which gained three yards for a touchdown. Ernie Smith place kicked the extra point, and the Packers led, 17 to 14.

Bears Make Last Try.

Those of the 29,389 fans who remained stood and shrieked. Half a minute was left to play. There was still a chance for another touchdown. Three had been made in sixteen plays, and perhaps, thought stunned Bear partisans, one more could be accomplished in the fleeting seconds.

Beattie Feathers took Smith's kickoff and came back 30 yards to his own 40 yard line. Here he lateraled to Luke Johnsos and the veteran end lugged the ball to midfield. Masterson lost ten yards when smothered on an attempted pass. On the next play he lateraled to Feathers and the latter threw a long high spiral down the field to Bill Karr. George Sauer, Packer full back, was there to intercept it, however, and before he was downed the gun sounded the end of the most stirring contest in many a season.

Packers Lead at Half, 3-0.

Until the Packers combined the superb talents of Herber and Hutson with the break that meant the ball game, the Bears held a slight advantage in the rough, hard fought contest. They trailed 3 to 0 at the half on Ade Schwammel's second quarter place kick from the 17 yard line, but their hard running backs and charging line had piled up considerably more yardage and made the more consistent advances.

Midway in the third quarter the Bears had taken a 7 to 3 lead on Masterson's 44 yard pass to Ronzani, who broke into the clear against a surprised Packer secondary and went on to score with the help of Karr, who took out Safety Man Bob Monnett. With a lead and their secondary exceptionally alert on Herber's passes, they appeared victory bound.

Art Buss, Bill Hewitt, and Ray Richards were tearing gaping holes in STOP HIM, SOMEBODY! HERE'S CHANCE TO BE A HERO!

Bill Karr of the Bears is closing in on Clark Hinkle, Green Bay back, as Hinkle tries run around his left end in first quarter of yesterday's game at Wrigley field. Hinkle was stopped after he had picked up two yards. The Packers' left end, Don Hutson, cut across to the other side of the field, in order to lure the Bears' secondary into believing a pass was to be thrown. Bernie Masterson and Ed Kawal, having diagnosed the play, are coming over to help Karr and Reds Pollock if they need it. Bill Hewitt also is on the job. The Packers scored twice in the last 3½ minutes to win, 17-14. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A RADIO report that P. K. Wrigley intended to sponsor a news reel showing of umpires' blunders in the world series to a one man audience [presumably Commissioner Landis] brought this reply from the Cubs' president: "The world series of 1935 is over. We are looking ahead to the 1936 series." . . . Danno O'Mahoney, heavyweight wrestling champion, received $3,675 for his victory over Chief Little Wolf at Chicago Stadium last week. . . . This amount represented 30 per cent of the net receipts. . . . Some idea of Man Mountain Dean's age may be gained from the fact that he fought Sid Marks 21 years ago in New York. . . . Marks now is associated with the Olympic auditorium in Los Angeles, where Dean's popularity reaches the sellout stage on nearly every appearance. . . . Joe Williams, Ohio State's brilliant ball carrier, wears jersey No. 13. . . . When the numbers were given out early this fall there was no No. 13 in the lot, but Williams explained that he wore the jinx number in high school and wanted to continue. . . . A 13 was ordered. . . .

Oklahomans are the most enthusiastic golf followers in America, judging by their conduct at the recent P. G. A. tournament. . . . They abide by the rule of quiet while a player is shooting, but if he holes a long putt or makes a good recovery they make enough noise for a rodeo. . . . Zuppke's Illinois teams won four of six from Iowa when Howard Jones led the Hawkeyes. . . . Marquette's football opponents are thankful that it wasn't quintuplets in the Guepe family. . . . Art and Al, twin brothers, are starring in the Hilltop backfield this fall. . . . Mike Layden and Vic Wojcihovski have placed an added burden on the defenses of Notre Dame's opponents this fall. . . . Working from right half back they have totaled 252 yards from scrimmage, exclusive of the Navy game. . . . The left half backs have made only 306 yards, and the full backs 205. . . . Ordinarily the left half backs and full backs do most of the ball carrying for the Irish. . . . The defense now doesn't know where the long gainers are coming from. . . .

Here's a note on the circuitous routes of destiny: Bob Fitzgerald, sophomore back at Chicago, who is likely to be a regular before the season is over, probably wouldn't be a student at the Midway if John McDonough hadn't sustained a broken neck ten years ago. McDonough, three sport star for the Maroons eight years ago, first saw the University of Chicago campus when he came down with the Yankton, S. D., high school basketball team to compete in the national interscholastic tournament in 1924. During one of Yankton's games in that meet McDonough fractured a vertebra in his neck in a fall. . . . In his period of convalescence, spent near the Midway, he decided to enroll at Chicago, from where he later became a Rhodes scholar. Fitzgerald, who also is a Yankton boy, became interested in the University of Chicago when McDonough revisited their mutual home town a couple of years ago. . . . Jim Masker, referee of the Carnegie-Purdue game last Saturday, reckons that in 32 years of football officiating it was the first game he had ever been in at which no penalties were called on either side. . . .

Dr. Alex Alekhine, world chess champion, never starts a match until his pet cat has sniffed the board. . . . Mrs. Billy Herman, wife of the best second baseman in the National league, is a crack pistol shot. . . . Files of a decade ago tell of two special trains being run from Ann Arbor to Urbana for the Illinois-Michigan game of 1925. . . . The two trains carried 28 cars, about 27 more than will be needed to get Michigan students to this year's game. . . . The Wolverines ten years ago were after revenge for the 39 to 14 whipping administered by Red Grange and the Illini the year previous. . . . They got it, 3 to 0. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—William Veeck was reelected president of the Chicago Cubs. . . . Chuck Wiggins outpointed Tiger Flowers in ten rounds at East Chicago. . . . Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, was released by the New York Giants professional football team. . . .

REPORT REDUCED DRINKING DURING FOOTBALL GAMES

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27.—(AP)—A decline in grandstand drinking at football games this fall was reported today by a number of college executives and law enforcement officers who attributed the decrease variously to stern measures and to prohibition repeal.

Of those asked for comment, only President Frederick A. Middlebush of Missouri university, said it appeared to him the use of liquor at collegiate contests was on the increase.

"We must face the fact that public drinking at games apparently is a growing practice," said Dr. Middlebush, who added, however, the crowds usually have been well behaved. He announced a campaign to curb drinking at Missouri's home games in Columbia.

Report Little Drinking.

Although William and Mary college has taken no formal action to curb drinking at its games, President John Stewart Bryan said he had never seen as little drinking among students and that bottle raising as a rule was done by others than students.

Two other Virginia institutions, the University of Richmond and Roanoke college, reported liquor was not a problem.

Chief of Police Luther Hollums of Birmingham, Ala., said there was less drinking at games there. Hollums stations himself in the press box and calls signals to his men in the stadium upon spotting a drunk. A patrol wagon is kept handy to cart the inebriates away to jail.

Kansas Makes Dry Rule.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, and Atlanta police cooperate in keeping order at games.

"We've had little trouble from drinking at football games lately," said Dr. Brittain.

Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas, promulgated a "bone dry" policy at Lawrence.

Authorities of the University of Tennessee, Louisiana State university, University of Florida, and University of Arkansas all reported less drinking.

Tex Artz Wins Eastern Dirt Track Racing Title

Reading, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Tex Artz, young Reading driver, won the eastern independent dirt track auto racing championship today by taking a feature 40 lap race in 19 minutes 16 seconds.

Notre Dame and Ohio State Provide Fireworks Saturday

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The curtain now rises on a new football setting, and there at front stage are the Irish of Notre Dame and the battling Buckeyes of Ohio State. Notre Dame and Ohio State! This is the game the fans of the nation have awaited. This is the greatest test of two powerful gridiron machines, amply supported by replacements, which have rolled over all opposition and now find that their victorious paths converge.

In prospect of this fight at Columbus, a clash which probably will be witnessesd by 90,000, the calamities that befell sectional leaders last Saturday are forgotten. There is scant time to memorialize might-have-beens.

Jumping Joe Again Stars.

Ohio State has not been threatened in its four games. Saturday the Buckeyes rolled along smoothly, carefully covered Indiana's forward passing and, by interceptions, seized opportunities to pile up a 28 to 6 conquest over the Hoosiers. Joe Williams, who became Jumping Joe back in his high school days at Akron, O., in tribute to Notre Dame's Jumping Joe Savoldi, scored two of these touchdowns. Today Williams is the most feared of Ohio's backs. His reputation in the Western conference is eclipsed only by Oze Simmons of Iowa.

Notre Dame has marched along a more difficult path in mastering five opponents. Pitt was conquered after a brilliant battle, and last Saturday the Navy Midshipmen, who for two years had turned back the Irish, were beaten at Baltimore, 14 to 0.

This is the climactic contest for both teams, although undefeated Army, winner over Yale Saturday, 14 to 8, waits a later engagement with Notre Dame in New York. Ohio State meets Chicago, Illinois, and Michigan. While victory cannot be certified in advance, Ohio State is the prohibitive choice in each contest. Notre Dame is Ohio State's only worthy opponent of the season.

Purdue May Be Tough Now.

Five Western conference teams are undefeated in Big Ten competition. Minnesota won from Northwestern in a see-saw duel, 21 to 13. Purdue already has accounted for Northwestern and Chicago, but the Boilermakers dropped from the undefeated list Saturday to the Scots of Carnegie Tech, 7 to 0. Now Purdue invades Minnesota, more dangerous than if the Boilermakers had not fallen victim to their own complacence and football's dead ball rule, which checked Tom McGannon's return of a kick for a touchdown. McGannon slipped and fell on Carnegie's 36 yard line while in the clear.

Purdue's total gain of 415 yards without scoring must be something of a record. At least this power serves as a warning to the Gophers.

Michigan will retain its share of the conference leadership another week, since the Wolverines, for the second successive Saturday, have nonconference competition. Michigan meets Pennsylvania. Saturday Michigan whipped Columbia, 19 to 7, scoring twice in the first five minutes by taking advantage of the Lions' misplays.

Iowa, victor over Illinois, 19 to 0, now faces Indiana, with possibility of defeat unless the Hawkeyes play to standard. Anything less and Indiana may surprise.

Just Too Much Simmons.

Detailed study of statistics of the Iowa-Illinois game reveals that the Illini might have tied Iowa. Except for Simmons' 71 yard run in the second period, Illinois held consistently and in the third quarter reached Iowa's nine yard line with first down, only to have Dick Crayne, Iowa captain, relieve the pressure by pass interception.

Simmons was the lever which forced Illinois' hand by his long dash. As long as Iowa's blockers can shake him loose, Iowa will be a good football team. When a team stops Simmons it is the first step in whipping the Hawks.

Illinois now plays Northwestern. Illinois' passes are Northwestern's problem, while superior power from scrimmage, with such carriers as Swisher who ran 57 yards through Minnesota for the first touchdown of the game Saturday, Heap, and Cruice, is Northwestern's forte. The Wildcats continue to pile up a record list of fumbles, which have helped Ohio State and Minnesota to victories and prevented a possible tie with Purdue.

Maroons Beat Poor Old Badgers.

Minnesota produced a new half back Saturday to whom credit is due for victory over Northwestern. Ineligibility had cost the services of Alfonse. Seidel was injured in Minnesota's victory over Tulane. Wilkinson and Rennix proved inacceptable, so Coach Bernie Bierman dug down in the reserves for a right half back and found Clarence Thompson. This unknown lad, with accurate blocking by his mates, pulled Minnesota to victory, scoring twice after Northwestern had led, 3 to 7.

Chicago escaped the Big Ten cellar Saturday at the expense of the hapless Badgers of Wisconsin, now defeated in five games and whose cheery prospects in future contests consist of Purdue, Northwestern, and Minnesota. Chicago rallied, after trailing, 7 to 6, and another newcomer to conference headlines, Omar Fareed, provided the passing necessary to produce a 13 to 7 victory.

Alabama's stars fell on Georgia

New York, Oct. 27. — (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers, who have been kicked around the National Football league, came to life today to rout the Philadelphia Eagles, 17 to 6. Twenty thousand saw the Dodgers, led by Red Franklin, Jack Grossman, John Karcis, and Ralph Kercheval, score in three of the four periods. Philadelphia counted in the third.

Kercheval put the Dodgers out in front early in the first quarter with a field goal from the 25 yard line. Franklin's passing and running paved the way for both Dodger touchdowns. In the third period he passed to Kercheval on the Eagles' 12 yard line, and the latter raced across the goal. In the fourth, Franklin dropped back, faked a pass, and ran 45 yards to the Philadelphia 4 yard line. Karcis went across for the touchdown. Kercheval added the point after both touchdowns.

The Eagles got up steam in the third period to ring up a touchdown and take a temporary lead. Joe Carter, formerly of Southern Methodist, took a pass from Ed Matesic on the 40 yard line and galloped 40 more yards for the score.

Kercheval kept the Eagles in the hole all afternoon with his long kicks.

PIRATES WIN, 6 TO 0

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Two young Italians who learned to play football at Duquesne university gave the Boston Redskins and 11,379 fans a lesson in kicking today while the Pittsburgh Pirates were beating Boston, 6 to 0.

Armand Niccolai, acting captain, place kicked field goals from the 41 and 43 yard lines in the second and third periods, while Silvic Zaninelli's punts repeatedly soared over the Boston safety man's head to make up ground lost in scrimmage.

Zaninelli's masterpiece in kicking came late in the third period. Standing on his own 18 yard line, he sent the ball over the head of Cliff Battles to hit the Boston 13 yard stripe and roll to the one, where a teammate, Wilbur Sortet, downed it. He averaged 49 yards on his 13 kicks.

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals regained first place in the National Professional Football league by beating the New York Giants, 14 to 13, today at the Polo grounds.

The Cardinals were trailing, 13 to 7, with less than five minutes to play when Phil Sarboe caught a punt on his own 12 yard line and dodged his way for 88 yards and a touchdown, tying the score. Then Bill Smith kicked the winning point.

The Giants lost their chance for a tie because Ken Strong missed the try for the point after touchdown for the first time in two years. His failure occurred after the Giants had scored before the game was two minutes old.

The Giants got this opportunity after punts had been exchanged and the Cardinals had the ball on their own 26 yard line. Sarboe took the pass from center and began fading back to find a receiver for his forward. He was almost completely surrounded by Giant players and finally flipped a short pass with an underhand motion.

Giants Encounter Trouble.

Bellinger, New York guard, sensed what was coming and came up at a full gallop so that the pass was a perfect one to him. He grabbed the ball on the 14 yard line and, without breaking his stride, charged on to the 4 yard mark before he was thrown.

The Giants came very close to failing to score from there. Strong went wide around his right end, but there was no taking Smith, the Chicago end, out of the picture, and the play was piled up close to the side line with a loss of a yard. Danowski then drove through the line to the 3 yard mark and Strong went to the one. Finally Danowski went over inside his right tackle.

The crowd then gasped in amazement as the almost infallible Strong missed with his placement try for point. A strong cross wind was bothering the kickers.

Cardinals Take Lead.

Halfway through the third period, the Cardinals scored and went into the lead. Their attack started when Nichelini intercepted Harry Newman's forward on his own 31 yard line and dashed back with it to the 40. A pass, Sarboe to Mike Mikulak, put the ball on the Giants' 48 yard line.

One play picked up a yard or so and then Sarboe flipped a pass down the middle. Smith, running back across the field, grabbed it on the 28 yard line, cut back toward his own goal, picked up an interferer and started for the Giants' goal line. His blockers did a great job, and only Danowski had a chance for him. The former Fordham star had him pinned against the sideline just inside the 25 yard mark, but Smith dodged through and carried on to the score standing up. Then he added the extra point with placement which made the count 7 to 6.

The Giants came back from the next kickoff to a touchdown. Newman ran the ball back to the 30 yard line. A series of line plays with Newman and Danowski carrying the ball, aided by a pass, Danowski to Goodwin, made a first down on the Cardinals' 42 yard line. Newman and Danowski worked out a first down on the 29 yard stripe.

Giants Score on Pass.

The scoring play came next. Danowski flung a long pass down the middle and Goodwin ducked behind Sarboe to make the catch on the 3 yard mark and step across the goal line unmolested. Newman added the extra point with a placement.

Late in the fourth period Kink Richards punted well to the Chicago 12 yard line. Sarboe caught the ball and stood there until the entire field grouped around him. Suddenly he began running, dodging up the side line and popping all of a sudden into the clear just short of midfield. All the Giants had come down and none was left in front of him. No player came near tackling him as he crossed the line with the tying points. Smith's kick then won the game.

LADDIE TONELLI, BILLY CELEBRON TO BOX TONIGHT

Welterweights to Fight 10 Rounds at Marigold.

Laddie Tonelli and Billy Celebron, two of the most promising welterweights to graduate from the Chicago Golden Gloves tournaments, will meet tonight in a return bout at ten rounds at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Last month Tonelli defeated Billy, but the victory did not enhance his standing as a boxer. Celebron lost by a narrow margin.

For that reason tonight's battle is expected to develop into a more thrilling spectacle than their previous meeting, which was hard fought throughout, but in which not one knockdown materialized. Inasmuch as both fighters are known for their punching power this inconsistency disappointed the fans.

Celebron, noted heretofore for continual use of his right, forgetting he also possessed a left hand, demonstrated he could use both in his earlier encounter against Tonelli. Insofar as this method of attack failed to impress the judges, Celebron likely will return to his old system of attempting to cut down Laddie with rights to the jaw. Preliminary matches include:

Willie Davies vs. Aubrey Martin [6], 135.
Pat Murphy vs. Joe Richards [5], 145.
Sailor Born vs. Davey White [4], 135.
Danny Milillo vs. Mickey O'Shea [4], 152.

A wrestling show and an amateur boxing card will be presented on the south side tonight. Pat Newman and Clarence Smith will top the mat program at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Other matches on the card will involve Bill Kief and Charles Grubmyer, John Silvy and Lefty Pacer, Jim Landis and Ernie Peterson, and Charles Pfister and Ed Van Herrick. The amateur show, offered at the Johnny Coulon club, 1154 East 63d street will be composed of eight contests, one of which will bring together Nick Gallotte and Al Owens at 122 pounds.

Contracts relative to a ten round match between Davey Day and Alberto Arizmendi at Chicago Stadium Nov. 8 will be signed this afternoon at the Illinois boxing commission. The conference, called by co-Matchmakers Nate Lewis and James C. Mullen of the Stadium, will include Sam Pian and Art Winch, representatives of Day, and Cal Working, manager of Arizmendi. Bill Treest, Batavia, Ill., light heavyweight, anticipates fighting Fanis Tzanitopoulos, Lynn, Mass., in a ten round supplementary affair at the Stadium.

Seven bouts will comprise the card at White City Friday. Gene Stanley, Detroit middleweight slugger, and Ernie Kircher will be opponents in the eight round feature attraction. Six round encounters will bring into action Al Lewis and Phil McQuillen, Bob Tinsley and Orville Drouillard. Ed Duarry and Ernie Kulasik, Pat Murphy and Eddie Stiegal, and George Dixon II. and George Riley. Harry Smith will meet Leo Goode in a four round heavyweight contest.

Barney Ross, welterweight champion, who has been recovering from a bruised hand at Waukesha, Wis., will resume drills today at Trafton's gymnasium. . . . Man Mountain Dean has been added to the wrestling show topped by a match between Danno O'Mahoney, heavyweight champion, and Bever McCoy, Providence, R. I., at Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 12. . . . Promoter Fred Kohler intimated over the week-end that he will appear before the commission today seeking permission to bill his windup bout involving Bert Rubi, Detroit, and Zack Malkov, Chicago, at Merry Gardens Wednesday for the Jewish light heavyweight wrestling championship. . . . Max Marek, Chicago heavyweight, will make his first professional appearance in New York Friday in a six rounder at Madison Square garden against Bob Pastor. . . . Ernie Kirchner has returned from a rest on a farm near Huntington, Ind., to begin training for an eight round scrap at White City Friday.

PHEASANT HUNTS ON PRESERVES ARE REAL SPORT

Chicagoans Study System in Wisconsin.

BY BOB BECKER.

Many Chicago sportsmen have been taking advantage of Wisconsin's shooting preserve system and now are making regular trips to that state to enjoy one or two days of hunting ringnecks.

The system, which the state has legalized and which is popular with sportsmen, permits a landowner or lessee to raise or purchase pheasants, release them and then shoot them during a certain season. The law also permits such a landowner to receive a fee for hunting privileges, so that he can take in hunters.

The state allows a reasonably long season for hunting on these restricted preserves, thus enabling a group of men who own or lease land for hunting a liberal amount of time to enjoy their sport.

Illinois Could Use System.

We have been watching the reaction to this preserve shooting system for several years, because it is the sort of system that many sportsmen are eager to see established in Illinois. Just a few days ago we made another trip to Portage, Wis., to hunt on a preserve and to check again on its operation.

The opening of the Wisconsin upland game season, plus the attractions of ringneck pheasant hunting on the preserve, drew a full house, with both Chicago and Milwaukee turning out the majority of the hunters there. Many who hunt the heavy cover for ringnecks bring their own dogs and, as a result, they have a lot of fun.

When we were on the preserve a few days ago, it was unseasonably warm, and the cover still was extremely heavy so that dogs were a necessity. Battling the heavy weed thickets and rushes around the swamps were Frederick D. Corley, Chicago, and William Haerther and Stuart Prosser, Lake Forest, Ill. A German short haired pointer owned by Otto Beyer, several springer spaniels and an Irish setter were used by these hunters to find and retrieve birds.

Dev and Mike Have Workout.

Then there was another dog squad consisting of two Labrador retrievers, Dev and our Mike of Barrington. Another dog that crashed the weed thickets was a Gordon setter owned by Lyman Barr, Libertyville, Ill. By working these bird finders at various times it was possible to rout the pheasants which have excellent cover in which to hide.

Mallards swinging into the potholes in the marshes at sundown . . . the startling roar of ruffed grouse in the timber . . . the upward rush and cackling of big cock pheasants when a dog puts them out . . . the sight of woodcock in the wet thickets . . . difficult long shots at wily old pheasant cocks that are smart enough to run 'way ahead and then take to their wing . . . and gorgeous autumn foliage—these are some of the pleasures the upland game hunters enjoyed in Wisconsin last week.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Back in Chicago's early days we kids didn't have the improved skates of the present era. We heated a stove poker red hot, then bored a hole in the heels of our shoes or boots, into which to fasten our skates. The front of the skate was fastened to the shoe by a strap or rope over the toes.

What a job it was to dig the ice out of the holes in our shoe heels! We used a button hook to pry out the ice or, perhaps, heated the boot or shoe so the ice thawed.

When the gals came around to put their skates on, we kids yelled: "It's time to blow." Our sense of gallantry was pretty low and we stayed away from the gals pretty much until we were much older. Then mother would say: "Jimmy, don't you think it's about time you and Mary would see the priest and get married?"

But we had a lot of fun, sometimes, I think, more fun than the youngsters of today, but perhaps that is only an old timer's viewpoint. Friend Bat.

Actor C. W. Couldock had a daughter, Eliza, an intense idealistic actress, very hard worker. In a part given her by the manager, in direct opposition to the wishes of a stage manager, who had a favorite of his own for the part, the stage manager took revenge on Miss Couldock by severe criticism on the stage before the whole company. It so wounded her that she committed suicide.

This blow so affected her father that he never recovered and retired soon afterward. He came from England with Miss Charlotte Cushman about 1859, and supported her on her first American tour. He afterward played with his own company "Cricket on the Hearth" with his own daughter and several others whose names have escaped me.

Anon.

About 1878, we kids went bathing at the foot of Grand avenue and tried our luck at fishing at the north pier close by. The bath house on the sands was in charge of Mr. Johnson. He'd rent you a towel or sell you a sandwich, pop, etc.

There was a shack on the pier and fish caught in a net were stored there. Mr. Kless, in charge of this shack, if you had bad luck fishing, would offer you a very fine string for a very small charge. Then, how proudly we'd carry over our shoulders through the streets the fish we did not catch. Jacob Levy.

Just Thinkin'.

It doesn't do a speck of good
To go 'round a-grumblin',
Nor does it ever help a bit
A-murmurin' and mumblin'.
It only seems to aggravate
The other fellow near you;
It only makes him feel bad
That he should have to hear you.
Now you'd be s'prised
If you but knew
The harm that can be done
Just goin' 'round in this small world
A-lookin' glum and blue.

Long Island Dogs Win in Field Trials

Labrador retrievers owned by Jay F. Carlisle, East Islip, Long Island, N. Y., made a clean sweep in the three stakes of the first annual all-breed retriever trials which were completed yesterday by the Midwest Field Trial club on the Thomas Howell estate, Barrington.

Carlisle's male Labrador Pons Junior of Wingan won the novice stake, which was completed yesterday morning. His Drinkstone Pons of Wingan then won the important open all age trial yesterday afternoon. Carlisle's other first prize was won by Ponchery of Wingan Saturday in the junior stakes.

To complete the clean sweep for the Wingan kennels, Carlisle's handler—David Elliott—was named the best professional handler in the trial, and Carlisle himself was awarded the president's challenge trophy for his dog's victory in the open all age stake.

Anthony A. Bliss, Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., was judged the best amateur handler in the trials.

The grounds upon which the trials were held provided a stiff test for the dogs, with heavy undergrowth on the marshes providing excellent cover for the birds and hard going for the dogs. Work was done on pigeons, ducks, and pheasants both on land and in water.

Summaries:

NOVICE STAKE—Won by Pons Junior of Wingan, Labrador retriever, owned by Jay F. Carlisle; Nigger of Barrington, Labrador retriever, second, owned by Gordon P. Leo High school scored a 32 to 0 victory over St. Philip in the ninth annual charity game played for the benefit of the Sisters of Mercy fund at Soldiers' field yesterday. A crowd of 42,000 saw the game.

Clark led the Leo attack, scoring two touchdowns, the first in the opening quarter, when he plunged over from the one yard line after a 58 yard run by Rolewicz, and the second late in the third period, when he broke loose from St. Philip tacklers to race 63 yards down the field. Scahill and Cramer scored in the second and third quarters. Rolewicz also tallied on a short plunge. Leo made 14 first downs and St. Philip three.

De Paul Beats Joliet.

De Paul moved into first place in the east section by triumphing, 26 to 6, over Joliet on the latter's field. This was the fourth consecutive victory for De Paul and gave it a total of eight points. Leo has won three and tied one for a total of seven points.

An early lead and a spirited rally in the closing minutes of play brought Fenwick a 26 to 20 victory over St. Patrick at Mills stadium. Fenwick led 13 to 0 at the half. In the second half St. Patrick scored twenty points while Fenwick rang up a touchdown in the third period and one in the fourth. The victory kept Fenwick's slate clean, and the sectional lead will be at stake next week when the Oak Parkers meet St. Mel. St. Mel has won four, and Fenwick three games.

Loyola Wins, 12-9.

Loyola moved into fourth place in the east section by scoring two touchdowns in the final quarter to beat St. Rita, 12 to 9, on the Rita field. Otten scored for St. Rita in the second quarter when he intercepted a pass and ran 55 yards. He blocked a punt by O'Brien in the next period for a safety. A ten yard run by Dwyer and a twelve yard dash by Detmar provided the winning margin for Loyola.

Mount Carmel maintained third place in the east division by battling to a scoreless tie with De La Salle at White City, and St. Ignatius defeated St. Michael, 18 to 0.

PACKERS DEFEAT BEARS, 17-14, ON LATE AIR ATTACK

the right side of the Packer line, where Schwammel, Evans and Gantenbein held forth, and Bear backs sprinted through for consistent gains. Then in the waning minutes of the fourth period, Keith Molesworth returned one of Clark Hinkle's punts five yards to the Bears' 45 yard line. This set the stage for Sisk's run. The Packers lined up in a close box defense with a seven man line, and Sisk charged over right guard, up the middle through the box. He swung to the sidelines and went on alone to score.

Packers Get Going.

This run appeared to have an electrifying effect on the Packers, who had played the smarter football and taken the greater chances throughout. They immediately went to town. After the ensuing kickoff, only two plays, an incomplete pass on which the Bears were offside and Sauer's fumble which lost four yard, preceded Hutson's dash to the goal. It took them only five plays to score again after they gained possession on Masterson's fumble on the Bears' 13 yard line. This fumble decided the game. Sauer picked up a yard, and then an interference penalty on a pass gave the Packers a first down on the eight yard line. Sauer made five yards and Hinkle failed to gain. The pass came next.

The Packers, their running game effectively bottled up by the more powerful Bear line, resorted largely to surprise maneuvers. No situation was too tense to take a gamble. Late in the second quarter when Ookie Miller killed Molesworth's 58 yard punt on Green Bay's one inch line, Herber went back to kick. Standing on the end line, with his team lined up in the end zone, he took one step forward, then slipped the ball to Sauer, who ran around behind him to the left. Charging Bear linemen were taken by surprise and only an alert secondary hauled down Sauer on the nine yard line after a long run through the end zone and up the side lines.

Another Fumble Hurts.

Masterson also fumbled on the 18 yard line in the first quarter, Rose recovering, to pave the way for Schwammel's field goal. Hinkle got nine yards on the first play and a Bear offside penalty made it first down on the four and one half yard line. Bruder, Sauer, and Laws made only two yards. A penalty for too much time out moved the ball back five yards and Schwammel kicked it over.

Half a dozen plays later Laws fumbled Molesworth's punt after returning it six yards and Ookie Miller recovered for the Bears on the Packers' 21 yard line. This opportunity was lost when on third down on the 6 yard line, Masterson threw a flat pass to Hewitt and Bruder intercepted it. Ironically this pass play was almost identical in situation and execution with the one on which the Packers scored the winning touchdown.

The Packers' victory dropped the Bears into third place and sent the Cardinals, victors over the Giants, into the lead in the western division.

Green Bay made 14 first downs to the Bears' 9 and gained 286 yards, 118 by rushing and 168 by passing, to the Bears' 268. The Bears made 44 yards by passes and 224 by rushing.

Green Bay attempted 21 passes, 19 by Herber. It completed 9 and 4 were intercepted. The Bears threw 9 passes, had 2 intercepted, and completed only 1, the 44 yard toss by Masterson to Ronzani for their first score.

PATRICK HOLDS LEAD IN EAST'S SCORING RACE

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Frank Patrick, Pitt full back, just managed to retain the scoring lead among the east's football aces when he scored his team's nine points against Penn State yesterday.

Records reveal two new challengers close on his heels today. Patrick, the leading field goal kicker of the section, has a total of 56 points.

He is two points ahead of Bobby O'Malley, Trinity, who added 18 points to his total last week, and Douglas Stone, Salem, who piled ten points on top of his previously unrecorded mark of 44. Mickey Kobrosky, Trinity captain, who tosses passes to O'Malley, is deadlocked for fourth place with Eddie Stanley, Williams, and Vannie Albanese, Syracuse.

Ohio State and Notre Dame to Meet Saturday

Saturday and the undefeated Bulldogs, after playing a 7 to 7 tie until the final period, were defeated, 17 to 7. This conquest, with previous victory over Tennessee, does much to retrieve Alabama's fortunes. Georgia Tech, another of the south's leaders, went down before a revived North Carolina team.

For the final punch, the Rice-Texas battle in the southwest must be ranked as the nation's best last Saturday. Each team scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, and Rice won, 28 to 19.

Oklahoma's title hopes in the Big Six were smashed by Nebraska, whose Lloyd Cardwell could not be stopped by the Sooners. Nebraska won decisively, 19 to 0. Missouri's young men could do no better than tie Iowa State, 6 to 6.

Stanford Upsets Washington.

Washington was dropped from its pinnacle of perfect football Saturday by Stanford, which, like the Huskies, could not cross the goal line, but won, 6 to 0, when Monk Moscrip kicked a pair of field goals in the opening period. Southern California lost again, this time to California, 21 to 0. California at Los Angeles whipped Oregon, 33 to 6, and Washington State, beaten by Washington, dropped Oregon State with a thud, 26 to 13.

St. Thomas Scores 7-6 Victory Over St. Mary

Winona, Minn., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—A touchdown by De Marce in the last minute and half of play gave St. Thomas college of St. Paul a 7 to 6 victory over St. Mary's in the annual homecoming game here today.

BERLANDO WINS 60 MILE ELGIN TO CHICAGO RACE

Joe Berlando yesterday won the ninth annual bicycle race from Elgin to Chicago. He covered the sixty miles in 2 hours 26 minutes and 54 seconds, winning by virtue of his nine minute handicap, although Al Byrd of the Southtown Sports club made the fastest time. Byrd covered the route in 2 hours 20 minutes and 54.1 seconds, but started from scratch.

Second across the finish line in Humboldt park was Bill Bina of the Catholic Youth organization, with Maurice Gilles, also of the C. Y. O., third. Each had a six minute handicap. Mike Claridio of the Henry playground, with a nine minute handicap, was fourth.

ST. MARY'S WINS, 13 TO 0, AGAINST SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 27.—(AP)—St. Mary's Gaels put on an exhibition of old fashioned football, accurate place kicking, and brilliant defensive work today to defeat the University of San Francisco, 13 to 0, before a crowd estimated at 30,000.

For the tenth successive year of their rivalry Coach Slip Madigan's players proved their superiority over the Dons. Two field goals, a touchdown, and successful try for point, all made in the second half, sent the Dons down to defeat.

SPALDINGS WIN, 19-6.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Spalding institute of Peoria remained undefeated in the Illinois Catholic conference by beating St. Teresa of Decatur, 19 to 6, here today.

Hawk Defense Men Are Given Long Workout

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.] The Blackhawks' four regular defense players, Coulter, Wiebe, Levinsky and Burke, occupied nearly all of Manager Clem Loughlin's attention when the Hawks, after two exhibition games on successive days, returned to scrimmaging at the University of Illinois rink today.

Manager Loughlin was by no means pessimistic over his defense because of the avalanche of scoring in the two games which netted 25 points, for he realizes that intra-club games are mild affairs at best. However, the Hawks boss thought it might be a good idea to let his quartet know that the game with the rejuvenated New York Americans which will open the National Hocky league season in Chicago next week will be no setup.

Under positive instructions to body check as if they were working in a regular contest the Blackhawks' defense men who were oustanding last season were put through an intensive hour's workout which finally took its toll when one of Tommy Cook's skates cut Art Wiebe's neck when both fell to the ice after a collision.

Dizzy Dean Wins and Loses; It's in Same Game, Too

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Jerome [Dizzy] Dean added another record to his list today when he was charged with defeat and credited with victory in the same baseball game. The Major League All-Stars defeated the Minor League All-Stars, 12 to 4, before 18,000.

Dean started out on the mound for the Minor league nine, allowing five hits and two runs in three innings before he was switched to the Major league team, replacing Newt Kimball. He went ahead to get credit for the victory, since Kimball, starting hurler, did not play enough innings.

SPARTA SOCCER ELEVEN DEFEATS MORAVSKA, 3-1

Maccabees Push Over Italians, 4-2.

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta soccer team continued its winning streak by defeating Moravska, 3 to 1, yesterday in a Chicago league match at Sparta stadium.

Wolf started the scoring for Sparta after 35 minutes of play, and before the end of the half Vleck beat Gibson with a long, hard drive. Coyle scored for Moravska on a spot kick to make it 2-1, but Vleck came through with a goal on a close in shot.

The Maccabees, aided by Davidson, Thomson, and Cuthburt of the Wieboldts won from the Italians, 4-2, at Kuppenheimer stadium. Cuthburt and Waldron made goals for the Maccabees and Narotti put one in for the Italians in the first half.

SURGEONS TOLD NEW 'CURE' FOR BEARDED LADIES

Operation Found to Alter Personality Traits.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 27.—(AP)—A new personality operation, which cures such things as bearded ladies and a distaste for one's husband, was described for the American College of Surgeons tonight on the eve of its five day annual convention here.

The operation removes a little of the adrenal gland, the structure which supplies the extra energy for anger and for fighting. This gland lies near the kidneys, and hasn't anything directly to do with sex, yet strangely is the cause of upsets in masculine and feminine personality traits.

The research which led to discovery of the operation was described by Frank Hinman, N. C., of the University of California Medical school.

Causes Bearded Ladies.

He said studies of the endocrines disclosed that some of the puzzling intermixtures were due to the one section of the adrenal gland, called the suprarenal cortex.

When this cortex gets too active it affects personality. Hirsuitism—such as a male beard by a woman—is one effect. Deep, masculine voices in women is another. Sometimes the overactive energy endocrine takes a different tack, so wives don't care for their husbands any more.

Its overactivity also may cause psychic changes, characterized by despondency and a suicidal tendency.

Unwanted Traits Disappear.

The operation removes part of the gland, so it is smaller and cannot overdo. Then the unwanted personality traits disappear. Hair of the bearded lady type falls out.

In men the same troubles occur, but act more directly on sex, without producing as pronounced personality changes.

When this same gland is under active a different set of troubles follows, including premature old age. The cure for this is to give the patient enough of the gland hormone to make up the deficiency. This hormone is obtained from animals.

Life Span Trebled.

Medical science has more than trebled the lifespan of the average citizen during the last four centuries, Dr. C. Jeff Miller, Tulane university gyneologist, reported today.

Six years of that span have been added in the last two decades, he said in a statement on the progress of medicine and surgery.

Blaming public apathy toward physical welfare for unnecessary suffering and premature death, he said accomplishments of health boards, sanitary organizations, and philanthropic bodies have been achieved "with little or no coöperation from the individual."

Dr. Robert B. Greenough, retiring president of the organization, reported that cancer remained "the same baffling scourge that it always has been, with a rising mortality rate and with more and more surgical, medical, and industrial agencies being drawn into the never ending battle against it."

He said there still was "much ballyhoo regarding so-called cancer cures which have not stood the test of experimental study for a sufficient time to make them valuable."

MRS. GAIL BORDEN IS DEAD AT THEIR NEW YORK HOME

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Margaret C. Borden, wife of Gail Borden, grandson of the founder of the Borden milk business, died today at their residence in Scarsdale, N. Y.

Mrs. Borden was Miss Margaret Sawyer of Pittsburgh. She was fur buyer for the McCreery department store in Pittsburgh when in 1909 she was married to Charles B. Coutant, the general manager. He died fourteen months later and the next year his widow became fur buyer for a department store in San Francisco.

Through her acquaintance with Lewis M. Borden she met his brother, Gail Borden. Their marriage took place a few days before Christmas, 1915, in Chicago, where Mr. Borden then was living.

W. F. EBERHART, FICTION WRITER, KILLS HIMSELF

Scarsdale, N. Y., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Walter F. Eberhart, 44, writer of mystery stories, was found dead today in his automobile, asphyxiated by motor fumes carried from the exhaust pipe to interior by a garden hose.

Eberhart's attorney advised police authorities they believed the writer had taken his life over fear of approaching blindness. He already had lost the sight of one eye, they said.

He was found in the car in a garage under his house by neighbors who became suspicious of lights burning in the house in the early afternoon. He had been dead about four hours.

Denver Woman Physician, Former Legislator, Is Dead

Denver, Colo., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Dr. May Tower Bigelow, 65, physician, prominent Denver club woman and social worker, died today of a blood-clot on the brain. In 1918 she was elected to the Colorado state legislature and in 1927 was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Denver. She is survived by her husband and three children.

Robert Baugh, Former Baseball Executive, Dies

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Robert H. Baugh Sr., 71, former head of the Birmingham Baseball club and president of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs, died at his home tonight after a short illness. At one time Baugh was a golfer of championship caliber.

JUDGE GRUBB, 73, DIES; HELD NRA TO BE INVALID

Birmingham, Ala, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Judge William I. Grubb, 13, who presided over the northern Alabama United States District court for 26 years, died at his home today of a heart attack.

JUDGE GRUBB.

Judge Grubb attracted national attention during the past year in two decision against aspects of the New Deal. He was the first federal judge to hold the NRA unconstitutional and also held that the electrification program of the Tennesse Valley authority likewise was unconstitutional.

Although he had not been in good health for many months, Judge Grubb remained active on the bench and only yesterday had presided in a case involving the Guffey act, creating a little NRA for the coal industry.

CRUISER BEARS LYAUTEY'S BODY TO MOROCCO

MARSEILLE, France, Oct. 27.—(AP)—France today paid its last tribute to Marshal Louis Hubert Lyautey whose body lay in state aboard the cruiser Dupleix. It was being taken to Morocco, which he pacified, for burial.

Escorted by two destroyers and the cruiser Foch—which bore François Pietri, minister of marine, and high naval officers—the Dupleix left port while four squadrons of seaplanes flew in formation overhead.

Before the Dupleix sailed, the chapel in which the French military hero's body lay was heaped with flowers, including wreaths from the prince of Wales, King Leopold III. of the Belgians and many British, Italian, and French war veterans' associations.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Launched on a wave of ballyhoo comparable to that employed to float the Normandie on which he came to America last week Jack Hylton, British orchestra leader, got his continental revue, "You Shall Have Music," safely started over the CBS network last night in the interest of Standard Oil of Indiana.

Hylton's journey from the haunts of Mayfair to American airlanes was not all smooth sailing. The American musicians' union insisted on the use of Chicago musicians. Thus Hylton sent on his right hand men a month ago to pick the men and drill them in English arrangements.

Then several American orchestra leaders, who had encountered various difficulties in England a few years back, threw a few wrenches before Hylton and his group of vocal entertainers got in. The immigration bosses finally ruled that Hylton might come in for six months provided he limited himself to the one broadcast job for which he was engaged.

Last night a picked audience packed the Civic theater to listen to the first local British made broadcast—albeit with something of an American accent. They were definitly pleased. It seems likely that the folks on the receiving end will like him just as much.

The Hylton vocalists made a decided hit with the audience. Eve Becke [she's a countess from Capri] specializes in the more sophisticated ditties. Pat O'Malley has the kind of voice that may affect the feminine contingent like America's Frank Parker. Peggy Dell, a full voiced Irish lass, does fetching novelties. Magda Neeld, from Australia, is a really fine soprana.

Hylton's advance men did a good job of hatching a new orchestra on short notice. All the men used are top performers locally. Among them were noticed Edward Vito, the harpist; Bill Moss and Dave Rose, pianists, and Billy Scott who has directed an orchestra hereabouts himself. To our biased ear they acquitted themselves at least as well as the all British Hylton crew from London two weeks ago.

No matter whether they were presenting a current American ditty such as "Cheek to Cheek" or such British specialties as "Changing of the Guard," and "The Gentlemen Obviously Doesn't Believe in Making Love" they did it with finish.

Hylton's signoff number is called "May All Your Troubles Be Little Ones." On the basis of his first Chicago program our guess would be that such would be the wish of the many who took in this well rounded musical hour from their easy chairs.

Clyde Lucas and his orchestra, who first rose to radio popularity in Chicago two years ago, have been engaged to provide the music on the Life Savers Rendezvous program aired over WLS-NBC at 7 p. m. Wednesday evenings. Lucas and his California Dons will take the place of Aldo Ricci's string orchestra beginning Nov. 6. The program will be aired from New York city where Lucas is playing a hotel engagement.

Phil Duey, Jane Williams and the Men About Town are currently doing the singing on this program.

Clara, Lu 'n' Em, that is Mrs. Paul Mead, Mrs. Howard Berolzheimer and Mrs. John C. Mitchell, are to be guest lecturers in the new radio department of Northwestern university. All three are graduates of Northwestern's school of speech. Miss Edith Adams, head of the department, and Mrs. Mead have been friends since girlhood.

There are persistent reports that Snaindel Kalish and Arthur Jacobsen will be the next to leave Chicago's radio colony for movieland. Among local radio personages who have caught on in the movies are Dorothy Page, Donald Briggs, and Dolores Gillen.

COMPLETE PLAN TO REORGANIZE SURFACE LINES

Group to Submit It to Judge in Week.

A plan for the reorganization and financial consolidation of the companies constituting the Chicago Surface Lines was made public yesterday by the reorganization committee appointed last July by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, before whom all of the companies are in receivership.

The plan in effect consolidates into one corporation the four companies that have been operating as a single unit since 1914. It contemplates the acquisition of the properties of the four companies by one corporation, that may be named Chicago Surface Lines, Inc. The proposal will be submitted to Judge Wilkerson this week.

Step Toward New Franchise.

The four companies have been administered by receivers. In addition ten security owners' committees have represented eight issues of matured bonds and several issues of stock. Consummation of the plan, in the opinion of the reorganization committee and city officials, would simplify surface lines negotiations for a new franchise.

Besides eliminating the intricate financial setups of the individual companies and simplifying franchise negotiations, the plan also, according to the reorganization committee, will prepare the way for proper financing of improvements and extensions. On this subject the following paragraphs appear in a statement authorized by the reorganization committee:

"The renewal and depreciation reserve funds now consisting of approximately $20,000,000 in cash, will be made available in accordance with the plan for extensions nad replacements of existing equipment.

Special Equipment Provision.

"In addition to this amount, during the first three years, if necessary for capital expenditures, the sinking fund on the first mortgage bonds can be so applied. The only fixed charges during that period therefore would be the 5 per cent interest on the new first mortgage bonds issued in exchange for outstanding first mortgage bonds.

"Assuming that the earnings of the new company will be approximately $6,000,000 a year, it means that with the reserve funds mentioned and with the earnings over interest on first mortgage bonds and other cash there should be available for extensions and replacements in those years approximately $30,000,000 over and above those normally made for such purposes. These funds would be released for this immediate work upon the consummation of the plan and the granting of a franchise."

Personnel of Committee.

The reorganization committee is headed by W. Rufus Abbott, former chairman of the board of the Illinois Bell Telephone company. The other members are M. H. MacLean, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank; Frank M. Gordon, vice president of the First National bank; John E. Blunt, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, and Bernard E. Sunny, former chairman of the board of the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

The committee's authorized statement details and explains the necessary exchange of existing securities for those of the new corporation as follows:

"The new company will have a simple capital structure. It is designed to recognize the relative priorities of the existing securities and to permit of both senior and junior future financing.

Replace Junior Bonds with Shares.

"In view of the reduced transportation earnings prevailing generally during recent years and in order to avoid the possibility of a repetition of defaults in bond interest, the committee has deemed it advisable to replace with stock the present five junior bond issues which, together with interest, amount to approximately $86,000,000. In place of these junior bonds and accrued interest there will be issued approximately $46,000,000 of preferred stock and approximately 460,000 shares of common stock.

"The capitalization will consist of $72,718,350 in series A first mortgage bonds, 931,139.75 shares of no par preferred stock with $50 a share liquidating value, and 526,572.53 shares of no par common stock.

"The first mortgage bonds will

Only One of 10 Banks Repays on Deposits

Payment of 10 per cent more to depositors of the Commercial Bank of Chicago was the only return made in the third quarter of the year by the 10 banks for which reports as of Sept. 30 were issued yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. The Columbia State Savings bank will make a payment before Jan. 1.

Of the other eight defunct institutions, the Congress Trust and Savings has paid depositors in full, but is being liquidated for stockholders at their request. A first payment of 40 per cent by the Cosmopolitan State bank awaits signature of sufficient waivers to make successful the organization of a new Cosmopolitan National bank.

Banks' Condition Analyzed.

Individual analyses of the ten banks, based on the auditor's reports and information from men closely associated with the affairs of these institutions, follow. They show progress of liquidation, together with prospects of future returns. Figures, unless it is stated otherwise, apply to the entire period of receivership.

CITY STATE OF CHICAGO—Receipts $1,955,000 [$7,000 last quarter]. Paid $729,000 prior claims and $915,000, or 32 per cent, on deposits. Costs: $79,500 to protect assets [$54,500 returned], $80,000 clerical, $64,500 legal, $50,000 receiver. Something further expected, but liquidation is very slow.

COLUMBIA STATE SAVINGS—Receipts $648,500 [$25,500 last quarter]. Paid $123,300 prior claims and $280,500, or 22½ per cent, to depositors. Cash of $75,500, plus current collections, should net another 5 per cent before Jan. 1 after paying bills. Further return expected from RFC loan, application being made for $110,000. Something more expected eventually. Costs: $65,000 to protect assets $36,000 returned], $61,500 clerical, $26,000 legal, $16,000 receivers.

Commerce Trust-Savings.

COMMERCE TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts $748,000 [$3,000 last quarter]. Paid $230,000 prior claims and $414,000, or 72 per cent, to depositors. Still something left for depositors in this outstanding closed bank. Costs: $20,500 to protect assets, $27,500 clerical, $33,000 legal, $10,000 receivers, $1,500 interest. Cash, $11,500.

COMMERCIAL OF CHICAGO HEIGHTS—Receipts $545,500 [$25,500 last quarter]. Paid $162,000 prior claims and $272,000, or 60 per cent, to depositors [10 per cent last quarter]. Cash, $14,000. Final return of more than 75 per cent indicated in this top rating closed bank. Costs: $43,000 to protect assets, $31,000 clerical, $15,000 legal, $8,000 receivers.

COMMONWEALTH TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts $432,700 [$12,500 last quarter]. Paid $350,000 prior claims [$4,000 last quarter], but nothing to depositors in three year receivership. Still hopes to make fair return, perhaps 25 to 40 per cent, though liquidation is slow. Costs: $12,000 [$5,000 last quarter] to protect assets, $27,000 interest, $31,500 clerical, $4,000 legal [more to come], $4,000 receivers. Cash, $4,000.

CONGRESS PARK STATE—Receipts $39,896 [$324 last quarter]. Paid $11,900 prior claims and $8,200, or 30 per cent, of deposits. Hopes to return as much more eventually, though progress is slow. Owes RFC $2,700 after repaying $3,800. Costs: $5,100 to protect assets, $6,500 clerical, $2,000 legal, $1,100 clerical. Cash, $1,200.

Congress Trust-Savings.

CONGRESS TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts, $1,744,000 [$44,500 last quarter]. Wiped out entire $778,000 deposit liability, $181,000 RFC loan and $528,500 prior claims. Has $66,000 ready to pay last old bills and $35,000 toward returns for stockholders, who asked the auditor to continue liquidation. Received $236,000 return on $74,300 advance to protect assets. Costs: $82,000 clerical, $34,000 legal, $9,000 receivers, $5,500 interest.

COSMOPOLITAN STATE—Receipts $1,437,500 [$104,000 last quarter]. Paid $424,000 prior claims [$19,500 last quarter]. Advanced $555,500 [$44,000 last quarter] to protect assets, with return of $393,000 [$13,000 last quarter]. Costs: $111,500 interest [$8,500 last quarter], $74,000 clerical [$5,000 last quarter], $30,500 legal [$3,500 last quarter], $1,000 receiver. Still owes $766,000 on RFC loan made before bank closed. Current plan to open new national bank involves its purchase of some of old bank's assets, as well as new RFC loan to old bank, making possible first 40 per cent return to depositors. Plan awaits sufficient waivers by depositors. Returns after this 40 per cent not predictable.

Cottage Grove State.

COTTAGE GROVE STATE—Receipts $632,000 [$30,000 last quarter]. Paid $393,500 prior claims and $68,500 to protect assets, with $49,500 return. Still owes taxes, some preferred and trust claims, and attorneys' fees, but hope is held for eventual 25 per cent payment on $959,000 deposit liability. Costs: $36,000 interest, $43,000 clerical, $17,000 legal, $4,600 receivers. Cash, $69,000.

CRAGIN STATE—Receipts $354,500 [$4,000 last quarter]. Paid $152,000 prior claims and $65,000, or 15 per cent, to depositors. Has applied for $75,000 RFC loan, and eventual return may reach 40 per cent despite present sluggish liquidation. Costs: $38,500 [$36,000 returned] to protect assets, $5,000 interest, $36,000 clerical, $29,000 legal, $23,000 receivers. Cash, $5,500.

William L. O'Connell now is receiver for all of these banks except the City State of Chicago, where Gen. Abel Davis continues in charge.

Ten New Registrations Are Filed with the SEC

Washington, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission today announced the filing of ten additional registration statements under the securities act, for issues totaling $7,165,016.

BANKERS TOLD U. S. SEEKS HOLD ON STATE BONDS

Lawyer Fears Move by Congress.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—A shrewdly designed political scheme is being cooked up in Washington to require registration of state and municipal bonds with a federal agency, David M. Wood, prominent New York attorney, declared here today.

Speaking before the Investment Bankers' Association of America, Wood asserted that the move is being made on the pretense of protecting city, county, and state governments against the demands of investors who hold their defaulted bonds. Wood is a member of the law firm of Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, who represent municipal bondholders' protective committees throughout the country.

Campaign of Villification.

For two years, said Mr. Wood, local and national politicians have carried on a campaign of vilification of all agencies representing investors holding defaulted city, county, and state bonds.

"In my judgment this campaign will culminate in the next session of congress," he told the bankers. "In that session I predict that efforts will be made to amend the municipal bankruptcy act so that a municipality may file a petition in bankruptcy without the consent of its creditors, and to require a federal court to approve a readjustment plan without the consent of the holders of a majority in amount of the outstanding claims.

"There will be attempts to impose limitations upon the organization and representation of creditors. Almost certainly, bills will be introduced making municipal securities and municipal reorganizations subject to the supervision of some federal bureau."

Attack on Bondholders.

According to the speaker this expected development will be the culmination of an open conspiracy of long standing between local, state, and national politicians to pit the taxpayers against the investors and induce the taxpayers to believe that their financial difficulties are due to the grasping of bondholders who demand their just payments rather than to the politicians who are wasting the taxpayers' money.

"I believe," he said, "that some of this legislation will involve a fundamental political principle that will far transcend in importance the problems of municipalities in default or those of the holders of their securities. There has always been an honest difference of opinion as to whether the powers of the federal government should be greatly increased at the expense of the states.

"The political parties have swung back and forth to either side of the question. Most of us would probably approve of some extensions of federal power and disapprove of others. I believe that this question will be involved in the suggestion, which I suspect will be made at the next session of congress, to require the registration with a federal agency of bonds and other securities issued by states or by their municipalities."

Would Control Purses.

Allocation to a federal government bureau of power to say when a state, city, county, sanitary district, park district, or village should or should not issue securities, said the speaker, would give the administration in Washington a strangle hold on public bodies throughout the country through control of their purse strings.

Talk about the isolated indiscretions of protective committees representing holders of defaulted municipal bonds, Mr. Wood pointed out, is merely a red herring drawn across the real issue—further extension of the control of the federal government over local politics in each community, however small.

In addition to the scheme to build up a centralized hierarchy in Washington, Mr. Wood said, politicians everywhere are seeking to create the impression that the investors who hold the bonds of political bodies are motivated by evil impulses in trying to collect what is due them, the purpose being to force bondholders to agree to scale down debts so that the politicians may continue to spend as much as ever.

"Many shrewd minds today are devoting themselves to the effort to defeat the claims of creditors, both public and private," he added.

INVESTMENT FIRMS REPORT NEW YORK'S FINANCES IMPROVED

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—In the last two years a marked improvement in the financial position of the city of New York has been brought about, according to a comprehensive survey of the fiscal position and financial problems of the city just completed by Brown, Harriman & Co., Inc., and R. W. Pressprich & Co., with the coöperation of Frank J. Taylor, the city controler. The results of this study are incorporated in a fifty-six page booklet published by the bankers.

A substantial improvement developed in tax collections for the year ended on Dec. 31, 1934, and for each month so far reported in the current year. The three years previous to 1934 had been periods of declining tax revenues. The taxpayer also has derived benefit, the booklet states, through retrenchment in municipal expenditures, evidence of which is discerned in the decreases in the budget for 1936 now in the course of preparation.

In addition, the study shows that the estimated reduction in debt service for 1936 of more than 10 million dollars, due to the successful refinancing of a large block of long term bonds at a lower rate of interest, and due also to the improved credit position of the city, has enabled it to borrow upon temporary debt obligations at record low interest rates.

INDEPENDENT OIL MEN TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS HERE

More than 1,000 independent jobbers from all parts of the country are arriving in Chicago to attend the annual convention and trade show of the National Oil Marketers' association to be held tomorrow, Wednesday, and Thursday at the Stevens hotel.

Among the subjects to be discussed will be the proposed voluntary code of marketing practices; price fixing investigations by the department of justice; how can the independent jobbers protect themselves from being squeezed out of business by the large companies; the proposed oil control law, etc.

"This will be the first truly national gathering of independent oil jobbers in the last six years," Paul E. Hadlick, Washington, D. C., national secretary, declared yesterday. "It will be a convention in which debate and action will be restricted to independent oil jobbers. Its purpose will be to formulate a definite program for the national association to combat monopoly and certain members of the national administration who are aligned with it to carry out policies which would mean the elimination of the independent business man in the oil industry."

Continental Assurance Announces New Agencies

The Continental Assurance company yesterday announced four general agency connections of major importance, three in the Chicago territory and one in Philadelphia. George Hermann, 80 year old dean of Chicago fire insurance agents, is establishing a life insurance branch in his agency with Reed M. Wilson in charge. Gerry Mavon, who operates a casualty and fire insurance agency under the name of G. A. Mavon & Co., is opening a life insurance department under the direction of John A. Lyn. William G. Ruggles will represent Continental in Evanston. Dwight Johnson is opening an agency in Philadelphia.

Heads of 22 Stock Markets Meeting Here

Presidents of 22 American stock exchanges will meet at the Union League club today with Chairman James M. Landis of the Securities and Exchange commission to discuss the segregation of the functions of dealers and brokers in the securities markets. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Associated Stock Exchanges of which Eugene E. Thompson is executive vice president.

J. M. LANDIS.

Among the exchange officials who will attend are: Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock Exchange; Fred C. Moffatt, president of the New York Curb; M. J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange; Robert P. Boylan, president of the Chicago Board of Trade; F. C. Shaughnessy, president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange; William H. Claflin Jr., president of the Boston Stock Exchange, and Charles B. Crouse, president of the Detroit Stock Exchange.

Largest Meeting in History.

The conference will bring together the largest number of stock exchange executives ever to assemble at one time in the history of American securities markets. Discussions will take the form of "off the record" round table talks.

The SEC must report to congress on or before Jan. 3, 1936, on the results of its study "of the feasibility and advisability of the complete segregation of the functions of dealer and broker." It is expected that today's discussions will throw additional light on this complicated problem.

Two Sides to Question.

Advocates of segregation, some of whom urged that it be made mandatory when the securities and exchange act was being drafted, contend that no person should be allowed to act as the agent for others and as a principal for himself in the same field.

Exchange officials, however, contend that a complete division of functions between broker and dealer could work hardships on many of the stock exchanges and their members. It was pointed out that broker-dealer functions are frequently found among the members of the smaller exchanges where the normally rather light volume of trading would make it practically impossible for more than a very few individuals to depend solely upon the commission income to be derived from executing buying and selling orders for the account of others.

Speedy End to Richfield Oil Receivership Is Seen

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Speedy termination of the Richfield Oil company and Pan-American Petroleum company receiverships was foreseen as William C. McDuffie, receiver, was scheduled to appear in Federal court tomorrow to ask that date for the sale of the properties be set. McDuffie said favorable court action would bring the receivership to an end within a few months.

WOMEN BUYING NEW EVENING GOWNS—IT'S SIGNAL OF PROSPERITY

Evening gowns and other social requisites are in the best demand since 1930. Both men and women are buying higher priced winter clothing. Sales of Christmas wares are exceeding expectations. Merchandise especially designed for Halloween parties and other holiday occasions is topping all previous records.

Such are the signs of prosperity seen by observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce, as they reported a marked improvement last week in practically all lines of Chicago trade. The upturn in wholesale commitments was spotty but big increases from territories enjoying better industrial conditions carried the entire list ahead. Heaviest demands appeared in home furnishings, woolen, and higher priced winter clothing.

With cold weather as a stimulating factor, retail business spurted. Industrially Chicago continued to move slightly ahead. Employment was improved and wages up. Expectation of larger automobile sales and a pickup in the building trade were called stimulating factors in the situation.

DETROIT TO SELL SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM BONDS

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The city of Detroit, Mich., will sell on Monday, Nov. 4, $11,000,000 of 4 per cent sewage disposal system bonds maturing from 1939 to 1965. The cost of the system will be $20,000,000, of which $9,000,000 will be met by a direct grant from the United States government. It is expected that the PWA will purchase the bonds at par and accrued interest.

U. S. Rubber Exports Ease Slightly for 9 Months

United States exports of rubber products during the first nine months of 1935 amounted to $16,370,000 against $16,547,000 in the same period a year ago.

Let Business Work Freely, Plea of Bank

Although the immediate business outlook from a purely economic viewpoint is "fairly favorable," the rate of progress toward recovery will depend largely on the freedom with which business is permitted to operate, the Guaranty Trust company of New York states in its current monthly review.

"Resort to artificial stimulants such as currency devaluation, partial bimetallism, the 'economy of scarcity,' huge governmental spending, and the like must inevitably fail in the end, although some of them temporarily may seem to succeed," the survey says. "The revival that has taken place thus far has been based in part upon public expenditures financed by large purchases of government bonds by the banks. As long as this continues the recovery will contain unsound and unstable factors. The orderly transition from public to private expenditure as a means of support for a considerable section of the population is a problem still to be faced."

Courts Protecting Business.

Political uncertainties appear to be reduced through indications that the courts and the constitution will protect business from illegal governmental restrictions, the survey says, and by the administration's apparent recognition that private business must be encouraged and that some policies have hampered recovery.

An irregular, upward trend in business has been under way since the summer of 1932 and spring of 1933, the bank asserts.

"The persistence of this tendency in the face of all the political obstacles placed in its way would seem to offer at least prima facie evidence that recession has given way to revival," it continues. "Perhaps a more important factor tending to substantiate this view is the increasing stability that has prevailed this year.

Business Holding Gains.

"For the first time since the beginning of the depression business has shown a marked rise and has managed to hold many of its gains. An encouraging and significant feature of the situation is that the durable goods industries have participated materially in the recent improvement.

"Against this imposing array of favorable indications must be placed one element of doubt and misgiving that stands out above all others—the monetary situation at home and abroad."

Excess federal reserve member bank reserves nearing three billions as a result of devaluation, gold imports, and governmental borrowing have laid the foundation for a huge credit expansion, the bulletin continues.

Inflation Threat Continues.

"The threat of inflation will continue to be a strong deterrent to business recovery," the bank adds, "until the budgets of the principal nations are brought into balance and until the closely related problems of currency stabilization, international debts, trade barriers, and gold distribution are solved in a satisfactory manner.

"With its large resources and its relatively high degree of economic self-sufficiency, the United States could, by resolute action, balance its national budget within a short time."

STEEL OUTPUT RISES AS AUTO PLANTS EXPAND

Rate Reaches 52½% for Last Week.

Steel operations last week rose 1½ points to 52½ per cent of capacity, according to the magazine Steel, reflecting the steadily mounting demands of the automobile industry as it swings into production. However, there was a slackening of new commitments from other large consumers.

The steel industry's rate of operations has not moved outside of a 3 point range since August. It is now only two points below the peak, reached last February.

In reviewing the year's development in steel, the magazine points out that automobile production has been exceptional; agricultural implement industry and tin plate requirements reached new peaks and the equipment and miscellaneous orders have been heavy.

Railroad Purchasing Lags.

Railroad purchases and structural work, however, have either remained on a parity with or declined from 1934 levels. The outlook for larger takings as a result of railroad purchasing is bright, the magazine says, as the result of heavy freight car loadings, which have in some cases made the new for new cars imperative.

Last week the Burlington decided to build 1,200 cars and three locomotives, calling for 20,000 tons of steel; the Norfolk and Western purchased 6,500 tons for car repairs and 10,000 tons of rails, and the Pennsylvania's schedule calls for 11,000 freight cars and at least 100 locomotives, calling for 130,000 tons of rolled steel.

Structural shape awards last week were at the lowest point of this year.

Auto Industry in Limelight.

With an increase of automobile production from 44,000 to 62,000 units last week, the automobile industry held the limelight. The Ford company is understood to have purchased 30,000 to 40,000 tons of sheets, also to have stocked 132,000 tons of billets and 28,000 tons of bars of its own output, or about $8,000,000 worth of finished steel.

There has been no letdown as yet in production of tractors, but the seasonal reduction in the industry is about due.

Iron and steel exports in September were the lowest since April, although for the first nine months they were 18 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1934. Imports, however, rose 23.6 per cent.

The magazine's iron and steel price composite went up 4 cents last week to $32.85; the finished steel index was steady at $53.70 and the scrap composite dropped 4 cents to $12.67.

California Oil Advanced to High Level Since 1930

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—California crude oil prices were boosted yesterday to the highest levels since 1930 when the Union Oil company put into effect an increase of 55 cents a barrel, making a price of $1.05 to producers.

WHEAT RECEDES; WORLD FACTORS REDUCE DEMAND

War Scare Dims; Crop in Argentina Improves.

Temporary dissipation of war fears, lessened demand for Canadian wheat abroad, and reports of improvements in Argentine crop conditions adversely affected Chicago wheat futures last week. Prices dropped about 2 cents a bushel as both buyers and sellers adopted a cautious attitude. Volume of trading was small throughout and activity featureless.

Other grains were mixed. Corn gained 1½ cents, oats eased fractionally, and rye improved slightly. Strength in corn reflected uneasiness of shorts, brought about by unfavorable weather conditions for gathering the crop. A period of dry weather is needed for placing the crop in condition for marketing purposes.

Corn Stocks Nearly Exhausted.

Corn of deliverable contract grades in Chicago public elevators is nearly exhausted, receipts are small, cash premiums are high, and farmers are not offering to sell in any quantity. Short sellers, as a result, fear to press operations far.

Marketing of wheat in this country continues to decline and probably has reached a point where removal of elevator and mill hedges will more than balance new shipments from the farms. Canada has also experienced less country selling. With Canadian prices now below pegged levels for cash grain there is no necessity for farmers to rush their wheat to market.

Club Aluminum Utensil.

Investors' Guide: Can you give me information on Club Aluminum Utensil?—N. A. B.

Answer: Club Aluminum Utensil company sells aluminum cooking utensils, primarily to premium companies. It has failed to earn a profit for the last six years.

Total income for the year ended June 30, 1935, was $22,000, and loss was $12,000. In the preceding year total income was $38,000, and loss, after $112,000 extraordinary charges, was $111,000. Loss in the year ended June 30, 1933, was $333,000, against losses of $322,000 and $260,000 for the two preceding years.

The cumulative effect of these heavy deficits is apparent in the June 30, 1935, balance sheet. On that date current assets, including only $2,000 cash, were $13,000, and current liabilities, including $447,000 demand notes payable, were $513,000. Profit and loss deficit was $607,000.

Capitalization consists of 271,240 shares of no par stock.

Illinois Commercial Telephone.

Investors' Guide: Please advise the status of bonds in Illinois Commercial Telephone.—L. M. C.

Answer: Unsettled conditions in the territory in which this operating subsidiary of Associated Telephone Utilities company operates and declining margin of coverage of fixed charges place the issue of first 5s, due 1960, in the speculative class.

The company furnishes telephone service primarily in the bituminous coal mining area of southern Illinois.

Fixed charges in the twelve months to March 31, 1935, were earned 1.33 times. In 1934 they were earned 1.36 times, against 1.46 times in 1933, 1.53 times in 1932, and 2.08 times in 1931. On Dec. 31, 1934, current assets were about twice total current liabilities.

Funded debt consists solely of the $5,750,000 issue of these bonds.

Gears and Forgings, Inc.

Investors' Guide: I have 20 shares of Gears and Forgings, Inc., stock. I have not heard a thing about the company for some time. Can you give me any information on it?—F. J. O.

Answer: The assets of Gears and Forgings, Inc., were sold at receivership sale on Aug. 31, 1934, and bid in by a nominee of the reorganization committee. The amount realized was insufficient to pay the company's debts and stockholders were not permitted to participate in the reorganization. We therefore regard the stock as worthless as of 1934.

TRADE LEADERS TURN ATTENTION TO INFLATION

Fear Congress May Move for Easy Money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 27.—Speculation on the prospect of inflation is figuring more and more strongly as a factor of the current bull movement on the stock exchange, according to brokerage house observers.

Whatever their views as to the ultimate effects, most people in the financial district who will discuss the matter, seem to feel that credit inflation and probably, in the end, currency inflation also is inevitable before any appreciable start can be made toward liquidating the tremendous load of public debt now being piled up by the New Deal. Many believe that the monetary "orgy" will get under way in earnest at the approaching session of congress, with the soldier bonus or some other "easy money" handout scheme providing the initial impetus.

Doubtful on Future.

Few profess to think that bearable taxation could do much more than meet service charges on the vast debts, even though the administration's spending spree were curtailed and a sincere step toward balancing the budget taken right now. In fact, the preliminary stages of the inflation wave are widely held to be already under way.

More solid ground for the advance continues to be provided, however, by the gradual expansion of business. Last week, the loadings in railway freight ran 14 per cent above those of the corresponding period of 1934, rising for the fifth week well above the 700,000 car mark, a level which had not been reached in any other week in the last four years.

Expect Heavy Christmas Business.

Prospects for the stores are for the heaviest Christmas since 1929 and possibly even better than that year. Corporation earnings show a steady improvement and the week brought a healthy flock of favorable dividend announcements including resumption of payments on the American Power and Light preferred. The New Haven railroad's receivership, the outstanding "bear" development of the week, caused only a temporary unsettlement in carrier stocks, the move having been discounted by the speculative fraternity for some time.

Friend of the Coal User

The Friend of the Coal User will supply information on economical use of coal in an attempt to enable users to meet with less loss the added expense which the Guffey coal law is loading on the Chicagoland public. Inquiries should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Items of general interest will be published.

Square or Round Boiler?

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 21.—Could you tell me whether there is any difference between a round or a square boiler for hot water heating systems? Are there any advantages one would have over the other, or is it simply a matter of choice? .I am planning on using a hot water system and would like to know all about this angle—which would give me the best results and which would be most economical.—P. F.

Answer: When boilers are of similar rated capacities, we do not know of any advantage either in economy of operation or in durability that one type would have over the other. Most manufacturers produce both types and do not recommend either in preference to the other. It is, as you suggest, merely a matter of choice. We do know that a hot water heating plant in your house will not only be an improvement but will greatly enhance the value of your property.
